Mr. Read.

We need not express a view until we have the despatch - but I hope we shall not agree to the railway work being done at cost - in view of the disturbance of ordinary traffic and the necessity for additional staff to cope with the war work.

We would like to avoid the chance of correspondence on this point which may complicate the rendering of the final accounts (for which we are now preparing), but I suppose we must? send a copy to G.O., promising a further letter when the despatch is received.

Copy two of this to Mr. Read
