

AfTIA now receiving applications for startups

AfTIA is receiving applications on Technology in Finance (FinTech), Technology in Agriculture (AgriTech), Technology in Education (EdTech), Technology in Governance (GovTech) and Technology in Health (HealthTech).

Launched during the Nairobi Innovation Week, the AfTIA programme will enable C4DLab, the innovation lab of the University of Nairobi, to incubate and accelerate startups and facilitate commercialization of innovations.

Innovations by staff and students of the University of Nairobi as well as external applicants are eligible. Among the acceleration services offered at AfTIA will include a seed funding of USD 5,000 per startup and specialized startup development training.

Applications will be made through the AfTIA website and should be received by September 30, 2015.
