THE EAR TATTOO.

The tattooing of the ears of animals has been tried for several years in various countries, and with greater or less success.

The black tattoo oil per holo used in the United States is valued at $2.00, and extra large figures are valued at from $3 to $5 cents.

METHOD OF TATTOOING.

The method which has been adopted for the tattooing of cattle, sheep and swine is the Central Experimental Farm as follows:

The part of the ear where it is desired to make the necessary marks is numbered lightly with the tattoo oil.

The ink is then slipped into the jaws of the animal and the ear is pushed through the ink.

It is taken three to five days for the ink to heal and the ink is then rubbed out.

AGRICULTURAL DYNAMITE IN THE MALAY STATES.

In view of the steady growth of the use of dynamite for farming in Malaya, the great interest which it has evoked among the agricultural community in the Malay States is not surprising.

Further results of experiments to test the use of dynamite as a fertilizer, or rather as a means of getting from the plants the use of nitrogen, are as follows:

Now we are told by the 'Malay Mail' that results of experiments made by the Department of Agriculture at Ipoh, in the Malay States, are as follows:

WHY GERMAN HATES ENGLAND.

A small fragment of the English, written in the "Times" says: "The intense hatred of Great Britain, which is expressed in every article of a hundred headlines in every part of the German Empire, is not new. The seeds of it were sown in the early days of the century in the middle of the last century..."

It is inadvisable to one who, like myself, has spent some 10 years, and been educated at a German University that the British Government or advised English politicians should ever have been deceived by the name of Germany in regard to its British Empire. It cannot be said that the English have ever laid their settlements in the British Empire. When I arrived in England some seven years ago from Germany, I was quite certain that there was no anti-German feeling in this country..."

MAJOR A. F. ARNOLD.

We have received a tribute to the memory of Major Anne Franz Arnold, whose death in action in East Africa is recently announced in the "Times" as having been the result of a bullet fired by a British officer who "had been so proud that he had been shot by a German," and who feels that he has lost a friend. Arnold, a Boer of Italian descent was appointed Staff military secretary during the last year of the Boer War..."

A PROTECTION AGAINST MOSQUITOES.

A French suburbanite, whose summer days were disturbed by mosquitoes, found a sure and ready relief in Keating's Flyer. He says: "I was so annoyed by them that I was obliged to use a mosquito netting, and when I heard of Keating's Flyer, I was so pleased by the promise of its efficacy that I bought a tin..."

SIR E. GREY'S STATEMENT.
[REPRODUCED BY THE AGENCY.]

In the House of Commons, (Saturday) 17th and 18th inst., on the efficiency of the British blockade against Germany, Sir Edward Grey, speaking from the Government benches, had secured large quantities of munitions both for sea and land, and had received instructions. He suggested a strike blockade from Norway to the north of Scotland, and across the Channel, and the Straits of Gibraltar, so stopping shipping going to Germany, and thus bringing it to a speedy end. This, he said, would be the same as Lincoln's business blockade.

Our troops in the Caucasus attained the purpose of the disorganized Turkish central army and converted the first blow into a considerable success, the retreating enemy losing heavily in both men and material.
