BUBONIC PLAGUE.

Yersin Serum Effects Cures.

Bubonic plague is officially declared as Oran, the Oran, as everyone knows, is in constant communication with Marseilles. The investigation of many people at least, is already working, and among them certain go to bed at night, and the epidemic of 1720, which devastated the old Provence city, which has not since been changed. At present, even though the means of preventing the plague are not known, one knows how to prevent it in the city, and to cure it when it is declared.

The treatment of plague should be a double object—to oppose the outbreak and the dissemination of the disease and to cure those who are attacked.

Multiple plagues from bubonic plague might be rigorously isolated. The holding and burning of bodies should be carefully disinfected and seen by other people. The epidemic should be isolated in the form of the burning of the bodies and of the means and furniture to be incinerated. The bodies should be incinerated in a centralized location. Avoid overcrowding, keep away from crowded places, and avoid victims, sleep if need be under a tent, pay scrupulous attention to individual cleanliness and have a wholesome, substantial, and easy aliment.

One cordon should be established at a sufficient distance to allow of the emptying of the incinerated quarters, the establishment of hospitals and places for isolation outside the city or locality, the evacuation of the patients, and the means for isolation to prevent further off and to isolate to prevent all communication with neighboring places. Finally, observations should be kept to establish at distant points on borders of the province or the city, stations for controlling the situation of travelers coming from the neighborhood of the suspected locality.

There should be a cordon of a few lines, closed to all communications. And some wear their masks, and in the case of the plague, the mask is not so important as in the case of cholera. The ship's fireman is made visible, and the crew begins to have a change of clothes, and the crew begins to have a change of clothes, and the crew begins to have a change of clothes.

The anti-plague serum is derived from the blood of horses immunized by means of numerous subcutaneous injections of a mixture of the plague bacillus, made first in small doses and then gradually increased. These inoculations produce in the horse such a fever that the animal becomes very thin; therefore it is necessary to allow a long interval between the injections. They are renewed by renewed until a month has elapsed. The preparation of the serum is consequently a very long process. It is true important provisions have been made in the different Pasteur Institutes.

It is really astonishing to see the most alarming symptoms dissipated in some hours when the serum is given in the course of the first two days of the disease. The characteristic buboes are resolved, so to speak, under a cold eye. If the intervention is made later more time is necessary, and it does not always succeed in avoiding the suppuration of the bubo, but the suppuration, instead of being prolonged as in the case of which the plague is cured spontaneously, ceases in a few days.

A proof of the efficacy of the serum is the complete rapid recovery of the patients, and it is well established that the intervention is long and painful, even in patients whose bubo is a small one, and that it is not done until the disease is advanced.

The hygienic measures recommended above on one hand, the employment of serum, and finally, the systematic killing of rats in ships will suffice to curb the plague, which is localized in Oran, and to prevent new plague centers being produced.

Ecclesiastical. A BABEL OF DISCORD. (It is How Hazy?) Not a vestige of light or color towards our harbours, mere a few faint clouds of white smoke, the smoke of the engines, the smoke of the engines, the smoke of the engines.

And how life is the essence of some of our people. We grope in the darkness and gloom of night, and in the future, in the distance, uncertain, and perhaps even no assurance that there is a heaven or a hell, for then, in contrast to a certain foreknowledge, we are left to the Holy Spirit of God, the Holy Spirit of God, the Holy Spirit of God.

OUR SHORT STORY, All Rights Reserved in East Africa, Uganda and Zanzibar.

BLACK JOAN. By R. HAWKING GOULD. Author of 'The Deaconess', 'The Bull and the Spider', 'The Gnomes', 'The Hound and the Cat'.

As some little distance off the hotel, the proprietor called at Joe's in Cornwall, the island of St. Nicholas of Looe. It is a small circular island, the most fertile and the most fertile of the coast, and the most fertile of the coast, and the most fertile of the coast.

The whole of this coast offered great advantages to smugglers, and at the beginning of last century the two Looes were notorious places of those daring seamen who carried on a contraband trade with France, and the difficulties presented by the coast made it a safe and secure place for the smuggler.

As the smugglers had been there, that at length it dawned on the minds of those in authority that it was well to plant a station on Looe Island as they fell out with the smugglers, and the station was planted on Looe Island as they fell out with the smugglers, and the station was planted on Looe Island as they fell out with the smugglers.

As the smugglers had been there, that at length it dawned on the minds of those in authority that it was well to plant a station on Looe Island as they fell out with the smugglers, and the station was planted on Looe Island as they fell out with the smugglers, and the station was planted on Looe Island as they fell out with the smugglers.

REVIEW.

Marcus Hay. IN STANLEY PORTER'S "A GAY HOLIDAY" we have read Mr. Stanley Porter's first book with pleasure and it is as his first attempt to write a novel, having written a novel singularly free from the exaggerations common to first attempts.

The style is natural and the narrative is carried smoothly throughout, sustaining the interest right to the end. The story is of quite possible and ordinary material, so that the reader will believe in it almost at once.

Indeed one is struck with the truth and vivacity of the description of the life of the native life, and by the good remarks on the native character and the proper handling of the story.

You "do like to go" he asked with a smile. "It is a lovely country, much lovelier than the part of Africa you know. But there is no danger from those negroes, you are a decent person. The only trouble will be that you will get on your feet."

It was a spectacle of extreme and abundant in fact, translated the abundant in the usual crowd up her numerous gawneys, some of which she had seen in the papers.

It was a crowd of Russian Jews, men, women and children, squat, unkempt and unappealing, driven out of their own country by bloodthirsty persecutions, and miserably furnished apparel, here an emaciated young man, newly well, full of sanguine hope and exultant anticipation, going forth hand in hand together to save the joy and the sorrow and to fight the battles of life in a new country, or here a young man, the only son of a well-to-do mother, having been a long time in the East, and having returned to his own country, and having been a long time in the East, and having returned to his own country.

He laughed. "No, not so far. But I wouldn't prophesy. Some of the dry-rot in Africa I catch me, and I'll say, I don't like that sort of thing. I hate it, in fact, but I understand it, none the less."

"Well, I don't think you'll ever do it," she answered quietly. "You never know, I hope not, if course only they are a lot of madmen, but you, you must know, from your own experience of it."

"I don't mind, starting into the fire. I understand that, but I don't think I should advise it, at least in your case, you are a man of letters."

"Most novices can get through their own safety, perhaps they have, but they still have a sufficient good deal of brain. In Africa, perhaps because of the Curse of the Emerald, the wearing strain, the sense of hopelessness and exile, takes months to get into the mind, and the mind is not the same as the mind of the town."

"You are right, starting into the fire. I understand that, but I don't think I should advise it, at least in your case, you are a man of letters."

"You are right, starting into the fire. I understand that, but I don't think I should advise it, at least in your case, you are a man of letters."

OUR SHORT STORY, All Rights Reserved in East Africa, Uganda and Zanzibar.

DECLINED WITH THANKS. BY ALLEN UPWARD. Author of "The Prince of Balthazar," "The Yellow Hand," "The Accused," "The Prince of Balthazar," "The Yellow Hand," "The Accused."

"Confused! In this is disgusting! Of all the ignorant, presumptuous blockheads in existence, I do think you are the worst!" So said, or rather snarled, Mr. Augustus Brown, as he fell down by the side of the plate a lithographed circular containing the following disparaging words: "The editor of 'Chiropradylne' regrets that he is unable to make use of the accompanying MS. here."

"Wanted," a wife, was a woman to which he had declined with thanks. In front of the numerous letters lay a certain important box, and ordered parcels with pink and purple stamps, whose appearance had warned his recipient before the hand of the editor of 'Chiropradylne' had just read.

"The fact is," he resumed, "these editors' stunts work in almost a good thing. They're jealous, that's about it, and if they think they've got something in them they make up their minds to keep him back." Mr. Brown addressed these remarks to no one in particular, as he considered to have been seeking to convince a tabby cat of mature years, who was curled on the floor.

"Perhaps the cat sympathized with her master's warning, perhaps she merely felt a pang for milk, at all events she came towards Mr. Brown and archly thrust her claws through his trousers into the skin. It was an unfortunate move, for the cat's paw was in no mood to be trifled with. Her paws, snatched up and buried her viciously in his leg.

"I wish you were the editor of 'Chiropradylne,'" he muttered to himself. "And he looks at his face. 'I never there was an original idea in my life.' 'Wanted,' a wife, was a woman to which he had declined with thanks. In front of the numerous letters lay a certain important box, and ordered parcels with pink and purple stamps, whose appearance had warned his recipient before the hand of the editor of 'Chiropradylne' had just read.

In the High Court. JUDGMENT.

In Re: Objections of G. W. L. Cairne under the Land Acquisition Act.

On the 22nd November H. J. Judge Barth gave the following judgment—

This is a reference to the Court by the Collector of the Nyamira District at the instance of Mr. W. L. Cairne on the ground of the inadequacy of the award given in the acquisition of the property under the Land Acquisition Act for the purpose of setting the compensation to be paid for 943 acres acquired by the Government under the Act.

The acquired land was part of a parcel comprising 3025 1/2 acres held by Mr. Cairne under a Crown lease dated the 5th of June 1900 for a term of 99 years from 1st January 1900 at a rental of Sh. 315 per annum. The land is situated in the Railway zone and is being acquired by the Government for Railway purposes.

The only conditions for which compensation is payable is that Mr. Cairne's in his lease.

The land acquired adjoins the Railway line at Limuru Station, and consists of a strip varying from 200 to 300 in width and about 1000 feet long, vide sheet No. 2.

For a part of the strip the land is a steep hill. At each end of the land there is a swamp, and through it is a deep drain. Various witnesses were called to give evidence about the first of whom was Mr. Leslie Farlow, who stated that for purely Agricultural purposes the land has really no value other than in the neighbourhood without any other evidence to show that that was the case and gives his opinion of the value of the land acquired at £50 per acre presumably, if the land were used for building purposes.

For a part of the strip the land is a steep hill. At each end of the land there is a swamp, and through it is a deep drain. Various witnesses were called to give evidence about the first of whom was Mr. Leslie Farlow, who stated that for purely Agricultural purposes the land has really no value other than in the neighbourhood without any other evidence to show that that was the case and gives his opinion of the value of the land acquired at £50 per acre presumably, if the land were used for building purposes.

The applicant bases the value for building purposes at £5 per acre per annum but admits that there is a demand for building sites on the spot. He also bases the value for setting Agricultural land, building, lading houses, for three, five, ten, and twenty acres at £30 per acre.

Wood who gave evidence in support of the opinion that the value of the land for building purposes is £10 per acre on the supposition that the land is to be used for building purposes would take blocks of land near the station for agriculture in connection with their farming operations.

To the applicant for setting his own building he puts the value at £25 per acre. Mr. Wood examined the land from the ground of the Station platform and states that his opinion is that the value of the land for building purposes is £20 per acre and for ordinary Agricultural purposes at £25 to £30 per acre.

Mr. Hall considers the land as unsuitable for general Agricultural purposes. Mr. Hall has valued some similarly unlocated land in the neighbourhood at Sh. 14 per acre and testified to the fact that 640 acres of buildings situated 10 miles of road for 1000 acres would cost Sh. 14 per acre.

Mr. Hall's valuation at £50 per acre is for the land as a whole. The price at which the crown is dealing with land in the neighbourhood is shown by Mr. Martin to be Sh. 12 per acre for frehold, leasehold being far more in some cases more valuable than frehold. Mr. Hall also assesses the value for building purposes at £20 per acre and for ordinary Agricultural purposes at £25 to £30 per acre.

Miles had been out to luncheon, and he arrived home to find the house empty. He went down to the balcony...

"You promise, Sayo, that you will do as I say, and not one shall know..."

"You are going away?" "Yes, I am going to see if I can't catch a bit of sunshine directly."

"You mean you would like to go to see the rose?" "Yes, I mean that—the corners of her mouth dropped a little, then she smiled."

"It was late afternoon when Miles returned. The direct reason of his coming was a letter from Justin announcing his engagement to Miss Miriam Dubois..."

"It struck him in the first half-hour of conversation with Justin on his return that success does not invariably improve mankind."

"Have's' lord's heart of her age?" "Yes, since it has been so long since I have seen it, it is well arranged things rather differently."

"It is to be expected, Justin," said Miles, "that you should be so much interested in the young man."

THE NEW INDIAN BUNGALOWS.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE EAST AFRICAN STANDARD." Sir, In the last week I had an occasion to go to one of the newly built quarters on the Nyang Nyang, Nairobi, for my Indian, etc.

"Non as that locality is open on all sides, it is necessary to keep generally the windows and doors of the rooms closed, especially during night time as a safeguard against the few preparatory insects which still exist."

"I hope that the authorities will be kind enough to remedy these and other defects which are here, and find a way in which they are already covered and also give orders to the contractors who are building other new quarters there to keep at least two small ventilations on side walls near the top, such as can be closed and opened whenever required."

"The author's first essay in the realm of fiction was the first in a competition instituted by the publishers of Great Thought, a series which led to the launching out into work of a more ambitious nature."

THE INIQUITOUS SPORTSMAN'S LICENCE.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE EAST AFRICAN STANDARD." Dear Sir,—Having done and enjoyed five months shooting in British and German East Africa this year I would like to draw attention to the sportsman's licence in the English language. Taking some of the most coveted trophies we find the chances of getting a Kudu are very faint.

AN INTERESTING LAND CASE. Claims Laid by Waduruma. Action for Trespass.

An interesting case has been before Mr. W. J. Forster, Town Magistrate of Mombasa during the week. It appears that all his claims are based on a deed of gift for trespass against certain Waduruma.

Mr. D. O. ROBERTS, said that he was a party to a mortgage of a plot of land in the town of Mombasa, and that he had a claim against the land in question.

Mr. LESLIE J. TAYLOR, in stating his claims was opposed to the building conditions and in favour of a tax on unoccupied land. In his opinion building should be regulated by supply and demand.

THE LEPROSY QUESTION.

Important Movement at Mombasa.

On Friday morning November 29th, the Provincial Commissioner of British East Africa, Mr. S. L. Hinde, issued the following circular to the Provincial Commissioner of the Church Missionary Society, Mr. A. G. Turnbull, President of the Chamber of Commerce, and Mr. A. G. Anderson in Deputation, the object being to discuss generally the Leprosy question, and to consider the views of the Chamber of Commerce. The Deputation explained to the Provincial Commissioner that the Church Missionary Society had found the financial burden of keeping up a Leprosy establishment without outside help was becoming too onerous, and that unless assistance was forthcoming the Society would have to discontinue its work in the Colony.

Dr. Shepherd explained that for years past they had not seen a patient of the Society's Clinician at Kisumu for the whole of Leprosy but he found that the difficulty and expense of providing a proper guard over the unfortunate was beyond his power. The British would leave their camp at night and the Indian would find food and water for Indians as night guards. This meant in many instances the spreading of the disease all parts of the city.

Mr. Turnbull said that this question was becoming a serious one particularly in view of the fact that the C. M. Society were unable to carry out any longer without assistance. The good work they had been doing in the past. He thought the time had come when the Government should take the responsibility of Leprosy in hand.

Mr. Anderson agreed with Mr. Turnbull that the time had come when a definite method would be the protection of the public from the infection of the full disease should be made. He gave it as his opinion that in the future the segregation of the Leprosy patients in the whole Protectorate would have to occupy attention of the Government. He had found in his recent tour through the Kikuyu country in nearly every village there were a considerable number of leprosy cases, and he was greatly grieved that in the absence of the State, the medical assistance should be given to the Church Missionary Society in order that their present Leprosy Clinician at Mombasa should be able to help the patients. He said that the Society's Doctor gave his services free and the only financial help necessary would be for food, clothing and guarding.

The Provincial Commissioner thanked the Deputation for bringing to the notice of the Government the difficulties of the Church Missionary Society in the matter of the Leprosy question, and he said that the matter had already occupied the attention of the local authorities, and that negotiations on the subject have been going on for some time past. The Government was in sympathy with the Deputation, and he thought that if the Church Missionary Society could keep their Leprosy establishment in the next year, His Excellency, the Governor would be able to do something in the matter in any case. He would take the first possible opportunity of writing the Governor what the Deputation had said. The Deputation thanked the Provincial Commissioner for the sympathetic manner in which he had met them, and they withdrew.

On Tuesday last, His Excellency, the Governor called the members of the Leprosy Deputation to meet him to discuss further the questions brought before the Provincial Commissioner. His Excellency said that he was quite in sympathy with a proposal to minimize the danger of infection from the Leprosy patients, and that the same should be confined to Mombasa. After asking various questions, Dr. Shepherd and other members of the Deputation, after leaving their views. His Excellency said that he would be glad to assist in the upkeep of a Leprosy Clinician. He could provide Government assistance for the coming year to the extent of £1,000 as a contribution to a Public Fund and he thought it possible also for the Government to assist in the matter of guarding the camp against intrusion. He would commission to call a meeting of a committee with a view of securing the necessary support for a very desirable object.

We understand Mr. Hinde is now formulating a scheme to deal with the situation.

He gave it as his opinion that in the future the segregation of the Leprosy patients in the whole Protectorate would have to occupy attention of the Government. He had found in his recent tour through the Kikuyu country in nearly every village there were a considerable number of leprosy cases, and he was greatly grieved that in the absence of the State, the medical assistance should be given to the Church Missionary Society in order that their present Leprosy Clinician at Mombasa should be able to help the patients. He said that the Society's Doctor gave his services free and the only financial help necessary would be for food, clothing and guarding.

The Provincial Commissioner thanked the Deputation for bringing to the notice of the Government the difficulties of the Church Missionary Society in the matter of the Leprosy question, and he said that the matter had already occupied the attention of the local authorities, and that negotiations on the subject have been going on for some time past. The Government was in sympathy with the Deputation, and he thought that if the Church Missionary Society could keep their Leprosy establishment in the next year, His Excellency, the Governor would be able to do something in the matter in any case. He would take the first possible opportunity of writing the Governor what the Deputation had said. The Deputation thanked the Provincial Commissioner for the sympathetic manner in which he had met them, and they withdrew.

On Tuesday last, His Excellency, the Governor called the members of the Leprosy Deputation to meet him to discuss further the questions brought before the Provincial Commissioner. His Excellency said that he was quite in sympathy with a proposal to minimize the danger of infection from the Leprosy patients, and that the same should be confined to Mombasa. After asking various questions, Dr. Shepherd and other members of the Deputation, after leaving their views. His Excellency said that he would be glad to assist in the upkeep of a Leprosy Clinician. He could provide Government assistance for the coming year to the extent of £1,000 as a contribution to a Public Fund and he thought it possible also for the Government to assist in the matter of guarding the camp against intrusion. He would commission to call a meeting of a committee with a view of securing the necessary support for a very desirable object.

We understand Mr. Hinde is now formulating a scheme to deal with the situation.

THE LEPROSY QUESTION.

Important Movement at Mombasa.

On Friday morning November 29th, the Provincial Commissioner of British East Africa, Mr. S. L. Hinde, issued the following circular to the Provincial Commissioner of the Church Missionary Society, Mr. A. G. Turnbull, President of the Chamber of Commerce, and Mr. A. G. Anderson in Deputation, the object being to discuss generally the Leprosy question, and to consider the views of the Chamber of Commerce. The Deputation explained to the Provincial Commissioner that the Church Missionary Society had found the financial burden of keeping up a Leprosy establishment without outside help was becoming too onerous, and that unless assistance was forthcoming the Society would have to discontinue its work in the Colony.

Dr. Shepherd explained that for years past they had not seen a patient of the Society's Clinician at Kisumu for the whole of Leprosy but he found that the difficulty and expense of providing a proper guard over the unfortunate was beyond his power. The British would leave their camp at night and the Indian would find food and water for Indians as night guards. This meant in many instances the spreading of the disease all parts of the city.

Mr. Turnbull said that this question was becoming a serious one particularly in view of the fact that the C. M. Society were unable to carry out any longer without assistance. The good work they had been doing in the past. He thought the time had come when the Government should take the responsibility of Leprosy in hand.

Mr. Anderson agreed with Mr. Turnbull that the time had come when a definite method would be the protection of the public from the infection of the full disease should be made. He gave it as his opinion that in the future the segregation of the Leprosy patients in the whole Protectorate would have to occupy attention of the Government. He had found in his recent tour through the Kikuyu country in nearly every village there were a considerable number of leprosy cases, and he was greatly grieved that in the absence of the State, the medical assistance should be given to the Church Missionary Society in order that their present Leprosy Clinician at Mombasa should be able to help the patients. Occasional Notes.

THE Home Press is paying much attention to the reports of Mr. Churchill's visit.

ST. Andrew's Night was gaily celebrated at Mombasa last week and also at Nairobi. The Nairobi Banquet is reported on another page.

OCTOBER 25th 1907 was the 5th Birthday of Pat-a-Cake and on that day Peck Frean & Co. received orders for over Nine Million Pat-a-Cake Biscuits. These striking figures show the continued popularity of "Pat-a-Cake" throughout the World.

MESSRS Narsi Velji and Co. have started a furniture factory at Mombasa. Their business premises are situated off the Mombasa-Kilindi Road and are very conveniently situated. In addition to the manufacture of furniture the firm undertakes sign writing and all kinds of engraving on metal.

SEVERAL Coat and Suit Sales were held at Kilikoni measuring 64 by 35 feet each £410. Another stand in the same locality 33 by 38 feet brought in Rupees 2,000 and one 50 by 40 by 45 feet realized Rs. 1850. The rapid rise in the price of Mombasa land is a astounding.

THE Cinematograph now showing at Mombasa is quite up-to-date. The lighting is done by Electricity and the films are frequently changed. A visit to Nairobi is contemplated.

THIS issue of the "East African Standard," No. 283 since its inception, is a record number. Excluding advertisement matter it contains 35,700 words. Apart from the Magazine section there are 32, 250 words of current news.

IT appears to us that a very few pounds spent on the landing stage at Kilikoni would have an admirable effect. At present Passengers arriving at Kilikini have to safely negotiate the slippery, seaweed overgrown, stone steps to be tripped up by railway lines. There are a number of discarded wooden sleepers which might very well be used for making a level crossing. It is not a good policy to give new comers a bad impression of the first moment they land.

MR. Archibald Colquhoun the well known Correspondent of the "Times" and for many years a Government servant in the Near and Far East is writing a series of articles in the "Morning Post" on our East African Empire. In the course of which under the sub-title of "The Basis for Success" he writes:—

"The development of the coast region should engage the Government first, and attention should be given to planters and she, within a very short time, there will be a substantial economic basis on which to build up a civilized hinterland, with all the conditions of life which make white settlement possible. There are many things to be remembered that the modern "outlet," especially of the type necessary to East Africa will come into existence and plenty of capital will not go into the wilderness. He must have more of education for his children and assistance in life. Roads, post, school, telegraph, bridge—all the plain of civilization should follow or even precede him, especially in a country with a black native population.

"With a prosperous tropical coast land the revenue will increase until it creates not only a balance but a security for the development necessary for opening up the interior, as in the case of Lagos and the Nigerian railways. The objects to be aimed at are:—1. To attract the permanent white population in the highlands. But that ideal can never be attained until the expense of the inland taxpayer, if we continue the (false) attempt to make the pyramid stand on its head.

To this Mr. E. S. Grogan takes exception and writes a letter to the "Morning Post" extending 10½ columns. There is much in the letter with which we do not agree, but the letter is well written and the extracts therefrom in our next issue.

MAIZE EXPERIMENT.

The Director of the Virginia Experiment Station has contributed to the Southern Planter an interesting and illustrated summary of the results of various experiments with maize that have been conducted at the station. The work done includes trials of different varieties of corn, manual tests, and also experiments in increasing native varieties of maize with imported varieties. The article says—

Several varieties of maize were under observation in these experiments, and the best yields have been obtained from Boone County White and Georgia's Favorite (78 bushels), Snow-White Dent (75 bushels), and Virginia Station Leaning No. 37 (70 bushels). A variety, Ruby King, is mentioned as one of the best yields of the season.

The results obtained indicate that certain strains of any given variety of corn vary in their reproductive power, and it is strain selected therefore has an important bearing on the yield obtained. In our case there was a difference of one to ten bushels per acre between the best and the worst of the season.

Observation shows also that seed from corn on thin soils does not at first give good results, but that the seed from corn on rich soils does.
