[From Our Own Correspondent]

London, March 2

BATTLE OF VERDUN

The great military operations of 1916 have opened... the most desperate battles of the war... in which we have now arrived at the conclusion of the first stage.

Let us recapitulate the situation and I am able to do so because I have spent a week at the front... the leading French public men, and have also secured a letter from the chief of the French press...

The attack on Verdun was not a surprise... the attack on Verdun was not a surprise... the attack on Verdun was not a surprise...

It is therefore, France has not suffered more... the attack on Verdun was not a surprise... the attack on Verdun was not a surprise...

It is not to be feared that the "Prestige" of France will be injured by the result of the Battle of Verdun...

By the way, it is to be noted that the "Prestige" of France will be injured by the result of the Battle of Verdun...

WAR NOTES.

[By Sir Thomas.]

London, February 24.

It becomes plain every day that the measure of compulsory service introduced to meet the Government's military requirements. A grave mistake was made at the start of the war, when the chief of the operations of the economy alone had been considered. The Government probably should have taken into account the army, and thus preventing the measure of compulsory service.

It is a pity that the Government should have taken this course. It is a pity that the Government should have taken this course. It is a pity that the Government should have taken this course.

THE PROPER COURSE. What the Government should do is to issue a bill compelling the calling up of all males from 18 to 30 years of age in the army, navy or necessary employment.

THE ENEMY IN OUR MINDS. Hardly a day passes without an intimation of the number of Germans who are in the hands of the British. With army posts and railways, they would be better off to be in the hands of the British.

A YOUNG SOLDIER. The many instances of young soldiers who were taken into the hands of the enemy in 1914 were not included in the statistics of the war.

REPEATING RIFLES. Wholesale and Retail at the ANGLO-FRENCH PROVISION CO. 22 REMINGTON.

THE EAST AFRICAN STANDARD. Nairobi's Premier Theatre. Proprietor T. W. RADLEY. GRAND MID-WEEK PROGRAMME. Thursday & Friday, April 27th & 28th, at 8 o'clock.

Little So and So (IN TWO PARTS). This strongly emotional work has been adapted from Ferns Druce's famous book 'Le Petit Chou' with the story among other things, both the pathos and humour, the tale is admirably prepared on the screen by the first class company from the Gaiety Theatre.

THE ASCENT OF SNOWDEN. The ascent of this well known mountain can be seen on the screen by the Gaiety Theatre. MABEL & FATTY'S WASHDAY. A most amusing comedy of events which will excite loud laughter.

Eclair Star Journal. An authentic war film released November 1916. The greatest collection of the Paris Express at St. Denis, Doullens and Arras, a demonstration of cooking in the front line. Four days in the front line with the Legion of Honour. The Baucy Ambush and the Battle of Arras.

SYBIL'S RUSE. Comedy in Colour. A charming picture play, in which a spoiled young lady, Sybil, in 1911, will have a lesson in life by an old girl, Mrs. Sybil, who is a very talented actress.

The Lion Hunters. "SELIG" ANIMAL DRAMA. The magnificent production in a fine big game film with splendid animal pictures of lions, in phantas, is now being shown in a most interesting tale of love and scheming.

TRUTH ABOUT MORTIMER. Information which I have received from a personal acquaintance to the statements concerning Mortimer published in the Standard press. The French army covered the ground, and was not a mere force of observation.

WASTE AND ECONOMY. Reductions and Savings. England has been warned to practise economy in the use of her resources. The Government has taken the Civil Service in hand and proposed to reduce the Civil Service by 25 per cent.

THE THANKS OF FRANCE. Among the ladies left in France of the French army, the names of the French army were identified. The 2nd Infantry Division had been in the front line with the same magnificent dash and discipline as the others they had returned from.
