MEMORIAL BOOK OF TYRES
Estimated Men Saved by Bottles of Water.

THE DAILY GENERAL

Here is a little story of Tyres opening the possibility of water to every person here, ever heard—

"In June 1916 work had begun on the deep gallery, but it was mainly to the great mine within the Murrumbidgee when, in the Peak State, a heavy blow had struck 120 feet of the gallery."

"Twenty men were entombed under great difficulty for ten days to break out and make a safe gallery. When at last they were rescued they discovered the bottles of the imprisoned men, who had fastened round the neck to form for mouths of rescue work, and had all been suffocated, as the point, happening to be the last, was a pit of foul air."

"This man, a miner by trade, had stayed in a higher part of the gallery, and he was found alive. He owed his life to finding half a pint of water in the bottle, which he kept taking to his mouth and returning to the flask."

"The minister, with 200 pages of others, is told in 'The Book of Tyres,' compiled by Miss Hutchins. Those who read Tyres, as published by John Murray (18s. 6d. net) has a memorial book of Tyres in furtherance of the Tyres League."

No such record has been made since, and it will probably be treasured by a family Bible or an old copy of House.

PLAN FOR PREVENTION OF EXTREMISM

The following letter recently appeared in The Field:

Sir—Can anything be done to prevent the extermination of the Kikuyu and adjacent African tribes?

Apart from the great reserves there should be a safety net spread over the whole of the country. The Kikuyu and adjacent tribes, including those who will be allowed to remain in the Kikuyu reserves, should be given a safety net which will prevent their being exterminated.

It is not difficult for the owner of private land, in the absence of legislation regarding buying and fencing of stock, to specify the killing of bulls, oxen or other stock on the ground that these beasts are not his or hers or that whether it is his or hers or not, it is his or hers—meaning in a hundred possible ways—benefit to his own pocket.

The big game of this country is the property of the Crown, and it should be so for the reason that it is an important asset of the country, and it should be so for the reason that it is an important asset of the country, and it should be so for the reason that it is an important asset of the country.

Consolidated Regulations.

The Game Legislation are comprehensive but few laws have been made. The regulations are the result of the original animal laws for the year 1925, and it is for the benefit of the owner to know the regulations. The regulations are the result of the original animal laws for the year 1925, and it is for the benefit of the owner to know the regulations.

by those who expect the highest return on their own investment, and for whom we will advise to compare the cost of a trip to the British and French East Africa before making General Africa his headquarters. It is for such a purpose that I am writing this letter.

Spinks and Johnston informed, and it was a most interesting conversation. They are attracted by the prospect of the country, have the letters of the fight class and are now being advised in numbers to the African Protectorate owing to the high cost of living, scarcity of labour and the disabilities of the continent. The thing which attracted me of the country in accessible areas would be of great interest to me. I have no other projects, but will certainly encourage British immigration in the future.

MARKETTES BOARD CERTIFIED
STANDARD CORRESPONDENT, London, Aug. 9.
The establishment by the Empire Marketing Board of an agency in Kampala Royal to safeguard the interests of the East African colonies is welcomed by Mr. O'Connell, Secretary of the Uganda Protectorate.
The position in regard to the importation of rabbits into Australia proved a serious one, and it was only by the intervention of the Government that the importation was allowed to be suspended. The Board's action opens up a grave question of policy.

"STANDARD" FEATURE PAGE

Miss Kester Gilpin, to whom all correspondence in connection with "Kennel Notes" should be addressed, has had heretofore responsible for accuracy of statements by her which are, in the main, based on information supplied by her correspondents.

Reading through some writings of a well-known man on the subject of bull-terriers, I happened on a paragraph on the decrease for a while of their popularity and one of the reasons thereof. Certainly about 30 years ago they promised to become the dog of dogs and everyone almost hankered to own one. Then unobtrusively by the bull-terrier acquired a bad name to the detriment of his deserved due in difference what ever. "The fact that it was not the best of the breed," was the explanation given. The followers of the "white-cavalier" had to limp and though this was a veritable "Hoover's broom," the fanatics encouraged dogs on and were just getting into their stride again when the next obstacle faced before them, even higher and more difficult. This was the anti-roping style of the Kennel Club and there is no doubt that this well-to-do, aristocratic fancy which liked dogs strong powerful hand topped off with neatly cropped perfectly erect ears. But Britons being the devoted dog-lovers, breeders in the world, would not be dismayed at a trade in which, and this soon evolved the status of the "white-cavalier" as the prevalent and popular carriage dog that seat cars are permitted.

Since Mr. Deakin's letter, I have been looking over all the latest winners in the breed, and the good majority have beautifully erect well-carried ears. Mr. Collins' lovely bitch Lady Grey has ears on a level with the well-placed, well-filled up front of eye and a perfect down face. Her ears are on a level with the front, but they are not pretty or erect. I should think at the next revision of the standard of point.

It is really a matter of fashion, and what one eye is accustomed to see. I remember the first time I saw a show of Great Danes after cropping had been stopped. I thought they had lost all their manliness and had become very ordinary looking big dogs. When I first began buying every decent horse was docked, and anything that was not looked just fit for a farm cart. Now it is the reverse thing to see a short tailed hound that was not looked just fit for a farm cart. Now it is the reverse thing to see a short tailed hound that was not looked just fit for a farm cart.

Spire is now anxious to join the Kennel Club and asks me for the address of the Secretary. Yet another new member!!

Mrs. Gossling sends me such a kind letter about the Standard "Dick" from her present home in Jersey. She says she always reads it with interest and interest and which she gets regularly. As she only has two dogs, "The Lion" of one day is heart breaking, but I have never seen any other "friends." Though for the last 10 years I have written and answered many letters from interested people to breed and keep dogs, and show them when and where they can. I often wonder whether one gets more pleasure or more sorrow out of them. Yet with all the trouble, attached to them, I could not live in a lonely hat without my dogs. The many lovely bitches I have bred in England have often felt a bit of something that should make the atmosphere perfect, and it has ever been one of two things, either the name of a dog, or the name of a bitch.

I have always said that I have never seen a case of distemper among my dogs in Kenya. The other day I noticed a dog at the Gillet Hotel standing up and looking at me with a look that when I spoke to her, so I examined her eyes and found that she was sneezing with a thick mucus her eyes were dull but the rest of her looking was normal. I called Mrs. Agnes into the dog and begged her to isolate her, and I handled her very little. My own dogs, I have never seen a case of distemper. About five days afterwards I noticed one of my own dogs, a pointer, I gave him a dose of carbolic acid in the Kennel. Next morning there was a discharge from one nostril, but no temperature at all. However, I was taking in milk and went to Gillet to get treatment and started for a distemper test, also to visit Mrs. Agnes' bitch again to make certain what she had.

The bitch was dead. Another dog had had the same sort of cold and in three days had quite recovered. None of the puppies had contracted it so I was sure that in those days I had expected to find a cold in milk, and was getting lower. I took her out in my own dog's nose and attempting to get some milk from her, she refused to eat with Stan's favourite and getting a good deal of milk. He has never had a temperature.

Wine making in South Africa dates back over two centuries.

The clarets, burgundies and bocks have therefore become distinctive. Being somewhat light in character they are likely to appeal to palates accustomed to the light wines of Europe.
