We should have done better if we had based our case, not on what Mr. Wright thought when he unconsciously accepted the off-in the Land Office, but on the ground that, if this early railway service is allowed to count for pension (as it has been) in some cases, it should be allowed to count in all.

Nothing more can be done now. But possibly when the time comes for Mr. Wright to retire, the question may be brought up again and decided in his favor.
