Beauty Depends on Sparkling Teeth

Perfect teeth, gleaming bright, are an essential factor of facial beauty. They focus attention and admiration before any other features. They constitute the crown of the smile.

The causes of their sparkling brilliancy lie in the teeth. Proper attention and care of them is the most important thing which brings the smile the most desirable quality and makes the smile the most attractive. It is the key to a happy life. The best teeth are those which are clean, bright, and sparkling. They are the result of a good dental hygiene. A good dentist will clean, polish, and fill your teeth. He will also advise you on the best way to care for them. A good dental hygiene is the key to a happy life. THE USE OF FIRE

In another place the fly may be advancing steadily through an extensive area of bush with low incidence. Under these circumstances, there is little possibility of carrying out the programme of the "wandering game". In a case of this kind, the incidence may be greater to proportion of the area, but the programme of the "wandering game" is not possible in this case.

Picking a Winner at a Race Meeting has nothing on the usual gamble of selecting a good used car

Used car buying under the usual conditions is certainly a great game, and if you like a gamble, we recommend it.

However, if you don't feel like taking a long chance—if you want to be absolutely certain that the used car you buy is in good mechanical condition, is good value and will give you satisfactory service—we can help you.

The technical staff of our Service Department carefully inspects every used car offered for sale through us by our customers.

If a car is not in perfect running order or in good, sound condition, we do not recommend it.

If the figure placed on the car by the owner is higher than we value it, the car is not recommended by us.

When we do endorse a car you may place full reliance on our opinion and recommendation.

We Recommend and offer to-day

NATIVE EDUCATION.

The following article has been contributed by Capt. G. A. Gurney, of the Changus of Southern Rhodesia. It is one of the foremost mental education in the Changus, a large standard of the native mind and a deliberate and methodical investigation of the psychology of the Changus people in particular. It is one of the operations was submitted recently by the Inspector of Schools in the course of his inspection.

It is in Professor Freud that we are indebted for the most adequate explanation of these underlying tendencies in human life. Freud's theory is that the unconscious mind is a storehouse of all the impulses and desires which are repressed by the conscious mind. UNCONSCIOUS WISHES

It is in Professor Freud that we are indebted for the most adequate explanation of these underlying tendencies in human life. Freud's theory is that the unconscious mind is a storehouse of all the impulses and desires which are repressed by the conscious mind.

DREAMS

Freud was the first to attempt a rational explanation of dreams and to show their scientific importance. He has shown that dreams are a kind of wish-fulfillment, although one of the youngest and least of those of the child (the old philosophy). It is possible for the psychologist to find the Freudian theory of dreams here, but the main points are to be derived from the scientific method.

CLASSIFIED INTERESTS.

Psychologists like MacDougall and Freud have done much valuable service to science in classifying the tendencies of human nature (as thus described above).

GENERAL HERTZOG'S POLICY.
General Hertzog has announced a special conference of native and white leaders to discuss the programme for a native policy to be initiated on November 15. It will be recalled that this programme deals with three main areas in respect to the native population: the franchise, native lands and the representation of natives in self-administration. The receipt of his proposals by the native chambers was known when at the Cape native Chamber his suggestions for increasing areas of native land and the training of natives in the premises of self-administration. Criticism of the proposals was found principally in the question of native franchise. Chamber's suggestion on this matter is that the Cape native Chamber should be legally established but that the plan will be taken by the Government. It is to be noted that the rights of the Union will be maintained in what seems to represent native interests. European members of Parliament to represent native persons were disappointed with these proposals mainly because the elimination of the native vote in the Cape which they regarded as an encroachment of the rights of the native people. At the same time, they said they would try to direct to secure representation if the country was divided into two parts in one of which was set up a 'Black Parliament' which should be unconnected with the Union Parliament and should be subject to the Imperial Government. General Hertzog's speech at the opening of the National Conference deals with this point. He states definitely that native vote on native income independent or semi-independent. Native lands and that they must remain under the leadership of the Government of the Union. It is obvious that he could not say otherwise. The expansion of the Union of South Africa into two chambers, one independent would lead to the fragmentation of the white Dominion. The programme for the native policy will be from a policy which will be framed by the Government of the Union without regard to the number and sufficiency of the population. In an extension of the franchise proposed as present carried by the natives in the Cape Province, he finds that an extension of all proposals to other provinces would mean that the white population of the Union, which has been established in the Union. He points that while the normal development of the Cape Province there would be a representation of the native population, in the Union, there would be no representation of the native population in the Union. He suggests that the Cape native Chamber should be legally established but that the plan will be taken by the Government.
