Section of Goodyear Tube before and after vulcanization

'Built up layer upon layer'

Aeroplane propellers, in order to withstand enormous strains, are built up of many thin plies of wood. This is called the laminated process of construction.

Just so, Goodyear tubes are built of laminated rubber, and this method of manufacture enables them to satisfactorily withstand the strains imposed upon them by high pressures, heat and the buffeting of rough roads.

Every Goodyear tube is built up of many sheets of pure, tannic thin gum placed layer upon layer until the full thickness is reached and then completely vulcanized together.

This is the reason Goodyear tubes are never porous and are so completely superior to ordinary tubes.

A Goodyear cover supported by a Goodyear Heavy Tourist tube is the combination you will eventually buy for your car or motor cycle for the reason that it is becoming more apparent day by day that Goodyear tyres and tubes lead all others in mileage and durability by a comfortable margin and still cost no more than other makes.

Don't trust to luck

When you buy tea in ordinary tin it is a toss-up whether you get tea that is fit to drink or not, and in a tropical climate you lose.

But Brooke Bond vacuum-packed tea is a certainty. However long you keep it, Brooke Bond tea from the vacuum tin is always crisp, and fresh, and pure. To drink it is a real pleasure.

Brooke Bond Tea

It costs no more than ordinary tea.

Synthetic Petrol. A new motor fuel is now being manufactured successfully, so they say in France. It is made by passing steam and other inflammable oils over a special apparatus containing water and hydrogen. It is then passed over nickel. The result is a petrol which is claimed to have the qualities of petrol, and to be useful for all purposes, and as a material for manufacturing explosives, colouring matter, and perfumes. It is stated that other vegetable and animal oils can be employed for synthetic petrol.

The Spare Tyre. Motorists will find that they spend five minutes each morning much better if it is just used to service for a day or two. The reason for this is because, but it is probably due to what physicians call "muscular restriction" in the rubber portion of the tyre caused by leaving it unused. Whatever the cause of the deterioration, it is a fact that a spare tyre should be used at least once a week, and the tyre should be checked for air pressure.

UGANDA SIFTINGS.

SUGGESTION THAT IS WORTH A TRIAL.

NOTES ON PRODUCE.

[From our own correspondents.]
 Kampala, Nov. 17.—In the course of a conversation which I had recently with a prominent citizen, who also happened to be a farmer himself, the subject came up about the growing of cotton which seems to have very little to be said against it, and the possibility of increasing the output, and what might be done to the effect, to which he has looked into the whole of the thing.
 Compulsion, it is well understood, has failed to induce the cotton grower to increase his production. The Government has not only to find ways to induce him to do so, but also to find ways to increase his production, and to do this in a way that will not be a burden upon him.

My friend's suggestion was that in order to make a start, a number of the natives in some of the areas should be given a small amount of seed cotton, and that they should be allowed to sell the produce at a fixed price. This would be a step towards the production of cotton, and it would be a step towards the production of a market for the cotton. The suggestion is a simple one, and it is one that is worth a trial.

The Native Land Board.
 One of the members of the Uganda Cotton Committee, certain of whom have been accused of the production of cotton, is being investigated by the Government.

Uganda Produce.
 A correspondent who signs himself "Uganda" takes me to task in your issue of October 27, for an article which I wrote on "Uganda Produce" in the "Standard" of October 10. He says: "Kampala correspondents must be suffering from indigestion and a lack of knowledge of the country when they write what you write. One month ago your column on the subject of the cotton growers who have the interest of the country at heart is being corrected to spread the truth. That to make money, the only possible method of increasing cultivation on a large scale should be introduced."
 On the face of it the suggestion is worth a trial.

It is a pity that the writer should be so much in error, but I will give him the benefit of the doubt. It is not possible to state that the writer is ignorant of the facts of the cotton growing in Uganda, as he is not a native of the country.

LESSONS THAT ARE WORTH STUDYING
THE COMPONENT PARTS OF RUBBER PRODUCTION

London, November 21. As regards the utilization of Empire resources, a meeting of the Executive Council of the British Empire Exhibition, with the Duke of Devonshire presiding, was held at the Board of Trade offices, where it was understood that the question of an empire toll on agricultural produce of the exhibition was considered. The High Commissioner attended the Council for the first time. A statement is expected shortly. The Duke of Devonshire, in a letter to the Press, describes as quite invaluable the statement in a meeting paper that the meeting of the Executive Council on British Empire Exhibition was distinctly satisfactory. He says that the Council was unanimously of the opinion that the exhibition should be an outside enterprise, and that the Government had no responsibility in reference to the Exhibition. The Council advised the Duke of Devonshire, himself and two colleagues, to send the results of the meeting to the Board of Trade.

FORCED LABOUR
NATIVE PROBLEMS IN EAST AFRICA
A PARROT CRY.

The following account is taken from the "Kisumu" and is written by a resident in Uganda— from the mouth of the natives, who have no doubt, in fact, is in the work of Stirling, and from the native point of view, is quite suitable to his mode of living, if he wishes to lay claims to equality with the white man. There is no doubt to be made. To do this, he must work. There is no doubt about that. The white man desires of the native, who has no present for state of civilization, to work for him, to do his work for him, so that he may earn his way to good for him. It is a correct cry for political reasons. It is an appeal to the emotions of the white man, who understands his black man in his natural surroundings, who do not understand his mode of life, his ideas, his habits, and his difficulties. The Government recognize the necessity of making the native work in order to earn his money. The Government realize that, but they do not see as an end to the native. The Government realize that, but they do not see as an end to the native. The Government realize that, but they do not see as an end to the native.
