It is 100 miles from the present terminus of the German Railway at Tabora to the Lake. It even if they do decide to make this, it is probably take several years to build and not free com-

Railway at present. The same idea of a railway between Tabora is not sufficiently important to make it worth

My Lord

Last week their Excellencies
Her Derenburg and Baron von Rechenberg, the Governor of German East Africa, stayed a day with me en route to the Victoria Nyanza. They were accompanied by Prof Henckel von Donnersmarck and Oberst deubrand

deutenant Ruade, whose appointment corresponds with that of Sir William Manning, five other members of their staffs and seven journalists.

2 Baron von Rechenberg had previously intimated that they wished to pay me an official visit and official honours were accorded to the party both on arrival and departure. A dinner was given to the principal official and non-official residents and everything was done to make their short visit agreeable to them. I think they left well pleased with their reception.

3 Herr Dernburg's principal object in proceeding to the Lake is, of course, in connection with Railway expansion in German East Africa. He was much impressed with the Uganda Railway, of which he frankly admitted the Germans were jealous, and told me we had done a grand work.

4. I gathered that the Tanga-Kilima Nyaro Railway, which has now reached Mombu, will probably be extended as far as the lower slopes of Kilima Nyaro, but will not be projected further. It is on the extension of the main Dar es Salam - Mvogoro line that attention will be principally concentrated. This is to be extended to Tabora, the military centre 180 miles south of the lake, and Here Dernburg and his party will now march from Muanza to Tabora with a view to determine its ultimate direction or directions from there.

5. These would naturally be to Muanza on lake Victoria and to Ujiji on lake Tanganyika and some point on the south end of that lake.

6. The Tabora - Muanza extension is is the one that would affect us most, and I take it that it is Herr Dermburg's object to study the conditions of the lake traffic, and to see whether, in view of the position we have gained through the Uganda Railway and our steamers on the lake, a position which will be far stronger by the time a railway would reach Muanza, it would not be worth Germany's while to connect with the Victoria Nyanga, or whether some advantages could not be obtained by leaving this to us and prosecuting their schemes towards lake Tanganyika.

6. As Herr Dermburg told me, there is ample room for railway expansion without either nation competing with the other, and it would seem from all I have heard, that of late he has somewhat modified his views as to a connection with with the Victoria Nyanga upon which at one time he is said to have laid great stress.

7. There also appeared to be some idea, by international or other means, of a connection through Taveta, between Voi, on the Uganda Railway, and the railhead of the Tanganyika Railway. It is difficult to see what the use of such a connection could be, except to serve as the means of a flank move on the Uganda Railway, which is now covered by the 40 miles of the waterless Serengeti plain, in the event of hostilities. I have noticed of late that one or two German parties have traversed this route. It could not be with the object of diverting the

the lake trade of the Uganda Railway from Mombasa to Tanga, because the distance would be much greater, and any such idea could be easily met by a reduction of rates from Voi to our port.

8. The conversations I had with Herr Deimbung on general matters connected with the two territories were most interesting. He is taking British Colonial methods as a guide for German Administration on the Colonies and is anxious that the local officers should study English reports, and he evidently had no sympathy with what I may call the Sergeant-Major system of German Administration which I have always thought to be a weak point in their dealings with the native races. He asked me many questions as to our policy with the natives, and thought it would be advantageous to have a uniform system of dealing with the

The native questions on both sides of the border, as any excitement on one side might easily read among the natives on the other. The Hut tax in German East Africa is the same as ours - Rs 3 per hut - It is understood in contemplation to reduce the troops and increase the civil Police.
 Herr Dernburg was particularly interested in our system of Civil and Magisterial administration and in the new Constitution of Councils.
 In German East Africa the Council is purely advisory and has no definite authority of its own.

their conditions, resources and importance, better known to the nation. With this view he is making provision in his Colonial Estimates to defray the expenses of a certain number of the members of the Reichstag for an annual visit to their African possessions and I have already observed that he is accompanied on this tour by a party of seven journalists.

10. The party will either continue their journey from Tabora through the heart of German East Africa to Dar-es-Salam, or return by the way they went, in which case I shall have the honour of meeting them here in Dar-es-Salam either here or or at Mombasa, towards the End of next month.
