SULPHUR FOR COFFEE

Successful Experiments at Nairobi

The attached is an extract from a report received by the Department of Agriculture from the Coffee Plant Inspector.

"I assisted Mr. Thomson in spraying the patch of coffee near to his laboratory with lime sulphur. This patch of coffee was very badly affected with leaf disease, and lime sulphur was used as an experiment. Two weeks after spraying, very good results were obtained, in many cases the fungus on the leaves was completely destroyed. In due course, further experiments will be carried out. It is to be regretted that owing to the very high cost of sulphur, the coffee planter cannot afford to spray with this mixture, which seems to be most effective on a large scale and an insecticide."

"It may be of interest to mention that from reports received from the various districts, there has been another flowering, thus making three fairly large flowerings for this year. This can be accounted for by the unusual dry season last year and the trees which had suffered dried and had to be pruned severely are those which are now in bloom. If a good season continues there is every possibility of reaping a record crop."

MERRY GOES THE TIME WHEN THE HEART IS YOUNG.

It does one good to see the children romp, and mother likes to see the fun, even if the little ones do get soiled quickly in the frolic. Mother knows from experience that it is no trouble to wash the children's clothes, if Lux is used.

The constant washing in the ordinary way would soon soil them, but the rich Lax cleanses dirty frocks, pinafores, waists, necks and stockings so easily and thoroughly, and without shrinking or damage, that it is a pleasure to use it.

ERA OF CRIME

Startling Narratives from Home

MURDER MYSTERIES

(From Our London Correspondent)

London, July 6.

The newspapers are full today of crime, crime in all its various aspects. Crime for the most part here—days is not the usual fatal outrage such as the murder of the Prince of Wales, but rather confined off a family with an axe and a kitchen knife, for which, though he has been charged a serious charge, it is doubtful if on the ground of evidence he will either be tried or sentenced. Unintended murder of which we have heard more in the past, but which is bound never to be cleared up.

In one case a girl met with a fatal end while cycling in a country lane; they picked her up thinking she had had an accident, though a closer investigation found a bullet through her brain.

Then there is what the papers call the wine shop mystery at Hoxton, where the cause is equally obscure and which is full of dramatic incident. A fight to the death in the back parlour, two men glancing on a table and the murderer of the manager dimly seen to be wiping his bloodstained hands on the curtains of the window of the house, here again at present there is no trace of the criminal.

SUPPOT SOLDIERS.

Then there is the murder of the W.A.A.C. girl at Bostock for which all the evidence and charges though against him there seems to have been no evidence and he was acquitted. Obviously a military man was the criminal but there seems not the slightest likelihood of his detection.

Next comes the murder of another W.A.A.C. girl at Bostock; in this case the murderer might well have been a woman, whose dead body was found in the sea with her, but the result of any investigation which may have been held has still not so far seemed to have cleared anything up.

BRUTAL OUTRAGES.

Then come the ordinary brutal outrages such as the beating up of the mother of the Prince of Wales in Clontarf, Dublin, when the witness was nearly killed; the execution of the girl, and the assault on one of the officials of the hospital by a woman and several men.

Attacks on post offices and bank managers are becoming quite frequent, and are about more or less weekly, but the police are doing their best to prevent such attacks and to punish those who are guilty.

Since the European invasion with gunboats together on the coast of the continent in the whole number of Christians in some towns near the mountains. The small towns of the coast were used that they would have been invaded a year ago.

Of course, with these outrages there are an equal number of good and noble instances of well known people. Thus two days ago Mrs. Albertson was an interesting case.

SOCIETY STUDES

Yesterday Mrs. Albertson had a fine luncheon with about 20 in the hall of the Hotel. She was the guest of the day. Her husband, a well known lawyer, had been in the city for some time. Mrs. Albertson was an interesting woman, but her husband and her husband's affairs have become the subject of much discussion for years.

Handwritten notes seem to be the subject of the paper. It may be that the public mind has been shocked by the extraordinary case of a woman who had been in the city for some time. The case is described in the paper as a woman who had been in the city for some time. The case is described in the paper as a woman who had been in the city for some time.

As a rule the paper contains the news of the day. It may be that the public mind has been shocked by the extraordinary case of a woman who had been in the city for some time. The case is described in the paper as a woman who had been in the city for some time.
