

Africa Media Freedom Survey Data to be Released

Date and time: Wed, 2013-10-16 09:08

Location / Venue: Nairobi Safari club (Lillian Towers)

Prof Mutoro: The key speaker at IDS/Afrobarometer forum

The Institute for Development Studies and the Afrobarometer Network will release Afrobarometer's Internet and media freedom survey data from 34 African countries. The results track the attitudes of 51,605 African citizens with opinions on the role of media and use of technology in Africa.

Prof. Henry W. Mutoro, the Acting Deputy Vice Chancellor (Academic Affairs), will be the key speaker at the forum which will take place on Wednesday 16th October 2013, at the Nairobi Safari Club (Lillian Towers) from 9.00am.

The global release for Nairobi will share evidence based information on increasing freedom of expression and mass media in Africa, its implications for governance and how citizens engage. As a second forum in a series of 7 planned dissemination events organized across Africa, the Nairobi release comes shortly after the Johannesburg event on 'Lived Poverty in Africa'. The forum will include sharing information, debate and brainstorming among stakeholders, including civil society organizations, media and the academia.
