A Delightful Home AND A CERTAIN INCOME
We have had placed in our hands for sale a delightful property in the Litorea District at a very low price on which a return of 12 per cent per annum is assured for the next four years by contracts already entered into with the Uganda Railway. This income could be evenly increased by dairying, pig and poultry farming. There is a comfortable home on the property, and anyone desiring a home in beautiful surroundings combined with an assured income should consult us.

FORD SERVICE
"we sell and the Ford Car."
"The desire to serve will be the basis of the Ford Motor Co.'s policy of service in the manufacturing of business machinery to-day."
This desire to serve will be not only the desire of a Ford dealer here and there about the country. It is the by word of an entire organization of thousands of dealers and service stations. It is a desire of a business founded on service and maintained by the service ideal.
Ford Cars are built to run and give to their purchasers the service for which they paid. How good the factory service is in this respect is testified by hundreds of thousands of owners.

Missionary Education

ITS AIMS AND MEANS TO ATTAIN THEM

The following paper by the Rev. J. Britton, D.D., was read before the Education Committee of the Education Department of the Government of Kenya and set the discussion the motion to discuss the same.

NECESSITY FOR CLEAR DEFINITION

All Missionary Societies are quite definite in their general religious objects with reference to those among whom they work. The language used is not always the same, but each term is "Conversion of the heathen," "Evangelization of the world," "Establishment of the Kingdom of Christ," sufficiently indicate their intention.

They mean quite vigorously and consistently that their aim is to carry out the instructions of the Lord as set forth in the Gospels.

With this general aim in view, Missionaries have ventured forth enduring hardships and sometimes yielding their lives as a willing sacrifice to the Lord.

Not that their definition of the Missionary's aim is today simple. It needs explanation in some circumstances that none of the early ages when the primitive missionary adventure in its purest form was followed by the transitional period when the ancient world was passing into the modern civilization.

It is necessary to look for others, in the high lands that Missionaries have reached their educational aims.

PITFALLS

In doing so we find ourselves in danger of falling into numerous pitfalls.

(1) We must avoid being too narrow and too limited in our aims. It is impossible to limit education to religion, for a religious education invariably sets in motion a chain of events that leads to a process which, if not carefully directed, will introduce into the world the spirit of fanaticism.

(2) We cannot limit our aims only to Culture or to fit our aims to the culture in a society where a matter of fact life is an intensely practical matter.

(3) Finally we cannot make utility our sole aim, or we shall be depriving the student of all that is essential to his life as a human being, and indeed will render social life impossible.

(4) Our aim must not be to create a class of men who are to be regarded as a separate class, but to create a class of men who are to be regarded as a part of the community.

(5) We must avoid being too narrow and too limited in our aims. It is impossible to limit education to religion, for a religious education invariably sets in motion a chain of events that leads to a process which, if not carefully directed, will introduce into the world the spirit of fanaticism.

(8) Our aim must not be to create a class of men who are to be regarded as a separate class, but to create a class of men who are to be regarded as a part of the community.

(9) We must avoid being too narrow and too limited in our aims. It is impossible to limit education to religion, for a religious education invariably sets in motion a chain of events that leads to a process which, if not carefully directed, will introduce into the world the spirit of fanaticism.

(10) We cannot limit our aims only to Culture or to fit our aims to the culture in a society where a matter of fact life is an intensely practical matter.

(11) Finally we cannot make utility our sole aim, or we shall be depriving the student of all that is essential to his life as a human being, and indeed will render social life impossible.

(12) Our aim must not be to create a class of men who are to be regarded as a separate class, but to create a class of men who are to be regarded as a part of the community.

absolutely it tends to humanize Africa and to increase efficiency. I feel inspired upon this question of co-operation with Government. I believe that just as the world generally feels the possibility for the year of our Lord 1930 so I believe we are here in Kenya working out a system of co-operation with Government which might well be copied in our Mother Country.

Just imagine what an advance would be achieved in England if all benevolent-minded men and women formed an Education Alliance, and having selected a religious policy, discussed with Government a united body a scheme of complete organic co-operation in all educational affairs.

CONCLUSION In closing I bring you back to Kenya, indeed to Elgeyo. Here we are standing for a united band of Christian Missionaries co-operating with Government in the education of the Native Races. We do not feel that in fulfilling our duty as Educational Agents, either in our General Vocational or our Intermediate of us, our Intermediates, we shall be fulfilling the loftiest and noblest ideals that have inspired "Ministry" endeavor throughout the ages.

Agricultural Essay

THE BANANA AND HOW TO GROW IT.

Below is the essay on 'The Banana', written by Mrs. Kidson of Kyambaa, and commended by the judges on the recent A.A. Standard competition. The essay 'Kwanda' will not be based on literary style, but on the encouragement to write an essay on the subject of the Banana. The Banana is one of the most useful of economic plants. The fruit and fibre make it food and covering for infant, man, and beast. As few people know how to plant the banana in the most profitable way I begin with the planting.

PLANTING

Line out for holes 11 ft 11 ft the holes 5 feet deep by 3 feet diameter. Planting this way gives 300 bananas to the acre. These bunches taken at P. 1-50 per bunch average to a revenue of £4 gross for the first crop. The root of plant set at 20 cents per cent, costs P. 20 and a rough estimate of preparing one acre of land is P. 30. Less up-keep of land, and 20 per cent. use from high winds, £20 net profit for the first crop.

SELECTION I

Choose a possible a root from a stem which has already borne fruit, cut the entire root clean, away from the rest of the suckers, trim off any lengthy plants attached, and cut leaving the eyes or knobs which will be found around the base of the original mother root.

Plant the entire root under ground and on of night in the big wide hole which has been already prepared to receive it. The soil mother root nourishes the young eyes or knobs which in a few weeks time will show themselves above ground and you may take on the name of 'suckers'.

Let all the suckers grow for a short time until the best and strongest of the lot can be decided upon. Choose the best, and cut out down all the others.

When the suckers (say 10) are about two weeks (say 1 month) again take the choice of the two suckers left, and cut down the weaker ones.

You will now have one strong sucker and one weaker one. You should let it remain single for six months. All of that time let a second sucker grow up, and at the end of the year let a third sucker grow alongside, so that from the one hole or 'stand' you should have a succession of banana trees growing up in regular order. All the other suckers may be systematically cut down, so that from the one stand the growth and size of the banana tree.

These 'mother roots' that I cut I select. I can be planted during any part of a dry spell, as the soil grows through the settlement on the young eyes or knobs, until the roots are above ground.

Therefore, this is an ideal dry weather crop and the farmer can secure a regular income, by planting out his banana plantation fully or almost fully grown. Having chosen your tree, cut it down to the ground and dig out the roots as plants above directions.

And planting young banana trees that have just emerged from the mother stand, and in any case do not plant the whole tree because of the fact that the tree may die before the new tree has taken the place, leaving the root system for planting.

At the way you get a quicker return and a stronger plant. Planting the young banana trees with leaves on, takes 3 months longer to show leaves, and it throws a smaller bunch, and only the root is planted. This is a superior practice and worthy of experimenting with should any farmer wish to plant the banana tree to help to better the trust of this statement.

Planting is considered beneficial to the planter, and at the same time it helps to keep the weeds down. Care must be taken to ensure that the soil is kept green throughout the plantation. Legumes like the best.

DRAINING

Bananas planted on a flat piece of ground require a certain amount of drainage system, and those planted on a slope should be protected from scouring or wash. Fencing around the bananae or a times a year improve the soil of the bananae.

Wind breaks—It is quite advisable to have a wind break on the western side of the field. In this country the bananae appear to be planted from 10 to 15 months to start fruit from the time of planting 'roots' and the longer the stand when 'suckers' are planted.

When the fruit first appears on the tree it points up, protected by a purple sheath, which turns over and soon the sheath drops off showing the 'bunch' pointing down. After a short time the sheath drops, and the bunch is seen. It is then ready to be cut and the bunch is cut and the 4th or 5th month, it is ready for picking.

It then takes 4 or 5 weeks to ripen. One can reckon on the banana crop taking from 17 to 20 months to the first crop. The bananae are planted in rows. These dates may differ a little according to the soil, but the above is a general rule. I write from observations taken around Nairobi district.

GREEN FRUIT

When the fruit is mature (before it is ripe) it can be used as a vegetable. The outer skin is peeled off, the fruit must be thoroughly washed and cut into small pieces. It is then used like a potato, and served with white sauce.

Boiled green bananae make an excellent change of food for dogs and poultry to say nothing of pigs. Should a very young bunch of bananae meet with misfortune and fail it can always be boiled and turned into a pig and poultry food.

FLOUR-MAKING

The graded green bananae can also be dried, and made into flour. The outer skin is peeled off, and the fruit is cut into small pieces. The fruit is then dried in the sun, and the flour is made by grinding the fruit in a mill.

The flour is used for making bread, and other baked goods. It is a good substitute for wheat flour, and is especially useful in areas where wheat is scarce.

The flour is also used for making animal feed, and for other purposes. It is a versatile product, and can be used in many different ways.

The flour is a good source of nutrition, and is especially useful for children and the elderly. It is a healthy and delicious food, and can be used in many different ways.
