To the Editor, "E.A. Standard," Sir:—Mr. G. A. Ffrench's article in your issue of the 12th inst. regarding what is being done in the manufacturing industry...

The results of three visits have shown that East African industry is not so healthy...

It is a pity that the Club should be so ignorant of the fact that Mr. Kenward's paper is not a weekly paper...

Yours faithfully, M. B. MOSEY.

of helping with the requirements of the country, and was not one out of which the country got the best value for its money, or the Civil Service got the best remuneration for its services. That content was based on the assumption that a period of two and a half years was the limit a man could stay in this country and preserve his health. A large part of this assumption is the fallacy which causes people to look upon that stay in the country as something temporary, and causes a considerable amount of money to be spent outside the Colony which, in other circumstances would have been spent in it. Circumstances are now such that a number of people come to be engaged in the country on long contracts and are not sending them on in at short periods of time.

Equally important and satisfactory is the fact that the majority of the labor was the throwing of money into the country in settlements on economic lines, not on the basis of the original clear settlement which is the basis of the present day settlement of Baseter.

Natives policy in the economic sphere should also receive every consideration. It is important regarding the utilization of land and the employment of natives. It is recognized what large numbers of natives are employed in the various spheres of the country, but their response is so much so that it is not possible to get the full benefit of their services. Large sums of money are spent in the country, but the natives are not getting the full benefit of the money. It is important that the Government should take steps to remedy this. It is important that the Government should take steps to remedy this. It is important that the Government should take steps to remedy this.

It is admitted the competition between rail and motor. It is not definitely opposed to the granting of a concession to the railway service. All the same it is to be thought it is not a fair competition should be considered to be a good business for the railway. A sum of £700,000 was being spent annually in the purchase of the railway, and it is not clear if the railway service suffered unduly through the competition. At the same time he has raised the question of the only way to get the best value for the money, or the Civil Service got the best remuneration for its services. That content was based on the assumption that a period of two and a half years was the limit a man could stay in this country and preserve his health. A large part of this assumption is the fallacy which causes people to look upon that stay in the country as something temporary, and causes a considerable amount of money to be spent outside the Colony which, in other circumstances would have been spent in it.
