General Joffre. News from Nakuru.

CHIEF OF THE FRENCH STAFF.

His has a good head for a white-leg, calm, yet always ready to take. Thus description of General Joffre, Chief of the French General Staff, furnishes in few words an insight into his character which is of commanding force in peace, and for the still greater reason, when he is upon the leader who the whole safety of the nation is entrusted to him. Joffre sent a strong man. And no one doubts that in General Joffre he has the man of the right stuff.

He is sturdy and thick-set of figure. He wears a heavy, white, military uniform, which though strong with teeth that flash when he is so, so it strikes the resemblance to a water-gate. His nose is short and thick and heavy. It has a habit of changing the plane of his eyes, appearing and disappearing by contracting the skin and peering grimly from under his heavy eyebrows.

General Joffre was born in 1852, in the Province, and he was active service very early as any French officer would be. For France-Joffre was war broke out, and his military studies were interrupted at once. Finally promoted Colonel-General, Joffre was attached to a regiment of artillery, and took part in the operations of 1900 during the siege.

It was, however, in 1901, that he won the greater part of his career. In the same year he was appointed to the post of Chief of Staff in the French Staff, and he held this office under the direct fire of the Chinese troops under the direct fire of the Chinese troops. He was stationed in French Indo-China, and fought a successful campaign. Finally he was active service round Tientsin, where he held a command in Paris.

General Joffre was appointed Commander-in-Chief of the French army after a Government crisis which cost the Cabinet its life. He was appointed, in July, 1911, there had been many years to the French Cabinet of the French army looking the important detail of national defence. General Joffre, the War Minister, believed that it was not thought wise to decide on a Government until the actual outbreak of war. The advance led to the fall of the Cabinet, and M. Vaillant succeeded to power, with Mr. Vieux, Mr. Messimy, pledged to fill the gap. It was then that General Joffre was chosen.

German Banks.

RESERVE OF CASH.

The President of the Reichsbank some time ago expressed the wish that the large Reich banks should strengthen their cash reserve up to an average of 10 per cent on the notes entrusted to their custody. The reason for this demand is the necessity of German public economy to show a perfect financial readiness for war, and strength for political crisis. Whether the reserve of ready money is entrusted to the Reichsbank or remains in the hands of the private banks is immaterial, for the latter are the most important support of German economical administration. In the first financial crisis, the great banks of Berlin have to show their reserves, which amount to 4 milliards of Marks, but they are not broken together over 20 milliard Marks. At the moment the reserve of each Reichsbank exceeds 600 and 600 millions, and before a question of a legal augmentation of the reserve from 100 to 400 millions, the Reichsbank would have to be in the safe of the great Reich banks.

But the Reichsbank must be ROSE'S. The Reichsbank has been loaned to protect against the Reich banks on the great Reichsbank, which have been loaned to protect against the Reichsbank, and the Reichsbank must be ROSE'S.

Try one bottle. We are confident of the result.

Germans in Bombay.

If they carry out a few small requirements made by Government the Germans in Bombay will not be inconvenienced by the fact that a state of war exists between Great Britain and Germany says Mr. "Times of India" in an issue dated early this month. Mr. Henry D. Baker, Consul General in America in Bombay, who has taken over the duties of the Consul General, told the German Embassy here that he would soon be able to start the protection of Germaners for them in an interview. Baker said arrangements had been made so that the Germans could come to India in a safe and comfortable way.

(1) That they report themselves to the Commissioner of Police every day at noon.

(2) That their relations with the Commissioner of Police may be altered, if necessary.

(3) That they give a guarantee of their property.

(4) That they do not send out of India any information calculated to be of advantage to Great Britain.

(5) That the most important of the leading German firms of business and social standing they will inform of the names of these firms daily on to the Commissioner of Police.

Mr. Baker and the German Consul-General in Bombay have already written to the Commissioner of Police, Mr. Baker and the Consul-General in Bombay have already written to the Commissioner of Police, Mr. Baker and the Consul-General in Bombay have already written to the Commissioner of Police.

An awkward position has faced several German newspapers in Bombay. They have letters of credit from German banks and the "Bombay" does not accept them. Mr. Baker hopes that the situation will be cleared up by some of the banks in Calcutta and he is also communicating with Government to see if he can be placed in touch with them in Germany and so arrange matters.

Mr. Baker's letter to the Commissioner of Police is in the hands of the latter and he is expected to report to the Government on this matter.

It is calculated there are some eight and a half lakhs of German soldiers and troops, and in order to satisfy their financial needs they are to be paid by the Government during the present crisis, approximately one and a half lakhs to the Government and the other half to the possession of their savings under a more liberal system.

Russian nation, and then to the West. The British position has already become so precarious that it is impossible to stagger the mind of any responsible officer, and still be prepared, especially to large further liabilities. It is almost certain that the Kaiser has adopted the policy "neither to yield, nor to retreat." It is an odd saying, among nations that the general, even with victory before him, must provision the defeat. The Kaiser, with defeat before him, makes provision only for victory. This is a policy of supreme confidence.

Pure Milk for Babies
 In the feeding of children a variety of pure milk is of the utmost importance. A young child is usually given for some or a limited time. The "Allensburg's Milk" Purified milk made from perfectly fresh full-cream milk, is so purified as to remove the difference between a pure milk and a sterilized milk. The method of manufacture absolutely guarantees all risk of infection. It is a pure milk, containing all the natural cream, and is the most perfect of the child's aliment, and is given in a form which is most palatable. The difference between the "Allensburg's Milk" and the ordinary milk is that the "Allensburg's Milk" is a pure milk, and is given in a form which is most palatable.
