I have pleasure in stating that H.A. Macraeth was a pupil of Corrig School for nearly two years from August 1898, and that his parents have every satisfaction in his progress. He is a high-principled and every way thoroughly reliable person who will perform any duties entrusted to him here and in an intelligent manner.

JUNIOR BURSAR'S OFFICE,
TRINITY COLLEGE,
DUBLIN.

Mr. Hawtrey A. Macraith, B.A. entered Trinity College, Dublin, in January 1898, and remained under my tuition till I ceased to be a College Tutor in June, 1899.

I have much pleasure in bearing testimony to his uniformly good conduct as a student, and his irreproachable moral character.

(Signed) ARTHUR W. PANTON.

Fellow and late Tutor,
Trinity College, Dublin.

Trinity College, Dublin.

This is to certify that Mr. Rawney A. Macraith, to whom I acted as Tutor during the greater portion of the College course, was guilty of no infringement of College discipline during that period, and proceeded with his course in a most orderly and satisfactory manner. From my personal knowledge of Mr. Macraith, I have every confidence in recommending him as suitable to fill the post for which he is applying. Since obtaining his B.A. Degree he has acted for a year as Secretary to a Company in Dublin, and the experience thus required should serve as an additional qualification.

Fellow and Tutor,

Trinity College.

about 10 months, during which time I found him steady,
and diligent in his duties.

6th April, 1904.

Mr. H. Macraith has been clerk in the A.R. Magistrate's Office, Beaconsfield, for the last ten months. During that time he has lived in the same house with me and I have had every opportunity of forming an opinion of his character and attainments.

Mr. Macraith has impressed me as a man of excellent education, of gentlemanly instincts, and bearing, and of many social qualities. I have reason to believe that he has been most faithful in the discharge of his duties, and has proved himself trustworthy and reliable. He is evidently fired by a high ideal and animated by a true ambition.

I wish him well in his career, and I confidently anticipate for him rapid success.

Given by me this sixth day of April 1904.
