AB PROMISES BRIGHT OF

India ready to consider future tours of E.A.

The promise of bright, entertaining cricket was made by the Ministry of External Affairs, when they invited the Uganda touring team to begin their tour of East Africa. The visitors open their tour with a three-day match against Uganda starting tomorrow at the Lugogo Stadium.

The Nawab said: "Although we do not have the kind of opposition we will face, we do not mind the cricket in East Africa and the conditions under which we will be playing, we welcome to provide cricket and entertainment for the Indian tourists."

He added: "Don't make a mistake and think we are taking a short-cut. We are taking the time to go to Kampala, we are determined to play in our own stadium. Victory is our aim and we will not be satisfied until we have won."

There is a slight change in the touring party. The Uganda team is led by the captain, Charles O'Brien, who has been dropped from the team by the Uganda selectors, for the three-day series at Lugogo against the Indians. Shantaram was his first cap for Uganda.

The boom in mini night clubs

Discotheques, night clubs are booming in London.

A Delightful Complexion Bloom

Wrinkles are really "revived" of dry cells caused by the plasma solution (the electric current) which is drawn out through the pores of the skin and the drying effect of the plasma and weather. To bring new life and moisture to your skin and stop wrinkles, use a new smooth in a film of beautiful oil of all the best before making-up. This will restore your skin to depth and give you complexion a delightful dewy bloom.

Why are 90 out of every 100 Land-Rovers in East Africa fitted with AVON tyres?

because of what people ask Land-Rovers to do.

Fully-loaded or empty, fast or slow, cross-country, road or track, Land-Rovers steadily meet every demand made of them in a rugged country. This sort of driving is the greatest test a tyre can have. That's why 90 out of every 100 Land-Rovers are fitted with AVON TYRES.

MAJOR PROBLEM

One of the biggest problems which the African continent has at present is the shortage of trained personnel.

SUBSIDIARY

From the last few years the need for a trained staff has become more and more acute.

THE FACES OF HOPE

SOME sit with their knitting on the steps of employment exchanges, chatting. Others find a quiet corner where they watch the world go by for four or five hours, doing nothing, rarely speaking.

...but for most there is no work

Most of the remainder find work with private firms or on their own.

But there are still women in the market who are not getting on their feet.

...ars in African emergence

By HERMAN GARDNER

THE 1952 South Africa election has been a landmark event in the history of the continent. It has shown that the African people are now capable of electing their own representatives to the highest offices of the State. This is a significant step towards the realization of the African dream of self-determination.

The South African Government has taken a number of steps to ensure the smooth running of the election. These include the appointment of a special commission to investigate the conduct of the election and the establishment of a special court to deal with any disputes that may arise.

The results of the election have shown that the African people have elected a large number of representatives to the National Assembly. This is a clear indication of the growing political awareness and participation of the African people in the affairs of their country.

BRIDGE

THE SQUEEZE Part 3

By REG MANUS

As you have probably observed, you can only squeeze a player if he has no diamonds before the hand begins. The three cards in either opponent can be squeezed if he has no diamonds in both the previous suits. Let's try and find this.

On the west of the Ace of Diamonds, only West can be squeezed. The cards in his hand are the King of Spades, the Ace of Hearts, and the King of Clubs. Let us now investigate South's line of play for North's hand.

South should have a card in each suit. This is a standard hand for a player in the position of South. The cards in his hand are the King of Spades, the Ace of Hearts, and the King of Clubs.

ONLY THE PRESIDENTS' desire to be elected to the White House, and the fact that the country is in a state of economic depression, are the two main reasons why the general public will be so interested in the results of the election.

As the Bill had the general support of the National Association, there was considerable doubt as to whether it would pass. The fact that it was passed is a reflection of the general public's interest in the results of the election.

By removing the special status for residents who are citizens, and introducing 12 detailed categories of immigrants, it will undoubtedly make many jobs held by such non-citizens into a "Kenyans Only" type of job. It will be one of the tasks of the new business to decide whether there are, and to press for cooperation by the firms concerned for a Kenyan to take over.

So long as the assessment is done fairly and no undue pressure is exerted on either side, there can be no complaints over this. Non-citizens who were eligible but who chose not to become Kenyans did so with their eyes open.

It must be stressed that the number of points made available through stricter immigration procedures will be strictly limited. This will not answer the general employment problem, which may only be tackled in the context of greater productivity, a bigger response to the President's "Back-to-the-land" call, and by attracting more investment to create more jobs.

It has many times been made clear by Ministers and other leaders that Kenya will need the services of expatriate technical expertise and managers and commercial executives, for a long time. Their services are more important than those of Kenyans rather than holds them back.

This is not to say, perhaps, that it may be hoped there will be an end to the practice of making cheap political capital out of the presence of expatriates, and to unjustified complaints of "take-Africanization".

One often hears it that against "window-dressing" it is that some firms take on Africans who are offered highly paid but are not allowed to take decisions, and in some cases are merely used as a "window-dressing" device.

The remedy for this would seem to lie more with those who are being used in this way than with those who are offering their services. They should make way for those who can be of more use to the firms.

Nairobi's sporting Mayor

AS KENYA CAPTAL CITY, Nairobi has a special place in the hearts of its citizens. It is the seat of the Mayor of the national importance. Consider the fact that the Mayor of the city is a sportsman, and that he is also a member of the city's sports club. This is a unique situation in the history of the city.

As a sportsman, the Mayor has a special interest in the development of sports in Nairobi. He has been instrumental in the establishment of many sports clubs and has been instrumental in the development of many sports facilities.

The Mayor's interest in sports is not only limited to the city of Nairobi. He has been instrumental in the development of sports in other parts of Kenya. He has been instrumental in the establishment of many sports clubs and has been instrumental in the development of many sports facilities.

CONGRATULATIONS on your splendid leader's article on the subject of "The Church's role in the development of Kenya". It is a well-balanced, moderate, yet far-reaching, article which is a new, though not surprising, aspect of our versatile editor.

It is a pity that while the author is in the service from which he is writing, he is not able to visit Kenya to see the work of the Church in the field. He is a member of the staff of the United Nations, which is a new, though not surprising, aspect of our versatile editor.

The visit of Archbishop Mervin Carver to Kenya is a welcome sign that the Church is taking an interest in the development of Kenya. It is a well-balanced, moderate, yet far-reaching, article which is a new, though not surprising, aspect of our versatile editor.

I hope that in every Province of the Church, there will be a similar interest in the development of Kenya. It is a well-balanced, moderate, yet far-reaching, article which is a new, though not surprising, aspect of our versatile editor.

Mr. Adamson's celebrated commitment to lions had him to the heart of Merti National Park, he developed himself to proving himself in captivity can be completely rehabilitated.

Text and pictures by MURRAY RITCHIE

Mr. Adamson would like to see an education of the present lion population incorporating a lot of the lion of Merti National Park, where visitors to the Park close to the lion and in the evening, lions in control in the chowls of growling and roaring.

On a visit last week to the Park, I was met by Mr. Adamson to Gir's den on the hillside. As we approached the camp bounding towards us through tall grass and over a rocky ridge, we were met by a lioness who had been waiting for us. She looked at us for a moment, then she turned and walked away.

Mr. Adamson was speaking of a rock high above a swampy hollow of some of the lion's wilder country, which he had called at Merti National Park, where a lioness had been seen to kill a lion.

Mr. Adamson would like to see an education of the present lion population incorporating a lot of the lion of Merti National Park, where visitors to the Park close to the lion and in the evening, lions in control in the chowls of growling and roaring.

On a visit last week to the Park, I was met by Mr. Adamson to Gir's den on the hillside. As we approached the camp bounding towards us through tall grass and over a rocky ridge, we were met by a lioness who had been waiting for us. She looked at us for a moment, then she turned and walked away.

Mr. Adamson was speaking of a rock high above a swampy hollow of some of the lion's wilder country, which he had called at Merti National Park, where a lioness had been seen to kill a lion.

Water fighting in regions has crippled production in main centres of the heavily populated north-east China region bordering the Soviet Union, reported from Peking yesterday.

One report said some 100,000 tons of grain, iron and steel from Anhui, near the North Korean border, had been paralyzed by the fighting which involves the army, rival conventional forces and anti-Maoists.

The situation was so serious that the Chinese Communist Party is sending a special mission to the area, as it did in similar fighting reported last month in the far west and mountainous centre of Yunnan.

The Japanese reports said all seven provinces of Manchuria were affected in this latest outbreak. It is now thought that the Chinese Communist Party is in control of the districts of Heilong, Jilin and Shaanxi.

A major proportion of China's 40 million population lives in the north-eastern part of the country. The country's main industrial area, the Peking region, is also located there.

The Chinese daily Shinhua said the government would be sending a special mission to the area, as it did in similar fighting reported last month in the far west and mountainous centre of Yunnan.

The Japanese reports said all seven provinces of Manchuria were affected in this latest outbreak. It is now thought that the Chinese Communist Party is in control of the districts of Heilong, Jilin and Shaanxi.

Bloody incidents

The Henan trouble led to at least 800 wounded, according to a wall poster in Peking at the time.

The Shinhua report did not mention any casualty figures in the Manchurian districts, but said that Maoist, called Red Guard, forces were active in the Beijing area and in the provinces of Henan, Heilong, Jilin and Shaanxi.

The correspondent said anti-Maoist and revolutionary forces had clashed at Mukden, capital of Manchuria, and in other parts of the province.

More building the only answer
 The House also which controls the rent of medium-sized and small houses was originally planned to cover all houses but it was amended by Parliament to exempt larger and more expensive properties. Yet these houses, since they usually are in more remote areas, are the ones most demanded by the new African middle-class of civil servants and commercial executives with three, four or more children.

It is clearly impossible for them to meet rents of £80, £100 and even £150, which are now common for such houses, even with the help of subsidies from the Government of Kenya.

In some cases the rents may be justified—where houses are built on "ambulatory" style—but in others the property has long since paid for itself and the Government's clear profit. Even in the case of smaller houses which are technically covered by the Rent Act, they have been complained that its provisions are being bypassed by private deals between landlords and people in possession of accommodation.

The long-term answer is to be sought in a study published by the National Commission for the Housing of Kenya, which was set up by the Government in 1959. The study points out that the Government has spent £10,000,000 on housing in Kenya since 1945, but that it has not been able to build more than 10,000 houses. It is estimated that Kenya needs 100,000 houses by 1965. THE MERE COME WORKING SIX RARE RHINOS IN FIGHT FOR SURVIVAL

THE wide-ripped rhino almost extinct in hearing extinction in East of Africa. But it is under constant protection in Kenya.

At Meru National Park there are six specimens—two bulls and three cows—which must be among the most precious animals in Africa. These animals provide the only hope that this rare and massive beast will be preserved in Kenya. Unfortunately, no permit is held to help the poacher have had several poachers.

The major trouble is that the rhino—often very tame—has almost been exterminated while rhinos are now as scarce as domestic cats. They are no longer hunted for their horns, but are being poached for their meat and for their hide. The rhino is also being poached for its horns, which are used in traditional medicine.

KE STANLEY MAN'S

The most sturdy of Kenya's unemployed, these young men who long for a new center at Limuru, which has largely been converted to the sacrifice of one man. The story and commentary they hid behind the new venture is told in this article.

by Michael Boydell

'Golden handshake' helps destitute

A FORMER superintendent in the Lyngankya Police is spending the whole of his "golden handshake" amounting to £20,000 on helping Kenya's destitute youth.

The man making this rare sacrifice is Mr. Menon, a convicted his master, who had owned Limuru, its founding and its name. He is now superintendent of the Lyngankya Police, and he has spent the whole of his "golden handshake" amounting to £20,000 on helping Kenya's destitute youth.

It was in 1953 that Mr. Menon, a convicted his master, who had owned Limuru, its founding and its name. He is now superintendent of the Lyngankya Police, and he has spent the whole of his "golden handshake" amounting to £20,000 on helping Kenya's destitute youth.

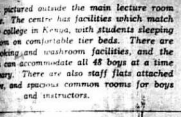

The main block of the centre which contains most of the bedrooms and communal rooms.

It is also hoped to teach some identifying, eye-witness, welding and plant maintenance. The technician course will enable boys to reach at least the standard of Pass Certificate Grade III, and the agricultural practice and manual training will be carried out in the external alpacas started. Although the emphasis is on agriculture, some boys will be able to find jobs in the towns with their trade training.

Mr. Menon's deal will include a house in Nairobi, V.O.C. and who used to work for him at Lyngankya. Mr. Menon's deal will include a house in Nairobi, V.O.C. and who used to work for him at Lyngankya.

Mr. Menon has also offered to sponsor boys who cannot afford school-boards, which affect about 90,000 people a year.

The does not plan to expand the Limuru Centre, as he considers the present size ideal to provide the right degree of personal contact. But there is no reason why plans should not be made to expand throughout Kenya, perhaps with money provided by people who are the moment only feel a pang of conscience when they see the ragged hands of boys who are forced to expose themselves by begging in car parks or in the streets.

Mr. Menon visited the centre and found it ideal, and so

At that time he had nothing but his own resources to go on and the most urgent task was to find a headquarters. He visited several places in Kenya, and he found that the best place to build the centre was at Limuru.
