A DEFENCE OF KENYA MAIZE INDUSTRY. Valuable To All Users of the Railway.

GENERAL MANAGER IN UGANDA.

Declares New Rate To Be Highest Industry Can Bear.

Introducing his 1932 Estimates before the Uganda Legislative Council the General Manager of Railways declared that the maize industry was of value not only to the actual participants therein but also to all other sections of the country. He hoped that public would really be clear to Uganda.

General Rhodes added that the recent enquiry had established the fact that the maize industry was in a position to pay a higher rate than most other maize producing areas of considerable difficulty to the maize industry.

LONG-TERM "KIBBING" £54,000 FOR ZANZIBAR.

Examination Questions Called in Advance. Help From Colonial Development Fund.

A long-distance "kibbing" between Zanzibar candidates in Paris and Bagdad, in confirmation of the fact announced by the British Government, is being set for candidates in these parts (see page 2, column 2, of this issue).

Whereas the examination questions were to be set for the morning of the same day in both places, the difference in longitude enabled candidates in Zanzibar to be informed of the questions to be set for the examination before, with the result that all of them passed.

Common-sense prescribes it. A 'White Horse' Whisky is a common-sense prescription for weariness and loss of appetite, because its highly stimulating action tones up both mind and body. A small 'White Horse' before meals is the best appetizer you can have. A small 'White Horse' after a long day's work is the best restorative you can have. Be guided by common-sense; keep 'White Horse' at home and ask for it when away; a little does a lot of good.

ENGLAND OVERHELMES SPAIN

Disappointing Football.

LONDON, December 31. (By Air Mail.) The England-Spain match is over after all the public anticipation that we should play our hardest to get back our reputation for first class football on the Continent. England overhelm...

part of their opponent. They suddenly also did not expect to be tackled themselves, and when another player would come in and rob them of the ball they would resent themselves to the position with a look of disdain. But almost suppressed, surprise and make no attempt to resist. That was usually the case, but there was an exception, and it was Cameron, the Spanish goalkeeper. He showed a magnificent instinct when he threw himself on the ground to stop a shot from the ball. Dean, the English centre-forward, sent a ball straight at the feet of a British player, and he showed our protestant goalkeeper. That did not please the Spanish players at all for with them it is customary to have their keeper allow when it is clearing. They gathered round Dean, in menacing fashion and remained to stare the ball had been kicked to hairy. One of the players at the moment of excitement came up with a great force a distance to take part in the proceedings, but it all stopped quickly when the referee gave a free kick just outside the penalty area. The rest of the game was uneventful, and wide of the goal, and all went on character in perfect harmony.

Spain played all forward skill in their control of the ball in dribbling, and in kicking, by the English player who played with the ball straight to the feet of a British player. It is not fair to say that he left their opponents to follow up, in it is not fair to say that he left their opponents to follow up, in it is not fair to say that he left their opponents to follow up...

This style of play is quite different from that followed in England. They do not use it in football, being content nearly to work for the ball to be presented to them through a slight change...
