I submit a draft in reply to Mr. W. G. Williams. It is impossible to make too large an allowance for the circumstances in which his letter was written. But I do not think it would be just to our officers in East Africa to let our reply seem to admit, even tacitly, that they are previously in the wrong. It is a little difficult to combine the two points of view.

When the letter has gone, I think we had better let the Col have a copy of the correspondence, & ask him to report on the three specific points mentioned in this draft.

I do not understand the more general suggestion for "stringent enquiry" made toward the end of Mr. Moore Williams's letter.
Apart from the points mentioned in the draft reply, there does not appear to be anything to enquire about.

Dear Sir,

I have received your letter of the 8th inst with copy of the Report of the Dublin Assessment for my son's illness. This is the first Report I have received. So far I should merely on official notification from the Administration Board that my son had died of cholera & returned and I have not been able to understand why, although my son appears to have been seriously ill from the first I was in hospital more than a month, terrible

I have since heard that Nobai is a very unhealthy place with a very bad water supply.

I am of course sure that in the Public Service someone has to be sent to a healthy place and I cannot therefore justly complain if any one has been selected for this work, but I think it is a fair matter of comment that the Colonial Office can afford to send the best young men recruited to this service being compelled to work in a very unhealthy
