Uganda a system of coinage which has been found to work so well in Central Africa that the people of that country will have none of it.

East Africa is making big efforts to attract attention see the Untani paper. We see the African Standard announces that the Agricultural and Horticultural Show was to be held in Mombasa last month.

We have to acknowledge with thanks the receipt of the Report of the Executive Committee of the Johannesburg Chamber of Commerce, to the meeting of the 28th July. Elsewhere we refer to some of the contents.

A notice, has been issued by His Majesty's Commission for the East Africa Protectorate with regard to free grants of unoccupied land in certain districts along the Uganda Railway, and as to the sale of freeholds in other parts of the Protectorate. For further details reference is given to "General Information as to the East Africa Protectorate," issued by the Emigrants' Information Office, 31, Broadway, Westminster.

His Majesty's Commissioner and Consul-General at Uganda has drafted Land Laws which compare favourably with the best among nations, besides offering free grants of land, comprising 600 acres, for agricultural purposes, says a Home paper. The land is very rich and within reach of some of the chief centres of the Uganda Railway: [only the Uganda Railway is not in Uganda.—Ed.] also large tracts of land for grazing purposes at a nominal rent. East Africa is a land to be desired. With such generous offers of land in a fertile country and under such security, Uganda should not lack numbers of settlers. [Now, which do they mean, East Africa or Uganda?—Ed.]

Complaints continue to be made in German East Africa of the devastation caused by the number of lions infesting the best districts. The German missionary stationed at Kurasin has reported to Berlin that in his district alone no fewer than 15 persons have been carried off and devoured by lions during the past few weeks. The natives are afraid to build their huts after nightfall. The local residents suggest that the protectorate troops might be well employed in driving the country of this fearful beast.

The London Times correspondent telegraphed that the German Chancellor has granted a Berlin publisher, Herr Ernest Volser, a concession, permitting him to mine for precious stones in German East Africa. If the ultimate profits exceed 5 per cent. on the capital invested, 10 per cent. of the surplus is to be paid to the Colonial Office.

As an exception to profane officialism, the appended correspondence between two clerks of the Department of Agriculture, Victoria, is refreshing. Unfortunately, says the newspaper there, one of the clerks has since been secured for a South African State. He was accounted much too curt for a country like Victoria, which works sometimes, but talks always—so it says. The correspondence explains itself.

An auction sale of Government ivory was held at the Customs House godowns on Wednesday morning at 9. Bidding was brisk and the fancy price of $146.00 was realised for 'Uganda ivory.' The principal buyers were Messrs Jadovics, Dearys and Ajidja Vjram, though some lots also fell to Messrs 'Hindig & Co.' and The Antwerp East African Trading Co. Ltd.

The building of the White Father's rest house at Mzizi Moyo is proceeding apace. It is going to be a massive and handsome structure. Large and roomy vaults are being constructed underground, in which to store the rice that cheers the Father's banishment. 21 Fathers are expected to arrive from Europe to-day and will be distributed by the Uganda Railway over the Eastern portion of Africa including German East Africa and the Congo Free State. The present building is to be a sort of Caravansary for the housing of the priests on their way to and from these parts of the Continent.

The S. S. Chirala arrived in Kilindi harbour on Tuesday and took away another large batch of about 500 time-expired Indian Coolies from the Railway. She sailed for Bombay the same day.

The following notice appears in the Gazette: Large quantities of native grain and flour (e.g. intama, wimbi, etc.) may be purchased from the Collector, Kisumu, at minimum rates that we ordinary traders get out.

A meeting of the Committee of the Chamber of Commerce is to be held this afternoon at 4, in Mr. Ismaïloff Jovanoff's house.

THE THREATENED JEWISH INVASION.

Last week we were able, by aid of the telegraph, to give the opinions of some leading settlers on the proposal to dump down upon us a colony of pauper alien Jews, and to give them the pick of the country. Now, Major Burnham writes:—

With reference to your wire re Jewish settlement I fear they would not succeed in this country.

Sir Harry Johnston is even stronger. He writes to the Times, protesting strongly to assigning to Russian and Roumanian Jews a considerable portion of the small extent of land in the British East Africa Protectorate suitable to Europeans, which he considers should be reserved to British subjects of all creeds.

INDICATION IN NAIROBI.

Mass Meeting at Nairobi to protest against the threatened Jewish invasion of British East Africa.

A large and influential meeting was held in the Uganda Railway Institute, Nairobi, on Saturday last, to protest against the action of the Foreign Office, who have given a portion of land two hundred miles in extent, between Nairobi and the Mandara Mountains, to a Jewish Congress for the purpose of forming a Jewish settlement.

Dr. Atkinson was voted the chair, being supported unanimously. He then addressed the meeting.—The Rev. P. A. Bennett, Messrs T. C. Wood, McElzian, Wood, and J. W. Ward. Dr. Atkinson, on rising, said that, so far as he understood, the last time that a meeting of the Foreign Office had offered the Zionist Congress a tract of country between Nairobi and Mandara, of two hundred miles, which had been accepted, if this fact was taken up there would be little left for our own settlers. He knew it had been proved that Jews rendered themselves obnoxious to the people of every country they went to, and he was quite sure they would only bring out a hindrance instead of a help in British East Africa. Applications had been received by the Government from farmers in England and Scotland who possessed a capital of £100 each, yet these people had been informed that they did better stop at home. Was it fair on the part of the Government to ignore them, and to give the land to pauper alien Jews? If the Foreign Office were in such a hurry to people the country, then by all means let us have some of our own people as emigrants from England. He was glad to have the honour of presiding over the largest meeting of white men that had ever been held in Nairobi, and it was their duty to bring forward every objection to these undesirable being landed in their midst.—(Cheers.)

The Rev. Mr. Bennett, who was the next speaker, briefly explained the purpose for which the Zionist Congress was formed. It was a meeting with a view of restoring the Jews to Palestine, an Association which had long been formed for the purpose of seeking to assist the Jews in their return to their native land. He stated that the Moslem and Christian people were the least desirable of the kind. "A people who were alien to their habits, thoughts and actions. It meant we should have a Foreign State under British protection. If those people came he was quite sure they would prosper in the country in this country." (Cheers.)

Mr. Watcham said that no doubt a great number of Jews had been sent to this country it was proposed to settle those people on. He himself had travelled through it, and knew of its fertility. It was utterly unfit for agriculture. Everyone knew that Jews were far from being successful agriculturists and were more fitted for hawkers and petty traders.—(Cheers.)

Mr. T. A. Wood, who was called on, referred to the fact that in a country which had suffered under many grievances this was probably the worst thing which was being proposed. It was true that only within the last six months the country has possessed any workable Law favouring the Jews, and he thought while we were hoping to induce our friends to come, but before we had time to do so, the Foreign Office had taken the chance by giving away in a most arbitrary manner two hundred miles of country representing probably two thirds of the only part of the country favourable for white man in the present age. It was good, and not undoubtably to be made to pay, but it was certainly a suicidal policy on the part of the Foreign Office, who were spending millions on the construction of a Railway, and then to give the land to these pauper alien Jews, who were apparently pauper. The British taxpayer would be obliged to give them a return on the capital invested. How can they expect this if they locate, possibly the lowest class of white man in the present age. If it is absolutely necessary to fund a Jewish Colony, why not give them a back block, say in the Kenya or Uganda?

or a hundred miles north of Kenya? No doubt if arrangements have already been considered it would be difficult for a small body of pauper alien Jews to be landed by Durban, and stop those people landing at the port of entry. It was their bounden duty to prevent them starting if possible.—(Cheers.) Mr. Newson stated that he was sure that he could not understand why the Foreign Office wished to favour the immigration of Jewish pauper alien Jews, who were a number of poor of our own race. Why not ask the British Government to give them the first choice of the land?

Mr. McLellan Wilson in an able and lengthy speech said: I have lived and worked amongst low class Jews in New York City for twenty-five years, and have seen many of the world for eighteen years, and my experience is that the poor Jew is the worst possible man we could get in this country; they would never unite either with us or with the natives; the latter would soon recognise that they were not white men according to their own ideas, but would be influenced by them and their low code of morals. Trouble with the natives no doubt would arise in this country. It would be impossible to have a race war at such a time? or would they be likely to stand shoulder to shoulder with us? He thought the object was to have a mixture of brown skin or a black skin, or becoming a Jew, but if a man had knowledge and energy would he be so stupid as to join the country. His personal experience proved to him that these Jews possessed neither. He was sure that these people were allowed to come, they were not allowed to have a voice for trouble in the future.—(Cheers.)

Mr. J. B. Wood stated that his experience was that the poor man was not energetic and hard-working, and possessed a knowledge of agriculture, was not ready to manure, and upon a new country, but he was quite sure these low class Jews did not possess the necessary qualities. His own opinion was that they would prove a heavy burden to the country. For instance, on his shamba there were about two hundred and fifty natives. If they found any way of all the land, they would be on the ground, what chance would he have to live, and he believed the Jews would run out of the country.—(Cheers.)

Mr. J. W. Ward said that he was present at a meeting in the early days of Nairobi, at which the Foreign Office had offered a section of the country from Kin to the Mau Mountains, would only be allotted to white settlers. This decision had evidently been made by the Foreign Office, who without consulting any one in this country, had given away the best portion of the country by force. He knew of hundreds of our own people who had fought and bled in South Africa, and were now seeking employment. Why not give them the first chance?—(Cheers.)

The following resolution was proposed by Mr. T. A. Wood, seconded by Mr. J. B. Wood, and carried unanimously:—

That this meeting representing existing settlers protests strongly against the proposal of the Foreign Office to give away to pauper alien Jews a portion of the country, and to give them the first choice of the land.

It was resolved to wire the resolution to Sir Charles Elliot, H. M.'s Commissioner, requesting him to make some home to the Foreign Office, and to the Hon. Mr. Chamberlain, he being a member of Parliament, possessed of a good knowledge of this country.

A cordial and hearty vote of thanks was passed unanimously to Lord Deloraine and the Foreign Office, and to the Hon. Mr. Chamberlain for their kindness in granting the use of the building for the purpose of holding the meeting.

The meeting would be required to pay for cables, telegrams, etc., a subscription list was opened and was responded to liberally on the spot.—The total being Rs. 160.

This completed the business for which the meeting was called, the proceedings terminated with the hearty vote of thanks to Dr. Atkinson for presiding.

W. J. KOO, Hon. Secretary, Anti-Zionist Immigration Committee, Nairobi.

REVISED FREE PASS RULES AND THE RAILWAY SUBORDINATE STAFF.

AN INTERVIEW WITH A RAILWAY OFFICIAL.

Good morning Mr. Ferguson was asked... The Railway Administration... The sooner the Railway Administration is handed over to the Protectorate the better it will be.

Well, our situation on the Railway is getting day by day hopeless... The general gossip that matters were put on a permanent basis has proved to be a full illusion—a complete fiasco.

Apartment from all our tribulations, take for instance the Revised Free Pass Rules which have lately been put in force... The sooner the Railway Administration is handed over to the Protectorate the better it will be.

What are the rules to which you refer? It is laid down that "subordinates drawing Rs. 200/- per month or over are entitled to II Class Pass, and those drawing Rs. 100/- to Rs. 190/- to III class."

Mr. T. Wood's notice board has ever been a source of interest to the public generally... It is a notice board which has exceeded him self just lately.

In the Traffic Department, for instance, which is one of the largest departments of the railway, only 5 officials are drawing Rs. 200/- and over, and as such these only are entitled to II Class accommodation.

So it is to be inferred from your statement that, with the exception of the 5 officials, the rest of this department are to travel in Intermediate or 3rd Class?

Decidedly so, no matter whether they are Europeans, Babes, Eurasians or Goanese... It is my opinion that if the Domestic Service Railway playing public could see and locate their real interests, it is extremely anxious to give them the right thing to do.

We hear that Mr. Rawson has very graciously done the right thing as you think and bought your ticket from Mr. T. Wood and your ticket from Mr. T. Wood.

Mr. Bert, of Wood's Millinery department, has moved into the new premises... The Government will be willing to pay for the property of the Government.

Printing.—Before sending sheets, ask for Estimates. Address: Francis, Letters, printed at charge, twice a week.

Nairobi Notes.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT. Copies of the AFRICAN STANDARD may be obtained from Mr. T. WOOD, NAIROBI.

The heavy shower of rain last week has made conditions riding again possible in Nairobi, hitherto the drier weather has been agreeable.

Mr. Officer, who has, no believe, secured the contract for the building of the Protestant Free Church, is busy carrying stones, for the latter is building to be a stone building.

Subscription lists have been circulated among the Roman Catholic community for the erection of a church on Government Road, East African Colony.

THE ABYSSINIAN BOUNDARY, AND MR. BUTTER'S DOGS.

A Brother's Devotion.

(The Field).

Although the precise limits of the Emperor Menelik's dominions have not yet been defined by treaty, long pending negotiations have proceeded so far that an ill-defined settlement of this important question will not be long delayed. The agreement made with the ruler of Abyssinia practically determined the frontier between the Angles and the Emperor Menelik. Before this could be done, of course, a paper survey of the territory was indispensable, and this was the object of the Boundary Commission which, under the leadership of Mr. Archibald Hunter of Fackell, left England in August last, and has just returned from Mombasa. The party consisted of Mr. Butler, Colonel Hartington, the British Agent and Consul-General at Mombasa, Capt. Mead, a Mr. John Ford, a political agent, two surveyors, and a doctor, besides three officers appointed by the Emperor Menelik, one to represent himself, the other two to represent the chiefs to be paid. Proceeding to Mombasa, Mr. Butler had an interview with the principal ruler, the emirs of which had been previously attended between His Majesty and the Emperor Menelik. Leaving Mombasa in November 1897, the expedition travelled through Nyanza to the Lake country, and thence to the Lake country, arriving towards the end of May last at Lake Rudolf, where, after their hard work and the loss of a mule and other animals, they were obliged to find a caravan with supplies waiting for them under the command of Capt. Huff, attached to the British agency at Addis Ababa. Mr. Butler then marched to Mombasa, having completed the survey by triangulation of 4,000 square miles. The work was finished until they arrived at Lake Rudolf, a distance which the party left on June 4. They reached the East African Railway on July 1st, a date they had killed thirty-nine miles from the small camp, and only three females, eleven elephants, several rhinoceroses, and five or six two-horned rhinos, and other animals, and a party of the country had been previously seen, a great discovery.

Correspondence. While all these passages to receive communications from readers of this journal, the Editor does not guarantee their insertion. Absolute terms and unimportant personalities will be rigidly excluded. Letters are however, sent to their destinations, to have the question as to whether or not their publication would be for the public good, to the Editor to decide. The Editor does not hold himself responsible for opinions expressed by correspondents.

TO THE EDITOR "AFRICAN STANDARD." Sir,—Permit me through the medium of your valuable paper to publish a few facts regarding the Uganda Railway, the knowledge of which may save many a traveller time, money and annoyance.

When the Uganda Railway was officially declared open for goods and passenger traffic, the announcement was hailed with delight by all those who had their sphere of work in the western part of British or German East Africa. It seemed a thing of the momentous saving of time and trouble being able to reach Lake Victoria from the Coast in three or four days, and being able to get goods up in the same time. We have however been totally disappointed in our expectations. The Uganda Railway can, and does land passengers in three days at Port Florence, but requires as many months to bring goods up from the coast.

What advantage now do I desire from the Railway if, arriving within three days at the Lake, I then have to wait months at the bungalow for these goods, without Messrs. Hill, being possible to travel in Central Africa tents, provisions, etc. etc. Amongst a dozen gentlemen, who came to the Lake country, via Mombasa, within the last six or seven months, there is not one who did not regret the fact of having ordered his goods the same way. In each and every instance the goods took longer to reach here, than if they had come by rail direct. The same applies to my merchandise. Surely an undesirable, not to say disgraceful state of affairs.

The experiences are in all cases pretty well the same. You leave Mombasa, or your goods by the goods or mixed train on the fourth. Arrived at Port Florence you take up your quarters in the bungalow, and then charter a boat to bring you across the Lake as soon as your goods arrive. Then comes the goods or mixed train, brings you your consignment papers but no goods. You believe they are sure to come by the next train, seven days later, but get disappointed again.

You will all down the line to find out where your goods are, but no one knows. After having vainly waited six weeks at the bungalow, where you had 120 men consisting without your goods, wondering if the line was really managed by Britain. The above is the rule. I therefore assert, that under present circumstances travellers to German East Africa at any rate do far better to forward their goods by carriers from Dar-es-Salam. Their goods will reach their destination far quicker than by rail via Mombasa.

All the Europeans here, ordering goods from home have now again instructed their respective firms to forward the goods to them via Dar-es-Salam, it being after all of present the quickest route. This speaks for itself. For the sake of fair play though I think the Uganda Railway should make it public that only in exceptional cases it is possible to bring goods from Mombasa. Every Florence is less than two or three months.

Thanking you in anticipation. I remain, Sir, Yours truly, A. B. ...

THE UGANDA SWITCHBACK. AN EXPERIENCE ON THE RAILWAY. A passenger by the Lake train of Saturday, the 15th inst., relates his experiences between this and Port Florence. A little beyond Lumwa a truck next to our informant's carriage became derailed, and went tumbling and hopping along merrily for some time, sending the splintering and playing "Merry England" with the permanent way. Neither the driver nor the guard seemed to care a tittle, and all notices were taken of the matter till our informant by a lousy use of his lungs managed at last to convince these officials that something was wrong. A stop was made and after a delay of 7 hours the derailed engine was tilted over and dumped on the side of the line. The engine was hatched out again and everything was going well for the Uganda Railway, when our informant, who had secured a window, while the train was nearing the bottom of an incline, was surprised to see the engine spinning along full tilt, about 100 yards ahead of the engine, rolling down the incline, and a jury coupled was rigged up with a piece of old chain and a bit of string. A start was again made, but on three or four attempts the engine managed to break away and had to be tied on again with the chain and bit of string. An odd engine or so lying by the side of the track was nothing remarkable, the last being about 25 miles on this side of Port Florence. Another passenger was with difficulty persuaded not to get out at one of the stations on the way and walk back.

E. A. TURF CLUB. The following resolutions, amongst others, were passed on the 18th inst. at a meeting of Stewards of the E. A. Turf Club. (1) That half of the existing Grand Stand be raised and boarded off for the exclusive use of Members of the Turf Club. (2) That the next meeting be held in or about the last week in January. (3) Mr. Donald was elected as a Steward to fill a vacancy. (4) A Challenge Cup presented by Mr. B. Eastwood was accepted by the Club, to be run for at the January Meeting. (5) Funds were voted for the enlargement of the paddock and enclosure and the erection of horse sheds. The Programme and conditions for the January Meeting will shortly be published.

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE. In spite of the heavy showers of rain that fell last Saturday afternoon Cricket still seemed to be the order of the day, however. By 3 o'clock a sufficient number turned out so as to have 11 in the field, two batsmen, one umpire and one scorer. Messrs. Carter and Bell captained the team. Carter's side comprised 43 runs of which the captain himself made the top score of 14 runs. Mr. Bell's side made 28, of which Mr. Tanner put up 14, and not out. The game was interrupted no less than three times by the rain, every energetic soul that turned out had his chance at the wicket.

THE UGANDA SWITCHBACK. AN EXPERIENCE ON THE RAILWAY. A passenger by the Lake train of Saturday, the 15th inst., relates his experiences between this and Port Florence. A little beyond Lumwa a truck next to our informant's carriage became derailed, and went tumbling and hopping along merrily for some time, sending the splintering and playing "Merry England" with the permanent way. Neither the driver nor the guard seemed to care a tittle, and all notices were taken of the matter till our informant by a lousy use of his lungs managed at last to convince these officials that something was wrong. A stop was made and after a delay of 7 hours the derailed engine was tilted over and dumped on the side of the line. The engine was hatched out again and everything was going well for the Uganda Railway, when our informant, who had secured a window, while the train was nearing the bottom of an incline, was surprised to see the engine spinning along full tilt, about 100 yards ahead of the engine, rolling down the incline, and a jury coupled was rigged up with a piece of old chain and a bit of string. A start was again made, but on three or four attempts the engine managed to break away and had to be tied on again with the chain and bit of string. An odd engine or so lying by the side of the track was nothing remarkable, the last being about 25 miles on this side of Port Florence. Another passenger was with difficulty persuaded not to get out at one of the stations on the way and walk back.

The mail to hand yesterday brought us many opinions regarding the proposed dumping down of Jewish people in East Africa. A. W. M. notice that the sleeping sickness islands in East Africa, and the unhealthy coast left has not yet been suggested as a possible location for these undesirable. Why nifty they are to be given the only country available for Europeans, to the detriment of our Englishmen. We give some of the opinions received. One representative, who speaks the absolute want of consideration that at Home have for a young colony, and the people who are trying to make it a valuable possession of the Empire. Lord Delamere's telegram to the Jews, however, voices the feelings of East Africans generally, and we put it on record.

WE have received the following telegram from Lord Delamere, dated Nairobi, August 25:

Feeling here very strong against introducing alien Jews. Inaugural frontage to British colonization of this land. Foreign people are not to be taken to be an desirable alien. It is for this expense railway been laid and huge sums spent on the country. I fear of people that class are bound to trouble with half tamed natives and out of their rights. Money extra still to control them. Is British taxpayer, proprietor East Africa, content that he should see his own country be handed to aliens? Have no colonies our own race? Country being settled almost exclusively by desirable British colonial subjects. Legislation here against public opinion, especially that who know this country, against this arbitrary proceeding and consequent stamping, bright future of country.

For the rest there is little to be said. Sir Harry Johnston has raised his protest from the East African point of view. Mr. Lucien Wolf from the Jewish standpoint. But generally speaking the English papers are quite content to regard this country, with the millions of expenditure, as simply in for the capture of the outcasts from Europe.

The Manchester Guardian draws attention to the "International Freedmen Association," and says its principles and aims were of a Socialistic character, and under its auspices white Aborigines were to be settled along the slopes of Mount Kenya in happy oblivion of the ills of the world they had quitted. Unfortunately they were to be taken on those of the one they were going to. The first object target quarrelled, as is customary, before arriving at their destination, those remaining content to quarrel with each other and with their coloured neighbours, individualistic rhinoceroses and other wild animals set themselves against the scheme, as Sir Harry Johnston suggests, and finally the community came to an end in August, 1904, when the last of the remaining colonists about the soil of Africa from off their feet, phrasing even potentates to pack-herds and the society of the European proletariat to the latter.

The South Wales Daily News—A settlement of Indians, a well-conducted Helweg would not necessarily be objectionable, but there would be a very vigorous outcry against converting these fair and costly territories into dumping ground for miserable refugees from Russia and Central Europe.

Referring to Dr. Hertzka's "mad scheme," the Newcastle Chronicle says: "It might be thought that such a scheme is hardly encouraging, and the Scottish in its usual non-committal style says: "As yet all the proposals are of such a nebulous character that it is difficult to formulate any very definite arguments one way or the other such as might justify the pronouncement of a decided opinion."

With delightful frankness, the Nottingham Guardian says: "There would be a romantic interest attaching to such a policy, which would attract to it the eye of the world, which as most of the nations of Europe are anxious to get rid of the Jews, while neither England nor the United States is willing to receive them, a successful Jewish colony in Africa would be regarded with general satisfaction." And this, from the Yorkshire Herald, is somewhat refreshing: "It is from this vast Ghetto [Europe: chiefly Russia] that the outflow of pauper aliens spreads all over Europe." "Apart altogether, however, from questions of Russian chicanery, there can be no doubt of the need for providing a refuge for homeless Jews who are not afforded to wait for the success of the Zionists. And that, if not apparently East Africa is good enough for them."

The London Daily Chronicle makes a most able and shrewd analysis of the Jewish national concentration in Russia, and his strongest desire is for a diminution of the number of Russian Jews, it does not appear why those who favour a British African half way house to Palestine should have any reason to fear his disposition. And the Times writes of the same country observes that "there are still some Zionists who consider that energy should first have been directed to the colonization of Palestine." To which all we in East Africa agree.

The Jewish Chronicle says: "But we must cling to Zion. We must keep steadily before our eyes the old way towards 'If I forget thee, O Jerusalem, let my right hand forget my cunning.' If I prefer not Jerusalem above my chief joy." And East Africans have no objection.

The Globe gives its wholesome fact: "The truth is, these schemes are mooted in the interest of the least desirable Jews, both of this country and of the Continent, those of whom their cultured and prosperous brethren are naturally not greatly proud, and whose intellectual and moral status they are as naturally anxious to raise."

Writing on "The Promised Land" the Daily Chronicle, which has apparently taken to heart the Jewish question, says: "Dr. Herz read a telegram from a congress of the representative Jews in Palestine now in session to this congress in exile. Dr. Herz's answer was the Zionist Congress sends greetings, wishing that they would soon be united in the Holy Land. Up rose the congress, and cheered its title hoarse—the peace had been made."

The Field asks: "But will the Jews, in whom the trading instinct has been so fully developed, settle down to agricultural pursuits in conditions which must differ as widely as possible from the conditions of the life to which they and their ancestors have become accustomed for generation after generation? If the scheme takes definite shape it will be both a bold and an interesting experiment, in which early failures would have, it is to be feared, to be accepted as the almost inevitable stepping stones to eventual success."

The Daily Graphic has this remark to make:—"There are already Indian and Italian Colonies in British East Africa, and neither has asked for an enjoys autonomous rights. Why, then, should the Jews be only to Polish Jews? The effect would be given to perpetuate the foreign character of the Colony, and that is certainly not desirable."

The Reynold's Newspaper, which prides itself on its motto: "Government of the people, by the people, for the people," perpetrates the old error that the country affected is in Uganda, and the Daily Telegraph's correspondent drops into poetry, thuswise:

Angels all, Zionism, councils will help,
I need space implicit trust to Providence.
Love slumbers not, God will not sleep,
Watching, untired, over Israel.

The Saturday Review says: "The experiment will be remarkable in Jewish history," and the East Anglian Daily Times becomes farcically parochial, when it says:—"The port of the new settlement would be Mombasa, and a picture of Kilindi, the harbour at Mombasa, reveals a very striking likeness to Felixstowe, viewed from the same angle, 'the pier,' the low cliffs, and the Point being reproduced almost exactly."

The Birmingham Daily Mail thinks that East Africans "at any rate should have some say in a matter of such momentous importance to the land of their adoption, and the East London Observer says: "As far as information goes, in the sphere of influence" offered to the Zionists leaders, there are neither good nor precious stones. What, then, its value to the Jew?"

The Leeds Mercury has the following to report: "The land should hold its promise there may be some difficulty in eventually inducing the settlers once more to turn their faces northwards to Jerusalem," and the Newcastle Chronicle suggests that "Zionists may be invited to look before long."

The Cork Constitution gives the matter in a nutshell when it says: "The modern Jew is a trader and not an agriculturist, and continues: "The very remarkable letter of Mr. Delamere to the Secretary of the Interior, published recently, one gathers that emigration of Jews from Russia to anywhere would be regarded by the authorities as a thing worth encouraging."

The Star calls it "A Zionist Paradise on the Uganda Railway," the Yorkshire Daily Post, in another issue, welcomes the scheme as one calculated to relieve the pressure of alien immigration to Great Britain, and the Times gives its opinion in the following words:

If the chosen site of the new State is anywhere in Africa, it will gravitate towards Cape Town, Durban, Mombasa, perhaps even northwards to Egypt. If Palestine is chosen, they will drift to the great towns of the East. They will go into business, and will, after the mannered, their race, seek the centres of commerce and wealth. If the community has the time to wait for a transference which becomes doubtful many will break away and try their fortune in the very lands from which they were sent into great cost. And they, too, why should they not become citizens in the full sense in countries in which they are welcomed as such? Why should they be treated as aliens, as transients, as they are not treated as such? It may be well to let the experiment of a Jewish colony in East Africa be carried out, though it will certainly cost much money, even if it does not succeed from the Jewish point of view, as the letter shows which we publish to-day from the Zionists had better stand over—perhaps for ever.

Let it be for ever!

OPENING OF MR. A. M. JEEVANES MOSQUE AT MOMBASA.

This magnificent building was opened yesterday morning with great ceremony by Mr. Shakh, Isak Moola, Imam, in the presence of a vast concourse of Mahomedans, including the Liwali and all the leading persons of the Bhora, Arab and Swahili communities. The structure was illuminated the previous evening, and all the lanes leading thereto were decorated with flags and palm leaves, and lit up with a profusion of candles. Two Swahili bands tied with each other in discoursing music appropriate to the occasion, and the place was visited by nearly the whole of Mombasa—true believer and infidel. Yesterday evening a grand free dinner was given to all the Bhora community and to the leading persons of all the other Mahomedan races in Mombasa at the Mosque, who came to partake.

This building, which is one of three stories, is situated on the new corner in the Pymarungu quarter of the town, is one of the buildings that strike the eye on entering the harbour. It has taken two years and a half in construction, and the whole cost has been borne by Mr. A. M. Jeevanjee, whose numerous benefices to the town of Mombasa are well known. The lower portion is the prayer room, and above is a huge hall, meeting-room. The decorations, both inside and out, are in the Moorish style, and are artistic to a degree, and the building adds much to the amenities of a not particularly handsome town.

MOMBASA PROVINCIAL COURT.

(Before His Honor, Judge Carter.)

LOBO STILL IN TROUBLE.

It will be remembered that a Goanese, J. Lobo, was sentenced to one month's imprisonment for fraudulent disposal of the value of one shilling. A sequel to that case happened on Wednesday when Ismael Joozanjee, a contractor in the original Criminal case, sued J. Lobo for a sum of Rs. 20. The amount due by him to the plaintiff for loughs bought for the firm at the time the criminal offence was committed. The present plaintiff produced Lobo's promissory note for the amount, and swore that neither amount, nor any part of it had been paid to him by the defendant. The plaintiff and the Judge gave judgment for the plaintiff for the amount and court costs. The plaintiff then heard that defendant intended to ascend to India by the steamer leaving the next day. The Judge ordered Inspector Sheikh Abdulla to see that he did not do so.

A LESSON FOR THE DHORE.

On Wednesday, Captain C. Langhin, 4th Battalion, K. A. R., sent his shoebag, Khairan Fernand, for the value of a dress shirt sent returned to him from washing.

Fernand stated that the Friday before he washed his clothes in the wash-house, and amongst other articles, three dress shirts. Last Tuesday the clothes were returned to him, and he found that the articles were not his. He was very angry, and was of an inferior quality and did not belong to him. He complained to the defendant and the latter heard that defendant intended to return to India by the steamer leaving the next day. He ordered Inspector Sheikh Abdulla to see that he did not do so.

Defendant's only excuse was that he could not find the shirt, and judgment was given for plaintiff for Rs. 4. The defendant brought the money Rs. 4. The defendant brought the money Rs. 4 and paid it over to the plaintiff in the wash-house.

Captain Langhin asked the judge if he would be allowed to place the amount in the wash-house, and he was, of course, at once agreed, and this was done. The defendant also paid the dhore Rs. 1, the balance due for washing.

SATURDAY NIGHT SHOOTING.

GOANESSE CHARGED WITH ATTEMPT TO MURDER.

Last Monday a Goanese, Gild de Souza, was charged with the attempt to murder a Goanese, A. Fernandez, by shooting at him with a double-barrelled gun the previous Saturday night.

The complainant, A. A. Fernandez, a clerk in the W. office, called on Gild de Souza Saturday evening at 9 p.m. and Mr. Carlos was at dinner when Gild de Souza came on to see him in the office.

Magistrate—Have you ever heard him swearing on the roof before?

Complainant—I have often heard him employing himself on the roof—what he calls singing—never swearing before.

Cross-examined by the accused, complainant continued: I have no enmity with you or anyone else. I have never seen you since that night on Saturday.

Magistrate then formally charged the accused with the attempt to murder the complainant, and sentenced him to 12 months imprisonment.

On Saturday evening at about 9.30 I was upstairs and I saw my countryman taking the gun. I went down and saw him.

PAMELA'S HUSBAND.

BY ADLINE SERGANT. (Author of "The Story of a Pleasant South," &c.)

Times of India.

As a ship's doctor, I, Robert Urquhart, have known some curious experiences, and some many kinds of nervous women, some of them dyspeptic and indigestive, others, perhaps the reverse. But of all the women I ever saw, none struck me so as the interesting lady I should say, as follows:—Mrs. Verinder, as I should say, whom I first perceived her on the deck of a great steamer on her way to England from Singapore.

I did not know her then as "Pamela," which I did not even know her name. She was not seen with me during the earlier period of our voyage; she came on board, at Singapore, where we stopped to load, and to take up a few extra passengers. I took her quite a young girl as she came towards me from the long white deck; she had on a dress entirely in black, with a big black hat and feather on her slightly tilted head. She was small and slight, but held herself with a bearing, with that suggestion of alertness and bird-like grace, which we more customarily see in American than in English girls. In fact, I took her to be an American, at first partly because of her clothes, which although black, were Parisian in cut and somewhat suggestive of the characteristics of that city. I was, however, your most remember that my life on board ship had made me rather more aware of the characteristics of the women of that city. From that I might observe, have been I believe, a great deal, as I found out, but she had been abroad for some time and had got her frocks made in Paris.

But it was her face, and not her clothes, that attracted me. What a dainty nose, what little face it was! The finely outlined eyebrows, the grey eyelids that had a trick of curving up with sudden brightness, the brown eyes beneath them almost disappeared, the soft pink cheeks, the delicate, slightly retreating chin, the deeply shadowed, given an immediate suggestion of a kitten's face full of mischief and mischief. Yet when she looked into the dark eyes, yet when she looked towards me with sadness and might even have been the extreme of sorrow and of joy.

She came up to me in a perfectly mannered, straightforward way, and said: "Dinner Urquhart, I think?" "I do not," and she continued in a rapid, but well-modulated voice, "I thought very much of you. My mother and I have just come to the Cape, and I really do not know just who she is fit to travel or not. I would like to stay at Alexandria for the next boat, but she says she is longing for England. Would you be so very kind as to come and see me, and tell me whether you think she ought to go?"

"She has been ill?" I asked, as I followed her to the remote corner of the saloon, where she had established the invalid. "She has been ill," I said, as I followed her to the remote corner of the saloon, where she had established the invalid. "She has been ill," I said, as I followed her to the remote corner of the saloon, where she had established the invalid.

Mrs. Verinder raised her head, from her cushions, and bowed slightly. I saw at once that she was of a different type from her daughter. She was much taller and larger in every way, and had been an extremely beautiful woman, but her aquiline features were wasted and worn, and that with distressing and great, that it was with difficulty that she answered the simple questions I put to her. I did not, however, think of any dangerous state of health; and I answered without quite knowing what she thought, that she had been very weak, and that she had been very weak, and that she had been very weak, and that she had been very weak.

"I'll make her do that," Dr. Urquhart, "the pretty daughter warmly. You'll do all I tell you, won't you, mammy dear?" "But when we had her in the saloon, she placed her hand upon my arm with some seriousness of manner. You are sure it is not your last moments? You don't think she is seriously ill?" "Certainly not. Please do not alarm yourself about her. I think it may be all the good in the world to do her all the good in the world. Oh, thank you. And you will always tell me what to do—did I not say any reason for alarm?" "If you are so sure, I will tell you that there will be none of it. I will tell you that there will be none of it. I will tell you that there will be none of it. I will tell you that there will be none of it."

"Not Miss Verinder, please," she said, "but Mrs. Lawrence." "The child-like, innocent girl with the innocent brow and the innocent outline of face, was a married woman; I was so sure that I could only stand out an apology as she moved away. But she looked scarcely more than sixteen!

I attended Mrs. Verinder for the next few days, but the lady was of the Mediterranean type, and I must have seen her at least six or seven times. She was soon well enough to come on deck, and she was soon well enough to come on deck, and she was soon well enough to come on deck. She was soon well enough to come on deck, and she was soon well enough to come on deck, and she was soon well enough to come on deck.

"My poor girl!" the mother said, sitting following with her eyes the income figure. "She had moved about the deck. She had moved about the deck. She had moved about the deck. She had moved about the deck. She had moved about the deck."

"Lawrence looks pale, but quite healthy," I said, in my professional tone. "I would not be surprised if she were to speak of it to you. I would not be surprised if she were to speak of it to you. I would not be surprised if she were to speak of it to you."

"Was that long ago?" I asked, rather anxiously. "Two years," said Mrs. Verinder, looking at her daughter with her handskerchiefs. "The poor child! To be a widow before she is twenty, and to be a widow before she is twenty, and to be a widow before she is twenty."

"It is true," I said, "that Pamela was not allowed to see her husband's dead body, but she was so frightened and distressed, that she was so frightened and distressed, that she was so frightened and distressed, that she was so frightened and distressed."

"Are you sure that she is not right?" I asked, with a simple question, but it seemed to weigh a shaft straight into Mrs. Verinder's heart. She turned red, and gasped, and lay back in her chair, as if she were unable to stand. I sprang up, and called out to her, and called out to her, and called out to her."

"I'll bring her to you, will you try to be quiet and do everything," he said. "She has been forgotten by you," I said. "I have forgotten you," I said. "I have forgotten you," I said. "I have forgotten you," I said.

"I'll bring her to you, will you try to be quiet and do everything," he said. "She has been forgotten by you," I said. "I have forgotten you," I said. "I have forgotten you," I said.

of a rapid, dispassionate-looking object on the floor—the unfortunate fellow who had come to lie on board the ship at Alexandria. A stowaway always meets with some rough treatment; but in this case, it was so rough that it was really not so staid as the man's looks. "Hold hard, my man," I said. "I think you'd better give him to me."

"They drew back somewhat disconcerted; and kneeling beside the prostrate figure, which was now rigid and motionless, I felt the man's pulse and examined his eye-ball. There was no doubt about it—he was dead. I gave orders that he should be interred in an empty coffin in the quietest place that I could find, but it occurred to me that perhaps he would recover, for the constant noise and the blowing of a great steamer are no favourable to a patient suffering from brain disease."

But as I looked to the man's wife, I was struck by the fact that he longer believed in the possibility of a recovery for repeat only one word. No indication was his utterance as I listened to her daughter's history. I was afraid I did not hear much of her own. I only listened to her daughter's history. I was afraid I did not hear much of her own. I only listened to her daughter's history."

"Pamela!" Pamela! Pamela! "Would he never come back to you?" "I would not be surprised if she were to speak of it to you. I would not be surprised if she were to speak of it to you. I would not be surprised if she were to speak of it to you."

"I would not be surprised if she were to speak of it to you. I would not be surprised if she were to speak of it to you. I would not be surprised if she were to speak of it to you. I would not be surprised if she were to speak of it to you. I would not be surprised if she were to speak of it to you."

"I would not be surprised if she were to speak of it to you. I would not be surprised if she were to speak of it to you. I would not be surprised if she were to speak of it to you. I would not be surprised if she were to speak of it to you. I would not be surprised if she were to speak of it to you."

"I would not be surprised if she were to speak of it to you. I would not be surprised if she were to speak of it to you. I would not be surprised if she were to speak of it to you. I would not be surprised if she were to speak of it to you. I would not be surprised if she were to speak of it to you."

"I would not be surprised if she were to speak of it to you. I would not be surprised if she were to speak of it to you. I would not be surprised if she were to speak of it to you. I would not be surprised if she were to speak of it to you. I would not be surprised if she were to speak of it to you."

"Take me to him," she said, opening her arms as though she wished to clasp him to her. I took her to the man's room, but she was so weak that she could not stand. I carried her to the man's room, but she was so weak that she could not stand. I carried her to the man's room, but she was so weak that she could not stand."

"They were angry, poor things, for the little time of their reunion. James Lawrence, who had suffered for the sins of others rather than for his own, confessed that he had been led by the representations of Mrs. Verinder to suppose Pamela's report of his death; he had been deceived, but he had not been deceived by her. She had not been deceived by her. She had not been deceived by her."

It all happened years ago. Pamela had been forgotten by the husband and love of her earlier days. I think that my first charm was her objectless love, my wish that she was a time at least. I had restored him to her. She loved me for this, even as she loved her mother. I had restored him to her. She loved me for this, even as she loved her mother."

"Patience! Patience! Patience!" "Would he never come back to you?" "I would not be surprised if she were to speak of it to you. I would not be surprised if she were to speak of it to you. I would not be surprised if she were to speak of it to you."

"I would not be surprised if she were to speak of it to you. I would not be surprised if she were to speak of it to you. I would not be surprised if she were to speak of it to you. I would not be surprised if she were to speak of it to you. I would not be surprised if she were to speak of it to you."

"I would not be surprised if she were to speak of it to you. I would not be surprised if she were to speak of it to you. I would not be surprised if she were to speak of it to you. I would not be surprised if she were to speak of it to you. I would not be surprised if she were to speak of it to you."

"I would not be surprised if she were to speak of it to you. I would not be surprised if she were to speak of it to you. I would not be surprised if she were to speak of it to you. I would not be surprised if she were to speak of it to you. I would not be surprised if she were to speak of it to you."

"I would not be surprised if she were to speak of it to you. I would not be surprised if she were to speak of it to you. I would not be surprised if she were to speak of it to you. I would not be surprised if she were to speak of it to you. I would not be surprised if she were to speak of it to you."

SOME IMPROVEMENTS.

We hear that a considerable order for cattle has been placed at Home on behalf of the local Administration, and although the order is not of sufficient dimensions to satisfy one of our Nairobi correspondents, who has consistently advocated that this course be adopted, still it is a move in the right direction, and an earnest of what is to come.

The Military Stores at Entebbe, and the Collectorate of Gondokoro and Jinja are "public warehouses" for the purposes of the Uganda Firearms Regulations, 1896.

Mr. A. H. Watson has been appointed a Magistrate of the 2nd class in Uganda.

The jurisdiction of Mr. Charles Yorke in the Kampala District has been extended.

The marriage district of Teita has been divided—Mwatale and Taveta.

The Kurfel had a record trip to Aden on her last journey, covering the distance from Mombasa in less than five days.

M. Emile Collas has returned from the Benadir Coast.

Mr. von Bellinghan goes up country to-day.

The Cape Times gives two excellent pictures of the new Floating Dock at Dar-es-Salaam, showing the Jubu inside.

Coaching and goods traffic on the Uganda Railway has gone the right way to work in this respect. It divides the trees suitable to Rhodesia into three classes: (1) extra-tropical trees without wasting (2) extra-tropical trees with wasting; (3) tropical trees. These last discuss-

By, and much information as to what is possible, may be gleaned from his pages. The climatic conditions are very fully dealt with, and the descriptive passages are so good as to give one a clear idea of the country, and this is of importance to the visiting companies. Besides, now that so much timber has been cut to feed the factory there is a splendid opportunity of afforesting on a scientific basis. Mr. Hitchens gives notes on his native trees, which are of great interest.

Without committing ourselves in any way to the opinions expressed in the remarkable article by "Labor omnia vincit" on "The Retardation of East Africa and Uganda," in another column, we can say it is written by a man whose long and intelligent experience of the country should permit him to know what he is writing about.

The mail for Lamu, Aden, India and Europe, by the Pattala, closes to-day at 1 and 1:00 p.m.

Mr. and Mrs. Boltho and Mr. Wilson Fitzgerald returned to Nairobi from the Lake to Tuesday, and are staying in that town for a few days. They are making a tour of Africa.

At Kilimaindo on the 17th August at 2:52 a.m., according to the Deutsche Ost Afrikanische Zeitung, two shocks of earthquake were felt. The first was short, but the second shook all the glass work in the place.

A large consignment of zebras have recently passed through the tsetse belt in German East Africa unharmed.

Mr. Alexander Whyte, F.R.S., who has contributed so much to the study of the fauna and flora of British East and Central Africa, is retiring from the position of Director of the Scientific and Agricultural Department in the first named of these two Protectorates.

Mr. Whyte has just returned from his tour of Africa, and it is entirely due to his exertions that what was at one time nothing more than mere waste land has now been transformed into a high state of floriculture.

During one of his visits to Nyasaland, continues our contemporary Mr. Whyte made a valuable collection of the fauna and flora of the Masaka and Nyika Mountains, which was subsequently presented to the Natural History Museum at South Kensington. His investigations in the little-known country to the north of Lake Nyassa resulted in the formation of one of the largest collections of natural history specimens ever got together by a single individual. The laborious and energetic naturalist has been rewarded by the Zoological Society, who presented him with their silver medal, an honor that is bestowed but rarely.

Lord Cranborne, in reply to a question by Mr. H. J. Wilson, says the approximate areas and populations of the Protectorates of East Africa, Uganda, British Central Africa, and Somaliland are as follows: British Central Africa Protectorate: Area, 350,000 square miles; population, 4,000,000, including 5,000 Asiatics and 450 Europeans and Eurasians. Uganda Protectorate: Area, 80,000 square miles; population, natives 4,000,000. Europeans about 300. British Central Africa: Area, 42,217 square miles; population, native. This has been very roughly estimated at figures ranging from 4,000,000 to 4,500,000. A very recent return estimates it at 736,724. Europeans 538. Somaliland: Area, 68,000 square miles, population 500,000 (chiefly nomadic). The estimates of the native population must, in the absence of anything approaching a census, be received as in the main conjectural.

The Mombasa Court-house has now put on a complete appearance and smiles benevolently on all our sundry, sun and sea, from its four clock faces.

It is now no longer necessary "if you want to know the time" to ask the hard-worked policeman. A glance upwards will show you the time, and you will not be troubled by the White Father's resthouse, the Mombasa Cathedral, the C. M. S. High School, and the quarters for the Supt. P. W. D.

A Conversation and Dance in the Goan reading evening last was attended by all the Goan community. It was in honour of the birthday of the King and Queen of Portugal, whose loyal subjects the Goanese are. Toasts and dancing were the order of the evening. The Rev. Father Schmidt gave the closing toast of the Goan Reading Room, and a very pleasant night was brought to a close. We have excellent reports of the proceedings by Mr. the Secretary, Mr. Gomez de Mello, which we regret came too late for publication in to-day's issue.

The whole effect of the widening and improvement of Trully line road and its handsome buildings including the Court-house, Grand Hotel, etc. up to the P. W. Mr. Rosler of the German Consulate, returned from Voi on Monday after leaving his wife and young child at Dabita. The latter has been here since we hope the change will do her good.

Mr. Maclean to be Acting Collector at Naku.

A rather sad sequel to Trooper Van Vauren's volunteering for service in Somaliland with the Burger Contingent is contained in the report from Pretoria that on his return he shot his sweetheart, Miss Opperman, and immediately afterwards committed suicide by shooting himself. It seems she had refused to have anything to do with him as she has, during his absence, transferred her affections to an Englishman. She is expected to recover.

The Pattala which leaves this afternoon for Aden, will call at P. and O. boat, at that port. She will also call at Kilimaindo, and take 500 coolies on to Uganda, India.

Mr. Humphrey of the East Africa Protectorate, and Mr. Humphrey are here.

Welcome to Mr. R. J. Church, district engineer of the Uganda Railway, and his bride.

Two UNFORTUNATE EUROPEANS. G. Johnson and B. Brotherton, Englishmen, were sent up to-day under the Vagabond Act to the Central Prison, Nairobi. Their story was that they had left South Africa about 4 months ago to try and get work with the South African expedition. They managed to elude the officials and land at Mombasa where they approached the Office Commanding with the object of getting employment. They were told to go to the next office, but they did not advance some 3 months ago. As they could not get anything to do they crossed the border and came to Mombasa on as far as the way leads to Durban as their money would take them. 94 Mombasa, and found themselves stranded. They arrived here on Saturday by the German mail and proceeded to Mr. Mims and place their case before him. He sent them to Mr. Tritton, and the latter sent them to Mr. Murray who went to the Police Station, where they were allowed to remain.

AN EDITORIAL NOTE.

On another page will be found the report of the swearing-in of a new Judge for the High Court of East Africa. We have now three Judges in the place of two and we claim to have had a very considerable share in bringing about this necessary increase in the number of Judges. For part of a section of the public this declaration will go very far to re-ignite any want or confidence which may have been having hanging in the balance. Probably no Judge in the British Empire has been more severely criticized than has Judge Hamilton and if he can pass through such criticism unscathed then of his future career there need be little fear. The expression of opinion that Judge Bonham Carter would not allow personal abuse of unfair comment to affect his due observance of the solemn oath which had just been administered is the expression of the opinions of all right minded people and Judge Bonham Carter may be assured that no personal abuse of any kind or of a year is not a proper wage for the position of a Judge of H. M. High Court of East Africa. It is a recognized principle that Judges' salaries should be on a most liberal scale and from time immemorial one of the reasons for this has been that Judges might be placed in a position as far as possible above temptation. A Judge should be so placed as to be able to keep up the high position he occupies without being overburdened with anxiety as to how his finances will allow him. It may be presumed that one day some at least of our Judges in Africa will have the care of a family to which it will all its additional expenses. It is reasonable for the Government to expect a Judge to keep up his position and rear and educate children on their own. Even in Europe where every thing is at hand the salary of a Judge is not so great as it can be done in a country where expenses are threefold greater. This matter needs the immediate attention of the Government. Now, we will refer to Judge Hamilton's address as reported in another page.

Another cause for congratulation amongst ourselves is that we had the advantage of procuring before your honour for the past two years a most excellent Judge in the person of an official member of the Bar, Mr. J. W. Carter, who has been in place since the 1st of January 1907.

Judge Carter responded in a few well chosen words. He drew attention to the fact that our laws were not young and the Bench was a young one probably the youngest Bench of the Empire. He said the traditions of the High Court of East Africa were not of long standing but they were such that he felt it a high honour to be a member of this Court and that he would endeavour to follow the traditions of those who were before him. He thanked the Judges and the gentlemen of the Bar for their kind expressions.

The East Africa Handbook gives the following record of Judge Bonham Carter's career:

James Carter, Arthur Thomas Esq., Winchester College and Trinity College Cambridge, a 1890, called to the Bar at Lincoln's Inn, Barrister at Law, Clerk of the Peace, Temporary Judge of the County Court (temporary), The Hampshire and Dorset County Council, Chairman of Social and Rural Dept., Acting Town Clerk, Johannesburg, 1897; Principal Assistant Magistrate, Transvaal, 1898; Magistrate, East Africa Protectorate, 1900; Acting Town Magistrate, Mombasa, May, 9 1900.

The defendant appealed from the learned Magistrate's order on the 23rd of February 1907, and on the 27th of the same month the learned Magistrate gave judgment in favour of the plaintiff and against the defendant in the said civil case.

these opinions expressed and in support of this position we quote the learned Judge again: "nothing is more welcome than publicity and an honest criticism of all judicial proceedings." This declaration from our Principal Judge though perhaps hardly necessary is nevertheless good to read and if by chance our Principal Judge may have, unwittingly, increased in an aggressive feeling on the part of a section of the public this declaration will go very far to re-ignite any want or confidence which may have been having hanging in the balance. Probably no Judge in the British Empire has been more severely criticized than has Judge Hamilton and if he can pass through such criticism unscathed then of his future career there need be little fear. The expression of opinion that Judge Bonham Carter would not allow personal abuse of unfair comment to affect his due observance of the solemn oath which had just been administered is the expression of the opinions of all right minded people and Judge Bonham Carter may be assured that no personal abuse of any kind or of a year is not a proper wage for the position of a Judge of H. M. High Court of East Africa. It is a recognized principle that Judges' salaries should be on a most liberal scale and from time immemorial one of the reasons for this has been that Judges might be placed in a position as far as possible above temptation. A Judge should be so placed as to be able to keep up the high position he occupies without being overburdened with anxiety as to how his finances will allow him. It may be presumed that one day some at least of our Judges in Africa will have the care of a family to which it will all its additional expenses. It is reasonable for the Government to expect a Judge to keep up his position and rear and educate children on their own. Even in Europe where every thing is at hand the salary of a Judge is not so great as it can be done in a country where expenses are threefold greater. This matter needs the immediate attention of the Government. Now, we will refer to Judge Hamilton's address as reported in another page.

YACHTS FOR THE LAKE.

Though Mr. Ainsworth has only been a few months at Naivasha, he has won things up considerably. This lake site resort promises to turn out a regular Coney Island. Mr. Ralph Seymour, to whom much of the popularity of Naivasha as a holiday resort is due, is adding three large stone bedrooms to the Rift Valley Hotel to accommodate the ever increasing number of visitors. This lake site resort is one of the greatest which can be done in a country where expenses are threefold greater. This matter needs the immediate attention of the Government. Now, we will refer to Judge Hamilton's address as reported in another page.

SHORT STORY.

WITHOUT PRECEDENT.

Young Beckwith had sworn, the day before, when ordered aboard the destroyer Lizard; but now, alone in the tiny cabin with Lieutenant-Commander W. Marker, he felt more like praying. The time was just a hour short of noon. The five glasses in the cabin, and the deck under lock quivered with the vibration of the engines; for the long funneled, sinister vessel was steaming ahead at sixteen knots.

"You were a fool to come aboard here!" said Marker.

His bloodshot eyes were fixed on his junior, and his thin, clean-shaven face was white as a plaster mask. Beckwith swallowed hard and forced a smile to his lips.

"What for, com'nd'r? I do?" he asked.

"The admiral does not know that you and I are not on friendly terms, and even if he did, this would hardly be the time for him to remember it."

Marker continued to stare across the narrow table without so much as lifting his eyes. Beckwith, who had long duty aboard the destroyer had proved the undoing of the commander's nervous temperament. The everlasting jangling, tinkling, throbbing, and rushing of the narrow craft, and the awful responsibility were, surely enough to unbalance any one save a man of wood.

"I don't care," he said. "I've got a record against this class of vessel, even in times of peace; and now, with the anxiety and excitement of war, I don't care."

"And now the cruiser slackens down and swung head on to the Lizard. The hearts of all the watchers aboard were attracted by the sight of a man with a look of desperate determination on his face, saying a word in the ear of Burns. At the same moment the commander turned to the junior.

"We've made a mistake," said he.

"It doesn't matter. Crack on a bit more, Mr. Dikpa, and we'll be back in six minutes."

Now here was madness worse than before, and the best destroyer between New York and Newfoundland as good as shot already. The five glasses in the cabin, and the deck under lock quivered with the vibration of the engines; for the long funneled, sinister vessel was steaming ahead at sixteen knots.

"I'll just slip below and say a word to the admiral," said he.

Ten seconds later the speed of the destroyer perceptibly slackened; but Marker did not notice it. All his attention had been fixed on the cruiser aboard which he already pictured his American friend Walton offering him a couple of little American cigars.

SOME IMPROVEMENTS.

We hear that a considerable order for cattle has been placed at Home on behalf of the local administration, and although the order may not be of sufficient dimensions to satisfy one of our Nairobi correspondents, who has consistently advocated that the cattle in the right direction, and an earnest of what is to come. The cattle are to be used for breeding purposes, probably with the object, by means of crossing, of improving the present native stock.

This is good news indeed, but there is another direction in which our Administration might with advantage turn its attention, and that towards tree planting. A good deal of useless timber in the Forests is now being cut to supply fuel for the Uganda Railway and for private purposes. Cannot whole portions of these forests be cleared and planted with good and serviceable wood? Then again could not the land laws be so revised that instead of the regulation by which ten per cent of the present woods are being retained for every tree cut down an imported tree be planted which would prove of importance to the country as it progresses? This is merely a suggestion inspired by a little book, Mr. D. E. Hutchesin's report on the "Matopoo Park and Trees suitable for Planting in Southern Rhodesia," about which the Bulawayo Chronicle says:

Hutchesin is very keen upon the experimental arboretum, and there is no doubt that the Rhodes Trustees have gone the right way in this respect. He divides the trees suitable to Rhodesia into three classes: (1) extra-tropical trees without season; (2) extra-tropical trees with seasons; (3) tropical trees. These will be discussed fully by and much information as to what is suitable, may be gleaned from his pages.

Without committing ourselves in any way to the opinions expressed in the remarkable article by "Labor omnia vincit" on "The Retardation of East Africa and Uganda," in another column, we can say it is written by a man whose long and intelligent experience of the country should permit him to know what he is writing about.

Men and Matters.

The mosquito has been getting in his headily work judging by the amount of sickness in town again. One of the particularly objectionable kind, which carries a large stock of malarial germs about with it, is that striped like a zebra, but somewhat smaller.

We don't know the exact number of varieties of mosquitoes in existence, but we think as we write we have them all in our bungalow. It is only a matter of time that the bush at the end of Macdonald Terrace was again cut?

Probably they have been driven in, frightened by the discordant sounds emanating from a band—save the mark!—in the neighbourhood. Given a number of Swahilis each with a brass or reed instrument, a big drum and two others, and then let them play as loudly as possible, each his own particular set of sounds, without regard to each other, and you have the most discordant row imaginable. This is our band.

There is also a mellow-sounding bell which strikes the hours and half hours in pleasing contrast to the harsh, rasping gongs of the court-room clocks.

Arthur Nelstone, a well-known entertainer in the South, has reached Umali on his way North via the East Coast for his intends touring as far as Cairo.

Mr. Costello arrived in Mombasa on Monday from Nakuru and returned Tuesday's up mixed taking his wife and daughter with him.

Mr. Bosler of the German Consulate, returned from Voi on Monday after leaving on the birthday of his child at Dabita.

Mr. Bromley returned to the coast on Monday after a short shooting trip at Manga. We note he secured some heads.

Judge Cator, Mr. Barth, and Mr. Ewart were passengers by Tuesday's up mixed. They are bound for Nairobi to attend sessions.

The same train took Capt. Bruce and an officer of H. M. S. Partridge to Elieminta on a shooting trip.

Another batch of about 50 Swahili laborers left by Tuesday's train for work on the tunnel. There seems to be no difficulty in getting Swahili labor to replace the Indian coolies, and the former are found to be superior men. This is a good thing, as Mombasa is flooded with unemployed of this class, who generally gravitate to the Police Court and thence to the jail.

Capt. McGaskill, the I. G. P., and Mr. Downing, of the Treasury, arrived by Wednesday's train after a lengthy absence. They are glad to note that both are looking fit.

Messrs. Wilson, A. T. M., Maloney, A. E., and the Commercial and Accounts Department of the Uganda Railway, left by Thursday's up-mixed to attend the farewell dinner to be given by Mr. Rawson, the retiring, General Manager of the Railway, at Nairobi.

Dr. P. H. Ross, who arrived last week from England is appointed Bacteriologist for the East Africa Protectorate. He left for Nairobi Tuesday's up-mixed, and after a short stay there intends going on to Uganda.

Mr. Deeg, accompanied by Messrs. Hooker and Edgell, were passengers as far as Voi by Tuesday's train. They intend to continue the Zebra breeding carried on so successfully by Baron Brounart. They took with them 3 stallions, 1 mare and a donkey. All these are for cross-breeding purposes with the Zebra.

Mr. Cairne, Supt. of Telegraphs, is expected here shortly from Nairobi.

The physical features of the town of Mombasa are gradually undergoing a change under the hands of the builder. Amongst others we note the following buildings in course of erection that will be decided.

LIBRARY FOR MOMBASA. The third meeting of those interested in the promotion of the scheme for a public library for Mombasa was held last Sunday morning in the premises of Mr. D. D. Parsons.

A Banquet last evening was the complement to the second meeting, and was held at the residence of Mr. D. D. Parsons.

It was decided that draft rules for the Association be distributed amongst subscribers for their consideration, preparatory to their being discussed at the next meeting, which will be composed of members, who are now being enrolled.

The meeting closed by a vote of thanks to the chairman being unanimously passed, which Judge Cator in a few appropriate words acknowledged.
