Kasela-Bantu acquitted: 10 to be hanged

They were jointly charged with the murder of "Guilly" of murder and sentenced to death. The trial, which had lasted 22 days, had heard evidence in prosecution.

In a packed and guarded court, with about 3,000 people waiting outside, the Chief Justice took five hours to deliver his 17,000-word judgment.

He said that on the case as a Kasela-Bantu, he had not found that the four assessors who assisted him were of much help.

Seventeen people were on trial while 45 had been released. The fact is that the length and the complexity of both the evidence and the trial has strained the capacity of the assessors and they were unable to appreciate and analyse the evidence should. For this reason, I do not find it possible to follow their advice.

88 hurt at 'decency' rally

About 88 people were injured and 110 arrested in Baltimore, Maryland, on Sunday night when fighting broke out at a rally of 40,000 young people organized by a campaign for 'decency' in American life.

The trouble started with a demonstration of hostility to the speeches, music and prayers at the rally. Young people started shouting slogans and breaking up chairs.

At this point, fighting developed between black and white youths, using sticks, stones and glass from broken windows. Later, groups of young people roamed the streets breaking shop windows.

Among the injured were a 16-year-old boy, stabbed in the chest, and a 38-year-old policeman who suffered a heart attack. An organizer of the rally, Miss Lynn Dorsey, asked afterwards: 'How do you find decency in American life?'

The young people were organized by the National American and saluted the national flag. Many of the young people were policemen, wore the slogan: 'Teens for decency'.

Meeting over Negro's death

All the Negro inhabitants of Port Gibson, Mississippi, were attending a meeting yesterday following the alleged murder of a Negro by the town's deputy police chief.

The meeting was being held against the tense background of an after-dark curfew, police charges against protesting Negroes and support for Port Gibson's Negroes from the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (N.A.A.C.P.).

Taking a stand which is unusual for this non-violent organization, Mr. Charles Evers, the local N.A.A.C.P. representative, said: "I want to see every Black in the country as the courthouse. Every body."

ANGRY ISLAND STILL SMOULDERS

The troubled island of Anguilla was yesterday still rumbling with discontent and rumors of more demonstrations following the departure of the British Commissioner, Mr. Anthony Lee.

Mr. Lee, who left Anguilla by air on Sunday to go on leave, has been the target of a bitter 'Keep Must Go' campaign, launched by militant Anguillians. He was sworn in as Commissioner on March 18.

Mr. John Cumber (48), British administrator of the Caribbean islands, will administer Anguilla during Mr. Lee's absence.

Anguilla's rebel leader, Mr. Ronald Webster, on Sunday, described as a 'double crosser' the agreement he reached on March 20 with British chief representatives at the United Nations, Lord Caradon.

Mr. Webster announced he was leaving Anguilla today for the United States where he plans to have further talks with Lord Caradon.

The rebel leader has demanded the withdrawal of British troops and police before new negotiations on the constitutional future of the island can begin.

He and his militant supporters await British reaction to their demands for greater elections and the withdrawal of British forces.

Anguillians believe the British Government will lend sympathy to their cause to the election call, but have pointed out that the authority of the proposed 10-member council will be a bitter pill for both sides.

It is felt Britain will give the green light for general elections if the council is mainly advisory to the British representative on the island.

But despite continued assurances that they would not be placed under an administration they did not want Anguillians are yet to be convinced that no attempts would be made to return them to the St. Kitts-Nevis-Anguilla Government which they rebelled against in May 1967.

Stoking the blaze

Almost every day for the past fortnight, there have been shouting between the Israelis and their encircling enemies. They have been in the Golan Heights, the Suez Canal, the Jordan River and in the conflict.

Explosive statements have been made in the U.A.R., Jordan and Syria about the inevitability of war. Yet King Hussein is reported to be seeking a basis for a peaceful solution; and Dr. Fawzi talks in the U.S. about the necessity for a durable settlement coming out of the Four Power talks.

In all this woe propaganda, like the gross exaggeration of the claim that 30 Israeli soldiers were killed in a commando raid across the Suez when a Tel Aviv announcement says one soldier was slightly wounded and a military vehicle damaged. Or the two offensives timed to coincide in order to boost morale in the Arab countries, keep Israel jumping in a war of nerves, while the Middle East blaze is stoked in order to terrify the world.

Despite the Soviet replacement of aircraft, tanks and other arms lost by the U.A.R. in the June War, an attempted invasion of Sinai, would be suicidal for the U.A.R. The Egyptian artillery action has diminished in effectiveness since the first heavy firing along the Canal last October.

Israeli casualties were high in those exchanges. They came retaliation and the Yam Yam reaction. A respite of two months enabled the Israeli forces to dig in and improve their concrete emplacements. Now that these defences are almost completed, the Israelis appear to have regained the initiative. Concentrations fired on pin-point targets have seriously damaged one two Suez refineries and port installations, gravely depleting U.A.R.'s reserves of oil.

Israel celebrates its 21st anniversary of independence tomorrow. As this ancient Biblical country "comes of age" in a modern sense, what are its chief problems? First, how is to dispel the Orwellian situation where a minority of 2,800,000 people are grotesquely misrepresented as constituting a danger to the encircling majority of 100,000,000, convinced that the Israelis are a majority denying minority rights to the Arabs.

Getting on for two years after the June War, peace has not been realised and Israel's struggle is divided into two main aspects, military and political. Despite all the Russians have done to refurbish the Arab armies, their combat effectiveness has not been improved. Israel occupies a stronger strategic position than before the war, with forces entrenched on the Golan Heights, the Suez Canal, the Jordan River and on the Golan Heights.

Unable to launch a general offensive, the Arab ring of fire is attempting to wear down morale and weaken Israeli strength by shellfire and guerrilla attacks. Though it is almost impossible to gauge the casualties, it would seem Israeli losses are lower than those of the Arab forces. The frequency of continuous attacks has to be evaluated against a political background, since there has been no military gain.

To nations inflamed by extremists, the shelling and raids impress public opinion, which is the human suffering caused by the military actions. Apart from all the excitement, the Suez dislocation of the human suffering, the necessity of continuous attacks has to be evaluated against a political background, since there has been no military gain.

Thereby, they expect to gain what they are unable to win by force; a unilateral withdrawal of occupying Israeli armies. In exchange, would the Arab countries faithfully implement the Security Council's resolution in solving free passage of the Canal and an everlasting and just peace? Israel cannot afford to form a bridgehead in the Middle East. The arrangements made by the Big Powers in 1957 collapsed in 1967 when the U.N. force was withdrawn on President Nasser's demand.

How can a just peace come about while he threatens to occupy the Golan Heights, the Sinai and his party stands on the "Three No's of Kharouf" - no recognition of Israel, no negotiations and no peace with Israel? Peace can be assured only if all the combatants are willing to reach a solution by direct negotiations, not under a formula imposed on the region by the Four Powers which the region's negotiators and peace-lovers are unwilling to accept.

Bill on unofficial strikes not decisive enough

By DEREK INGRAM

For ten years at least it has been apparent to many in Britain that there must sooner or later be a showdown one and for all between trade unions and the Government.

The Labour Government found the need for it. For four years it fumbled it. At last the dread day has come. At long last, now Mr. Wilson and his Secretary for Employment and Productivity, Mrs. Barbara Castle, are locked in combat with the unions—and with members of their own party.

But now that the showdown has come, a lack of courage and determination looks like producing a protracted guerrilla struggle instead of a short, sharp fight.

After yet another punishing Budget in which taxes have been increased by £300,000,000 a year, the Labour Government has decided to introduce a Bill which will curb unofficial strikes.

The idea is to prohibit an unofficial strike which is harming the national economy. The Government can then sue the workers back for damages. It is a bold move, but it is not a secret ballot, instead of public voting by the workers.

Mr. Wilson finds himself in a difficult situation. His Government's reputation for honesty and integrity is at stake. If the Bill is not passed, it will be a major setback for the Government.

for their wages, but if they do not pay, the Government can order the bailiffs to confiscate a worker's possessions.

The Bill sounds tough when it is set against present British practice. But it is not nearly as tough as the Government intended it to be and certainly not as tough as the Opposition demands.

It is this failure to be truly tough and determined that will be the final undoing of Mr. Wilson. For the showdown with the unions is just about his last chance to retrieve support for his Government and win the next election which must take in, at the latest, two years' time.

Among the mass of the public the Bill is a popular measure. It is a potential vote-catcher and it would catch more votes if it was tougher. Mr. Wilson's original intention was to threaten to call strikers if they refused to pay their dues.

Pressures and threats on the Government from union leaders and the Prime Minister. The Bill is not in the Bill.

Mr. Wilson planned also to legislate for strike calls to be put to a secret ballot, instead of public voting by the workers.

Mr. Wilson finds himself in a difficult situation. His Government's reputation for honesty and integrity is at stake. If the Bill is not passed, it will be a major setback for the Government.

the country has been left so strong for at least 10 years.

A move against the unions is therefore a cardinal objective of Mr. Wilson's Government. It is done to get the economy moving, but that is just about the last chance to recapture lost support among the centre, floating voters.

All recent public opinion polls have shown overwhelming support for moves to prevent unofficial strikes. The Trade Union Congress and many other leaders up and down the country are strongly opposed to any such legislation.

Churches oppose to corruption says N. C. K. head

Standard Staff Reporter
The general secretary of the National Christian Council of Kenya, Mr. C. Kamau, has expressed allegations by Chief Government Minister Mr. Martin Shikuku that churches in a were failing to do their duties and actions as spiritual guides, and that they were afraid of pointing out the practical differences between truth and untruth.

Mr. Kamau, in a statement yesterday, said that in Kenya had always been a corruption and added: "I am not prepared to enter into political wrangles which seem to overshadow Mr. Shikuku."

On the question of Africanising the Church, which Mr. Shikuku had advocated, Mr. Kamau said that he agreed with Africanisation and believed that the churches had to implement the policy.

But it had also to be realised that churches were not as easy as taking over the running of the Church. The Council with its member churches agreed that Mr. Shikuku's allegations had been made. Mr. Kamau wondered how serious politicians were in their interest in the running of the churches.

He pointed out that the Church was always willing to discuss grievances with any politician when they were raised. Mr. Shikuku's allegations were not as serious as he made them out to be. He said that he had never come across any member of the Kenya Church who was afraid of pointing out the practical differences between truth and untruth.

Churches persevere to carry on despite N.C.C.K. head

Standard Staff Reporter
The general secretary of the National Christian Council of Kenya, Mr. N. C. Kamau, has announced allegations by the Chief Government Whip, Mr. Martin Shikuku, that churches in Kenya were failing to fulfil their duties and obligations as spiritual institutions, and that they were afraid of pointing to people the practical differences between truth and untruths.

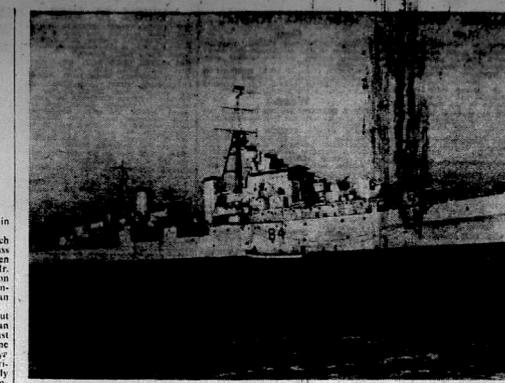

In a statement made yesterday, said that churches in Kenya had always opposed corruption and enter into political wrangles which were an overshadlow Mr. Shikuku.

On the question of Africanising the Church, which Mr. Shikuku had advocated, Mr. Kamau had agreed with Africanisation and believed that the churches had to be in the forefront in implementing the policy.

But he also pointed out that it was not as easy as taking clerical jobs that councils and churches fully supported Africanisation. Some had a long tradition of having white ministers who did not want to leave.

Here we need a long training of the youth.

The Council with its member churches regarded Mr. Shikuku's allegations had been made. Mr. Kamau welcomed Mr. Shikuku's remarks but said he had clearly explained to the

Passenger turned back at Jeddah sues airline

Kenya High Court Judge
Mr. Justice Farrell, was yesterday how passengers travelling to Karachi by Pakistan International Airlines last year had to return to Nairobi after being turned back at Jeddah when they were told that holders of British passports were not allowed entry into Pakistan without visas.

The suit of the passengers, Mr. Mohamed Isahab, was instituted in the High Court by Mr. M. H. Chaudhry who sued P.I.A. for $24,240, as special damages for a return ticket, and damages with interests for the inconvenience he suffered.

In the amended plea, Mr. Clive Satter, Q.C., and Mr. M. T. Mulla, for Mrs. Chaudhry, have stated that February last year, a travel agent from Nairobi to Rawalpindi in West Pakistan via Jeddah, Dhahran, Karachi and Lahore, she was compelled to return to Nairobi without having obtained visas from the Pakistani Embassy, an official had refused to issue them again.

The plaintiff did not confirm any when she was told that holders of British passports resident in Kenya.

She had no objection to returning to Nairobi at her own expense ($22,100) to obtain the necessary visas for her return to Pakistan. The refusal, by a delinquent and the firm knew, or ought to have known, that it was a breach of duty or that it was a cause of damage to Mrs. Chaudhry, she pleaded.

She then claimed that officials at the airline at Jeddah were "too busy" and that most passengers were turned back there. Although she had obtained visas from the Pakistani Embassy, an official had refused to issue them again.

Leaders married by family unit

SEMINAR OPENS

Standard Staff Reporter
The family was the pillar on which society rested and the unit which formed and nurtured the character and personality of those who became leaders, the Minister for Co-operative and Social Services, Mr. Ngala, said yesterday at the opening of a one-week seminar on "inter-professional team work for the family," at the Dolphin Hotel, Mombasa.

He told nearly 70 delegates, who include doctors, nurses, lecturers, community development officials, health personnel and social workers, that it is in the family that values and ideas which guide the destiny of the country are cradled.

He added: "Many of the social problems which are destructive and undermine the goals for which we in the Government labour have their origin in the families where proper attention was not paid to this single social institution."

The seminar, which is the first of its kind in Kenya, has been organized by the Social Welfare Division of the Ministry of Co-operative and Social Services in conjunction with the Ministry of Health.

Among the participants is the Chairman of the Public Health Commission, Mr. W. N. Wambua, who gave the keynote address on the theme: "Inter-professional teamwork for the family."

The seminar is chaired by the Chief Provincial Commissioner, Mr. M. M. Mwangi, and Mr. M. M. Mwangi, who is also the Mayor of Mombasa. Coun. M. Mwangi.

Mr. Ngala said that he could not think of any meeting which he had attended in this year which was of greater importance than the seminar.

The meeting was the result of an appeal by the Ministry of Health which had inquired if there were areas, particularly in the field of family planning, where experts in health and social services from both the Ministry of Health and the Ministry of Co-operative and Social Services were working together to advance the welfare of the nation.

The first social welfare and community development policies were drawn up in 1964 and since then we set out functions aimed at promoting those services which meet the needs of various families and communities.

In carrying out the policies, the Ministry had given special emphasis and priority to those most needing attention.

The Government still held the view that, in providing for the social welfare of the nation, the family was the basic unit. It was the responsibility of the family to provide for the needs of its members.

It should be the duty of those involved to assist the family to understand and appreciate changes. They should be concerned to assist the family to maintain the resources at its disposal.

It is therefore logical that the family and the individual should play the crucial role in the moulding of the character and personality of the people through a concern of general concern in the national development.

It should be the duty of those involved to assist the family to understand and appreciate changes. They should be concerned to assist the family to maintain the resources at its disposal.

Plans for May Day celebrations at Coast

Standard Staff Reporter
Processions, rallies and football matches will form part of the year's May Day celebrations throughout the Coast.

Announcing its programme for the two-day celebrations in Mombasa yesterday, Cot's administrative secretary, Mr. Juma Boy, said that the programme for the province were arranging a limited timetable.

In Mombasa celebrations start on the night of May 30 - May Day eve, with dances at the Lohani and Diamond Jubilee halls. They will continue on the following day with a variety of events. The remaining hours of their day will be spent in the preparation of the programme for the following day.

Mr. Boy said processions, led by him and other trade union leaders at the Coast, would start at the organization's offices in Ball House on Friday morning. They will then proceed to the Municipal Stadium along Salim Road, Kenyatta Avenue and Kipchoyia.

A three-hour rally which will be followed by a football match between Mombasa Trade Unionists and Civil Servants.

The Mombasa D.C., Mr. Njenga, will captain the Civil Servants team, while Mr. Boy will captain the Trade Unionists.

This match will be followed in the evening by one between Liverpool and Ramon, both of which will receive the Cot's Cup.

Mr. Boy yesterday appealed to all workers at the Coast to take part in the celebrations, and to take part in various events.

Dar es Salaam international airport on Nairobi on February 23. He later went out of the aircraft with a newspaper, which was found while sitting in one of the airport's power vans.

The case was told that when approached by a security officer, the man refused to give a name and reply to a question that he placed the paper up from the aircraft and that it was not a bad thing to do.

Later he told one of the police officers who arrested him that, he did not know that the newspaper was banned in Tanzania.

It was alleged that Abdul Momen had been carrying a copy of the paper, published in Nairobi in possession of a prohibited Kenyan publication in Tanzania.

Committee to consider Arusha Combined the National Stadium draw with Fe

Standard Staff Reporter More than two years ago the Nairobi City Council Engineer's Department submitted a plan for the National Stadium complex to be built on a site surrounding the Nairobi Dam at the Nairobi West...

The committee is led by Mr. Kenyan, D. Modia, the Senior Planning Officer with the Nairobi City Council. He submitted the initial plans for the complex late in 1960 to the Ministry of Education and Sports Services. Also on the committee are Mr. Standish, Mr. Kenneth Bolton, Mr. Jackie Gibbons, who will act as secretary, and Mr. Roland Cooper, who takes on the job of public relations officer.

Mr. Modia has called the first meeting of the four-member committee for Thursday. Mr. Modia said yesterday: "This project is of national importance and we will accept any ideas that members of the public would like to submit for consideration. We have to investigate the various possibilities for such a complex and to recommend the best course of action to the Government."

Arusha Combined put up an impressive performance to force a 4-4 draw against a strong Feisal team from Mombasa after being three goals down in the first 15 minutes of the game at Arusha Stadium on Sunday. At half-time they were trailing 3-1.

with a powerful 20-man drive after collecting a substitution from Abdulla. Encouraged by this, the Arusha players pushed forward in the inside-half, Okaka being their second goal in the 33rd minute.

B.A.T. meetings try-out for European tour

Standard Staff Reporter The six B.A.T. sponsored athletics meetings which start on June 3 at the Mombasa Stadium will be used primarily to help selectors of the Kenya Amateur Athletics Association choose the 12-man team to tour Europe from June 19 to July 27.

Mr. William Yeda, said yesterday: "We want all the Olympic athletes to be fit as well as all promising youngsters."

Mr. Yeda denied yesterday that Kenyan athletes would be competing in the 3,000 metres steeplechase silver medal event at the Kenya Olympic Games on the Olympic 800 metres runner, who had been omitted from selection for the Kenya team at the B.A.T. meetings. Mr. Yeda said: "We have chosen the first three athletes in each event of last year's Kenya championships in Nairobi."

All athletes hoping to get the chance of making this important tour of Poland, Sweden, Norway, Finland, Spain, East and West Germany and Rumania must compete in these meetings. The assistant secretary of the Kenya A.A.A.,

"Since then things have changed. Yoda did not run at Nyari and Oduo finished fourth in the 800 metres but they are not excluded from the list. They have every opportunity of having a chance of competing and will definitely be selected for the Kenya team in the six meetings."

The proposed visit to Ghana by 11 Kenya boxers, which was scheduled for last month, is still in the negotiation stage. The team hopes to make the trip to Accra, aboard the inaugural Ghana Airways flight to Nairobi and back, but a spokesman of the Ghana High Commission in Nairobi said: "Dates for the inaugural flight have not been settled yet."

Aires Fernandes retains title

Standard Correspondent Aires Fernandes, Kenya billiards champion for the past two years won the Coast Institute open billiards tournament for the Calicut Cup for the fourth year running. He beat unseeded Kasambai Ebrahim of Aga Khan Club by 59-53.

The meeting dates are: May 3 at Mombasa v. Coast; May 10 at Mera v. Eastern Province; May 24 at Kakamega v. Western Province; May 31 at Kisumu v. Nyandarua; June 7 at Kapapayi v. Rift Valley; June 14 at Thomson's Falls v. Central Province.

The team for Europe will be selected after the June 7 event at Kapapayi.

LEN BULLER WINS PISTOL TROPHY

Len Buller, the Kenya Olympic pistol shot, on Sunday won the Winchester Pistol Trophy competition and a pistol certificate from the International Shooters' Union with a score of 542 points out of a possible 600 at the new Kenya Police Club range at Mathari.

The team for Europe will be selected after the June 7 event at Kapapayi.

West Indies team arrives in London

The West Indies cricket team arrived at London Airport yesterday for a 15-week tour of England. They are one of two visiting teams to meet England in Test matches this summer. The other is New Zealand. The West Indians are on a tour of regaining the prestigious Ashes trophy against England in Australia.

Ireland's classic hopes look slim

April is traditionally the month of classic uncertainty — and it is already running true to form. The highly-touted 1,000 Guineas favourite, Peace, loses at Ascot, Yorlup, on paper the French No. 1, is beaten at Longchamp and in the same race, Suzy Volterra's Kehah finishes fifth in a seven-horse field.

There is, in fact, a feeling in some quarters that this race will eventually stall much of the thunder from its Epsom equivalent. It's said that it could become the premier target for Irish trainers and an ever-growing attraction for their English rivals. There is, I think, a bit of truth in this — but only a bit.

YACHTSMAN'S 300-DAY ORDEAL ENDS

Left: Solo yachtsman, Robin Knox-Johnston, in the ketch Suhaili fighting his way towards England on the last stage of his non-stop round-the-world trip. Mr. Johnston, aged 36, a merchant navy officer, whose home is in Downe, Kent, has spent more than 300 days in his 32-foot ketch and was yesterday due to enter Falmouth Harbour at the end of his marathon trip. Only adverse winds, kept him from entering the harbour early in the morning to win the Golden Globe trophy which is presented by the newspaper sponsoring the event.

Right: Mr. Knox-Johnston pictured on board Suhaili in Mombasa during a stopover in 1966. Since he started his round-the-world trip he has been sending regular messages to Mombasa Yacht Club, where he has many friends.

Vice-President points to Kericho progress

Four rallies addressed by the Vice-President, Mr. Moi, on the first day of his two-day tour of the Kericho District, pledged full support for the President, His Government and Kano.

Speaking at Diani, Mr. Moi assured the crowd that the Government had not forgotten them. Before coming to the meeting he had seen a new water supply for the area built by the County Council in co-operation with Unicef. The County Council was also building a new health centre at an estimated cost of K10,500. He appealed to the people to support Kano so they could continue enjoying rapid development.

Mr. Ngei opens self-help cattle dip

The Minister for Housing, Mr. P. Ngei, has officially opened Mumbuni Harambee cattle dip in Machakos district which was built at a total cost of 1480 on a self-help basis.

Introducing the Minister to the members of self-help group, the Machakos District Commissioner, Mr. W. D. Muzanda, said the dip, which had been built with the help of a Government grant of 1100, would serve about 2,000 head of cattle in the area.

Mr. Ngei said that the people of Machakos had come to understand the important part played by dips in ridding ticks from cattle.

All 482 N-TANKERS and 21 MACHAKOS DISTRICT TANKERS had promised to be given to Machakos district on the map as progressive area.

He added that he was happy to see that politicians and Government officials were working hand in hand towards development.

Accompanied by the Machakos Community Development Officer, Mr. G. K. Kaitaba, the Central divisional officer, Mr. J. Odayo, and other officials, Mr. Ngei advised the people of Machakos to construct more cattle dips if they expected the Government to give a hand in developing the district rapidly.

Earlier the Minister had handed more than 2,000 tick books to the Eastern Provincial Education Officer, Mr. J. K. Muriuki, which the Minister for Education, Dr. Kiambu, had promised to be given to Machakos Harambee Secondary School when he toured the district for two days last month.

of Natural Resources was carrying out a survey of the Chepalungu Forest Reserve. From a view to exciting a settlement by the people of the area.

Addressing the meetings, the Vice-President urged his listeners to harness the power of sleeping mosquitoes to serve them usefully and avoid being condemned people who would be accused of the Government of doing nothing for them. People who could not help themselves should accuse the Government of doing nothing for them.

Apart from technical advice given in the areas by Government officers to assist in the Community Development Department alone had given to the Merigi Harambee School KShs 2100 and Rurea Health Centre K125 worth of material. The Government had also provided more secondary school places to Kericho students by agreeing to extra streams.

At all the meetings the Vice-President called for unity between the leaders at all levels and condemned those leaders who worked against their own colleagues and the Government.

In addition to addressing public meetings, Mr. Ngei visited fund-raising campaigns at Merigi and Kiowa. At Merigi a total of 4370 was collected for the school and 225 for the church at Kiowa. He closed his windows for the classroom blocks and teachers' houses.

FALLING TREE SMASHES SCHOOL

Standard Correspondent, Kiambu

Gathugu Full Primary School and a church at Githunguri, Kiambu district, were extensively damaged by a 60-foot blue gum tree which fell when it was being cut for firewood.

The roof and the stone walls were smashed and it is estimated that it will cost about K1,000 to re-build the school and K300 to repair the damage to the church.

The school chairman, Mr. Stephen Karanja, said that unless the school could be re-built before it was due to re-open next term more than 300 boys and girls would have no place to learn.

His committee members had reported the matter to the County Education Officer, Kiambu, and they were planning to send a delegation to Kiambu County Council to find out whether they could be assisted financially.

Mr. Karanja is appealing for financial help from any interested person or organisation. He said that they could also accept material such as corrugated iron sheets, cement and stones. Assistance should be sent through the County Education Officer, Box 9, Kiambu.

Team survey industries

A five-man team from the Ministry of Industries, Commerce and the Western Province, led by Mr. D. L. Njiru, who is in the country, said that they would be making a survey of the small-scale industries in the Western Province. The team will be visiting factories in Vihiga District, Kakamega District, and Kisumu District.

He and the District Commissioner for Kakamega, Mr. Chomba, had emphasized the Division as an area of small-scale industries.

Cotton crop to be halved

The withdrawal of cotton development loans in the southern division of Kiulu district will result into a loss of about half this season's 4,000-acre cotton crop, the assistant agricultural officer for the area, Mr. J. A. Kabugi stated yesterday.

The withdrawal of such loans was a drawback in development of the area as many farmers did not have enough money to buy insecticides. He commended the local farmers for implementing modern farming methods.

Mr. Kabugi said that six sub-surface dams had been completed in the area and one more was still under construction and already 470 had been raised towards a dip.

President Nasser said in New York he was ready to acknowledge Israel's right to use the Suez Canal if a Middle East settlement were reached.

But Israel would first have to return all territory occupied since 1967 and restore rights to Palestinian citizens who had taken refuge in neighbouring countries, President Nasser said in a television interview—his first over a foreign network in four years.

He rejected outright any direct negotiations with Israel, however. "We will be sitting at a table of capitulation. They will be in a position to dictate," the Egyptian leader said, adding that "any settlement should come through the United Nations."

But the Arab leader again produced the threat of possible military moves against Israel, saying: "There is an international law. If your country is occupied by a foreign power there is not only a right but a duty to drive them out."

He concluded with the hope that relations between the U.S. and Arab countries would improve under President Nixon's administration. President Nasser called on the Jewish State to accept a package peace deal proposed recently by King Hussein of Jordan.

"It is a package deal you know," President Nasser said. "If Israel agrees about the implementation of all the points of the resolution, well so they will have free passage in the Suez Canal."

U.S. Marines kill 50 in river ambush

U.S. Marines trapped and killed at least 50 North Vietnamese in an overnight river ambush close to the northern town of An Hoa.

The Marines, who said only one of their forces was wounded, caught the North Vietnamese by surprise as they were crossing a 700-mile stretch north of An Hoa, according to a U.S. military spokesman in Saigon.

The ambush was staged shortly before Vietcong guerrillas killed four people and wounded 19 in pre-dawn shelling attacks on three villages in the Mekong Delta Province of Vinh Long in the southern part of the country.

A Government military spokesman also announced the attacks also reported that a child was killed and five other schoolchildren and three civilians wounded in a bomb blast on Monday at a secondary school in Vinh Dist. town in Northern Province.

Strategic B-52 bombers carried out four missions. One of these was aimed at infiltration routes from Cambodia, 20 miles west of Saigon where the guerrillas they had come to the cap of several weeks.

Two B-52s, and a C-47 transport plane, were shot down near the town of Vinh. The fourth was again against the bridge in Khanh Province.

The South Vietnamese Defense Minister, Nguyen Van Ky, and seven other South Vietnamese and allied officials were injured in an air accident at Vinh Tau airfield Monday, it was learned in Saigon yesterday. All were admitted to hospital.

The officials, returning from a passing-out ceremony for young officers, were hurt when their C-47 transport aborted its take-off and burst into flames.

The other injured included the president of the Chamber of Deputies, Mr. Nguyen Ba Luong, the New Zealand and Thai Ambassadors and the Filipino Chargé d'Affaires.

The president of the Senate, Mr. Nguyen Van Huyen, escaped unhurt.

All the passengers managed to abandon the plane, but Mr. Luong's Air Force plane before it burned out. Mr. Van Vy, who had sustained injuries from being thrown against the roof of the C-47.

Mr. Luong was said to be badly hurt, but the others received mainly bruising, with the New Zealand Ambassador, Mr. Paul Edmonds, suffering from a broken leg.

The Assistant American Ambassador, Mr. Samuel Berger, and other American officials who attended the ceremonies returned to Saigon by helicopter.

Vietcong guerrillas have been promised a transistor radio set if they capture an American soldier, a U.S. military spokesman said in Saigon.

He said the offer was disclosed in captured Vietcong documents. Apparently the enemy suddenly wants radio sets for intelligence or propaganda purposes, the spokesman said.

U.S. Army units have been warned of the offer.

Burning U.S. flag not an offence, judges decide

The U.S. Supreme Court has ruled that a New York Negro's constitutional rights were violated when he was arrested for burning the American flag in protest against the shooting of the Negro civil rights leader, Mr. James Meredith.

The court said: "It is firmly settled that under our constitution the public expression of ideas may not be prohibited merely because the ideas are themselves offensive to some of their hearers."

Three of the nine justices dissented from the ruling.

Advancing to testimony, Mr. Street, a Central World War veteran, took a carefully preserved U.S. flag from his bedroom and burnt it at a nearby street corner when he heard that Mr. Meredith had been shot during a Mississippi march on June 6, 1968.

As the flag burnt, he told a crowd of about 30 Negroes: "We don't need no damn flag. If they let that happen to me, I wouldn't be no part of it."

Street had been charged with "disorderly conduct" for burning the flag.

Six people were killed and two others badly injured in a train crash caused by rebel saboteurs in Angola's Moxico District on April 19, the military command of Angola announced.

A special commission carried by the Portuguese maritime Agency said to belong to the rebel Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola.

Yes sought on French reforms

The French Foreign Minister, M. Debra, contrasted French democracy with "Communist dictatorship" when he went on television on Monday night to urge a "Yes" vote in next Sunday's referendum on Senate and regional reform.

He said that because they demanded the right to express their opinion, workers and intellectuals in Czechoslovakia "have seen their country invaded and are today suffering severely". For France there was another path—participation in administrative and political activities. This was what was being put to the vote, he said.

In the referendum, President de Gaulle's Government is seeking mass approval for regional and Senate reforms. Making efforts to counter apathy and to whip up "Yes" votes, Gaullist leaders are stepping up meetings and speeches this week.

On the radio on Monday night the Premier, M. Couve de Murville, told European interviewers that such a referendum was bound to have political overtones, because people questioned the consequences of a vote in one direction or the other.

He said Gen. de Gaulle had made his intentions clear if the vote went against him. He refused to enlarge on this, saying it was "unlikely and it is never good to forecast the future."

The Premier said the Left was divided and the Communist Party was "the only constant opposition party". As to what would happen if there was only a slight "Yes" majority, he said: "We shall see." He was convinced the "Ayes" would win the day.

Earlier, he told the Seine de Marée branch of the Gaullist Party that the aim of the centre and moderate parties of the Senate, and Gaullists to their regret. This was doomed to failure, he said. Only the Communist Party was sufficient, by organised to challenge the present majority.

At the same time the "No" campaign was also boiling up. At Figaro, in the Lot Department, on Monday, M. Gaston Monnerville, former Speaker of the Senate, told a meeting that history showed that a split in the Senate was "a danger to the institutions."

He said this had been proved by the accession of Mussolini in Italy, Hitler in Germany and of Napoleon III in France. The Head of State was trying to concentrate all executive, legislative and judicial powers, and that "this concentration of powers by a single man is the worst thing."

Questioned by two French journalists on Radio-Tele Luxembourg, M. Roland Lezey, secretary of the Communist Party's Central Committee, said: "Our 'No' is a vote for the unity of the workers and democratic forces against any papery over of the Gaullist system."

He said the Communists were against "any reactionary solution against any re-arrangement of alliances uniting part of the Left with part of the forces of the Right."

Asked whether the opposition had an alternative to the President de Gaulle, M. Laroy replied that, unfortunately, there was no split programme. He blamed the Communist Left for refusing to negotiate such an agreement.

M. Marcel Prétot, the only Gaullist Senator so far to take a stand against the referendum, was expelled from the Gaullist Senatorial group yesterday. He is 71. — A.F.P.

killed in Pakistan plane crash

Forty passengers and four crew were killed when an Indian Airlines Fokker Friendship crashed near Khulna in East Pakistan, according to messages received in Calcutta.

The plane was bound for Calcutta from Assam, in North-East India. It lost control as it was crossing East Pakistan.

A Pakistan International Airlines spokesman said it had information that a plane was seen to flame somewhere between Chhina and Daulatpur in the south-west of East Pakistan.

Indian Airlines — the nation's internal airline — was in touch with the civil aviation authority to get the bodies of the crash victims brought across the border by road, a spokesman said.

After quick visa clearance, senior airline and civil aviation officials left for Calcutta probing the crash together with the Pakistani Civil Aviation Authority.

An Indian Airlines spokesman in New Delhi said all the passengers had crew were Indians.

The Civil Aviation Minister, Dr. Karam Singh, told Parliament a message from Dacca's civil aviation authorities confirmed there was no evidence that any of the 44 people on board survived.

He said it was likely the plane was caught up in the extremely bad weather reported in the crash area.

'Helga', the sex film I would not pay to see

For several months Kenya's Film Censorship Board was uncertain whether to allow the controversial K.F.C. film Helga to be shown. Now it has been released. The K.F.C. has decided to encourage all schoolchildren over the age of 10 to attend special showings of the film.

Having seen the film, it is clear that it is an excellent sex education film for schoolboys and schoolgirls and I hope that every school will have the opportunity of seeing it. There will be separate showings for boys and girls. However, any students who don't let the fear of indigestion ruin your meals . . .

devised husband shows tender concern for his wife carrying her shopping bag for her, bringing flowers to her bedside, and smiling as his wife bathes the baby. Helga paints a pretty and perhaps too healthy picture of marital bliss.

It is a great film for taking the burden of sex education off parents' shoulders; it presents the facts unemotionally and better than any parent could do; acts like a cool spoon to any passionate imagination and makes human instinct and proration like the workings of a machine.

Although it is a valuable contribution to sex education, it seems strange that this film should be given public viewing as entertainment. I do not think I would pay for a ticket to see the film unless I had a special reason for doing so, such as being pregnant for the first time and interested in knowing what the actual birth was like from the doctor's view.

This part of the film, a close-up of the actual birth, is to some degree moving. It will bring back poignant and perhaps painful memories of an event that brought both tears and joy to the mother; every-body has different reactions, some scream hysterically and others grip their teeth but remain silent. Helga looks her childbirth calmly, looking unmoved despite a few beads of sweat on her brow.

The general manager of the Kenya Film Corporation, Mr. Nyolika Njoroge, commented that he was happy the film had finally been approved for showing in Kenya. "It shows that the atmosphere here in Kenya fare at last being overcome, that a good film and we want everybody to see it."

Other comments directed at the film were:

film comes from the leading women journalist of the East African who wrote 'I have just finished the first film in my series on sex education. It was so thrilling that I had to watch it again, over and over, and was entranced by the realistic of motherhood.'

"It is unusual, immensely valuable . . . I have seen fear, I wrote Jane Smith in the Daily Sketch."

"Somehow, it is all so natural that I don't believe any girl after seeing Helga could ever again wade through the boggy ground of horror and half-truth that surrounds the subject of sex in homes and schools which just don't know how to tackle it."

Margaret Hixman of the Sunday Telegraph wrote: "Everything it says is so non-sensational, informative and thoroughly responsible."

PICTURE TO PLAY AT USUAL TIMES

Helga will be screened in the normal way at Kenya, Nairobi, 20 shows on Wednesday, Friday, and the usual regular Saturday and Sunday regular admission times.

Additional performances will be arranged for students. Prices and dates of these performances will be advertised in the Press. At this time, a demand for the film is so high, that it will not be shown on a Saturday morning.

'The Saint's' wife tells of her agony years

Just as a liberal is today's 'permitted' society? What happens to a woman who refuses to conform to traditional standards, and defies convention for the sake of the man she loves?

Luisa Martelli holds 'The Saint's' trademark over the head of Roger Moore at the wedding ceremony.

Just after her marriage to 'the Saint', Roger Moore, in London, Luisa told me just how intolerant society will be of women who won't conform. She would marry the man she loved until he was legally free. And yet they wanted to be together, to have children. And so they did, despite the opposition.

"It's all very well to say you don't give a damn what people think," Luisa told me. "But you do. When you love someone, you are just proud of loving them that you want the whole world to know it."

"I met Roger when he first appeared in my TV programme in Rome," she explained, "and I could feel myself attracted to him right from the start. He told me that he was married, but separated, and I said I couldn't see him again."

"I am a Catholic, you see, and my parents are very strict Catholics, and I don't want to hurt them. It was like struggling against the devil, I couldn't part from him. I thought at the time: 'I'm going to get terribly hurt.' But I just wanted to be with him, to live with him and to set up home with him."

"And so they did — in a sunny little house near Elnest film studios."

For the 24-year-old actress it wasn't easy. "I was so far from home, and I spoke very little English. I took Roger's name, because I made things easier."

"We used to get invitations — addressed to Mr. Moore and guest — and that used to hurt me terribly. There was invariably at least one female who would think that I was only Roger's girlfriend, and therefore he was fair game."

"He was marvelous, though. He would always say quite politely that he was with his wife. And then we'd get that 'Oh, yeah' look. It's funny how often that 'only living together' phrase would crop up, as though to suggest that our relationship was only temporary."

"I was never that. We were both utterly committed and all along we wanted to marry."

Deciding to have a family when marriage seemed impossible was one of the most difficult decisions she 18 months to make up their minds.

"We both longed for their own child," said Roger. "Somehow, to me, love is a family, and you aren't complete until you have children."

"We made up our minds that when they were old enough, we would tell them that we wanted to love them so much that we were prepared to have them at any price — even if it meant their being born outside society."

The first child, Deborah, is five now, a happy, pretty little girl who goes to convent school, and the second, a boy called Geoffrey, is a year younger.

"After having a boy and a girl, we thought we would be content," says Luisa. "But now perhaps we will have another one. Roger is a family man that, it's a joke between us."

Roger commented: "I can't understand the office some men have for the so-called 'career, gay bachelor life'. I find everything in life is so much bigger, dimensionally, if there is someone to share it with. We've always been happy," he said. "All the way along the line, because right from the start we have never had any doubts about each other."

"But however committed we might have been, I think there has always been a little corner of our hearts that has remained uncommitted," he went on. "I can't last for ever." He was on his knees, but you want everyone else to know it, too."

"What we've had, really, I suppose, is a somewhat unorthodox, over-period. And it's only helped to make us surer."

"Now like any new bride and groom what can I say except that we're sensationally happy."

A former soldier of the Israeli Army, Miss Maya Miller, 23, who recently graduated in political science and art history at Jerusalem's Hebrew University, is spending six months touring the world — and selling magazine subscriptions at the same time.

Like most Israeli girls, Maya has learned how to use machine-guns and hand-grenades during her two-year Army service. She also served in the Nachal, which does military duty on "Kibbutz" agriculture settlements. During the 1967 Six-Day War she was in the reserves.

While she was sitting in the university's cafeteria recently, a terrorist bomb wounded 12 students.

"Fortunately, I was sitting at the other end of the cafeteria," she says. Maya has taken a rest from the Middle East situation and, after touring Ethiopia and East Africa, she will go on to India, Malaya and Japan.

With her or four other students — from Italy, West Germany, the U.S. and Spain — and by selling subscriptions for international magazines, they are able to see the world without cost to themselves.

"We regard this tour as educational as it enables us to visit other countries and meet a variety of people," remarked Maya, who was born in Shanghai of Russian parents.

As a political scientist, did Maya have any views on a solution to the Israel-Arab problem?

"I believe King Hussein is quite sincere in his peace proposals, but unfortunately he can only express them to a Press club. The 'El Fatah' would not allow him to bring such proposals to the negotiating table."

your Home the Safe Way

The most simple, effective, economical measure to protect against mosquitoes is the use of Vent-Axia units in your bedroom. These units, which sprinkle a layer of lasting cockroach powder, also spray insecticide refrigerators, and in the kitchen, and in the living room. How safe is the last Kennedy brother?

From ROSS MADDEN IN WASHINGTON

Robert last year, Edward has been the focal point of an alarmingly increasing number of death threats, all of which are taken very seriously.

Over the last few months, an FBI spokesman told me, at least 10 letters and many anonymous telephone calls have been received at the FBI headquarters, all threatening the life of Edward Kennedy.

The Senator is now the only healthy, adult male survivor in a family that has lost eight other sons. The Kennedy family has been panned for the 1972 Presidency by a marked man, the death of his brother.

reports on a faceless Kremlin official who is rising rapidly to the top of the Soviet leadership.

Nikolai Novgorod, today renamed Gorki, his family were not revolutionaries; far from it. In fact, they were well-to-do merchants, and his grandfather was a clergyman.

Young Katushev's studies were interrupted by the German invasion of Russia and at 17 he was in the Red Army. He resumed his studies in 1946, passed out of high school with a gold medal, and won a place at Gorki, which was then the Tsaritsyn T.M., which was rapidly growing outmoded.

He visited the Kremlin several times with Khrushchev and Stalin. The story goes that when he was a member of the party, he repudiated even though he was made welcome in the party because he was not a member of the "proletarian" background.

Whether the story is true or not, Mr. Katushev found himself suddenly elected to full membership of the Central Committee in 1953.

After Stalin's death in 1953, Mr. Katushev became Khrushchev's chief technical adviser in the country's leading motor manufacturers, including Motor, Pezeng, and other firms.

He became a member of the Politburo, and in 1957 he became party secretary for the West Kazakhstan region, his first step to the top.

After the downfall of Mr. Khrushchev, Mr. Katushev found himself elected to full membership of the Central Committee in 1953.

Korean 'spy plane' crisis

President Nixon's policy in the current Korean crisis is puzzling. After Russian MIGs had shot down an EC-121 'spy plane' off the North Korean coast, with the loss of the crew of 31, he adopted a firm line by saying reconnaissance flights would continue with the warning that "they would be protected".

President Nixon had given the answer in advance, for in his announcement about resuming the flights, he said it was his responsibility to protect the 56,000 U.S. troops stationed in South Korea, especially in the conditions of recent weeks when the North Korea had threatened military action against these forces.

It will be recalled that the U.S. played the dominant role in the UN force which went to assist South against North Korea and Gen. MacArthur raised an international storm over his policy of hitting supply bases beyond North Korea in China, which finally led to his recall by the then President, Mr. Truman.

The U.S. Defence Secretary, Mr. Laird, maintained in Washington, that reconnaissance flights are "essential assignments to U.S. national security." After walking out of a meeting with North Koreans at the border "peace village" of Panmunjom, the U.S. Commander, Maj-Gen. Knapp, cited as other aggressive acts besides shooting down the EC-121, the seizure of the Pueblo, an attempt to assassinate South Korean President Park, and "numerous" violations of the demilitarized zone.

Despite wild opposition in the U.S. to the drain of American manpower and resources for the war in Vietnam — "unpopular war" would be a mild description — public opinion has reacted angrily over the North Korean action. Surely, the Americans cannot want to be involved in yet another war of attrition against one of their fixed resolve to contain the Communists across the Pacific?

President Nixon, who campaigned for election on the promise of furthering efforts to reach a Vietnamese solution, has so far refused to react violently over North Korea and his show of strength is interpreted as a deterrent. That, at any rate, is the view of the Japanese Government, rather than a defiant gesture to provoke North Korea. Accordingly, no representation has been made from Tokyo to the U.S. Administration.

Immediately after the plane was shot down, the flights were suspended, but the President personally ordered them to continue, adding "they will be protected." This warning, which he denied was a threat, has been construed as provocation by the Chinese Communists who are supporting North Korea, and by the North Koreans themselves. Why they demand, should the Americans claim the right to spy over their territory, more particularly when there is no war between the two countries?

He was in Warsaw when Russia and her allies agreed to invade Czechoslovakia. He sat next to the Russian leaders in Vienna when Russians and Czechs argued over Mr. Dubcek's "liberal policies".

He said little but he was there, an ubiquitous figure in the background of some undoubted intelligence and political skill is making the present Soviet leaders look uneasily over their shoulders.

For the man who at only 41 is being openly tipped to succeed Mr. Khrushchev as Communist Party Chairman in the mid-to-distant future is little more than a faceless, official under the Kremlin walls.

But inside, Konstantin Fyodorovich Katushev very much a man to be reckoned with. A protégé of the Party Secretary, Mr. Leonid Brezhnev, Mr. Katushev has been hosted into the top bracket of the Soviet leadership at record speed at a time when both Mr. Khrushchev and Mr. Brezhnev are said to be under strong pressure to quit.

The former, it is thought, is criticised because he is too liberal, the latter because of his heavy-handed policies on interference in the affairs of Soviet satellites.

Mr. Katushev is undoubtedly a Brezhnev man, though how long he will remain so is another matter. At the moment, it appears to suit his purpose, his appearance at the Crimea talks was said to be Mr. Brezhnev's doing.

Although a member of the Secretariat of the Soviet Central Committee, Mr. Katushev is not a member of the Politburo, and yet he took precedence over its members at the Soviet-Thai talks.

He is the living symbol of a new generation of Soviet technocrats, the young engineers who are gradually replacing the old cadres in Soviet industry.

He is a member of the Politburo, and in 1957 he became party secretary for the West Kazakhstan region, his first step to the top.

After the downfall of Mr. Khrushchev, Mr. Katushev found himself elected to full membership of the Central Committee in 1953.

After Stalin's death in 1953, Mr. Katushev became Khrushchev's chief technical adviser in the country's leading motor manufacturers, including Motor, Pezeng, and other firms.

The Queen's Awards for Industry

Rolls-Royce and Imperial Chemical Industries figure prominently in this year's Queen's Awards for Industry, announced in London this week.

Rolls-Royce is recognised for achievements in sales and technology and I.C.I. recognises for the fourth time its unique achievement of winning awards for both exports and technology.

Pye Unicom Ltd. of Cambridge wins an award for developments in the fields of spectroscopy and chromatography. In 1968 the company introduced the world's first automatic ultraviolet visible spectrophotometer with built-in presentation of results. This award was won by top American technology award.

Mr. D. E. Wilson of Pye Unicom is presently visiting Britain as a member of the Scottish trade mission.

Marconi follows up an export and two technology awards with another two introduced in other countries of its advanced electronic equipment. This includes both radar systems and radar aids.

Marconi also manufactures of electronic and telecommunications equipment employ some 16,000 people. This year's award took care of a host of industries and products that range from pen-lining wood equipment to the production of a wide range of whisky, toys, dartsboards and green glass.

English Electric Diesel, of London, are honoured for their achievement in the design and production of the world's first diesel engine over the past three years with their Ruston gas turbines. These sales now represent 80 per cent of total sales. The reduction in size, with an increase in power in the two stroke diesel is also recognised.

The award is made in recognition for the past four years on the Queen's awards are designed to reward, stimulate and encourage British industry in its efforts to increase sales and exports and achieve technological advance.

Maseno tribute to Mzee 'Otonglo'

May I express your sincere and heartfelt thanks to Mr. B. L. Bowers, the former Headmaster of Maseno National High School, for the selfless and untiring service he has honourably offered to our country?

All of us who knew him and have been under his guidance and leadership as Maseno are indebted to Mzee 'Otonglo' for sharing our academic ordeal. It is for this reason that we are giving among us and the far West Maseno must be grateful to give us have greatly influenced our characters and personalities.

Men who can stand up to their calling. He was often tough with us, for he believed that we Maseno boys must be tough in circumstances, however adverse. But we were never unreasonably opposed to his actions in the school. He has been a great asset to all of us who have been sons to him at Maseno, and we are grateful to him.

He has set before us monument examples that will serve us for the rest of our lives. His contribution to the academic and political life of our country is beyond dispute and, in our opinion, should be of great benefit to the country.

We have built on the foundation laid by our former headmaster and we are proud to say that we are carrying on his tradition.

For more than 60 years Maseno Africans have been assimilating the best of the best of the philosophy at Maseno. The standard of education in Kenya is probably higher than in any other country in the continent, and we are proud to say that we are carrying on his tradition.

School ranks as high as any in the continent.

That academic achievement is itself is not enough. To create a

Nurses' dance

The National Nurses' Association of Kenya is holding a ball this Saturday at the Public Service Club in Gikomba Road, Nairobi, to raise funds. The money will be used to finance a trip to Canada next month by representatives to attend an international nursing conference.

A spokesman for the association told me that the conference will be very important for the Kenya nurses and other developing nations and appealed to members of the public to buy tickets for the dance.

The Police Band will be present and in addition there will be a variety of entertainment. The dance will start at 9 p.m. and go on until 3 a.m.

Israeli guitarist

When the deft fingers of the guitarist Shimon Tzoref strummed the first chord at the New Stanley Grill this week it was obvious that this would be one of the finest cabaret performances Nairobi has seen for some time. And no one was disappointed.

The undulating rhythm of Tzoref's music captivated the audience and his string magic that it was still shouting for more after the young guitarist had finished his set.

Tzoref is an accomplished entertainer, a singer and a pianist, with a witty personality which, with his guitar, combine in a polished performance. The Grill should expect fine bookings while he is there for the next few weeks.

— His song about Sheldon Cohen — the son of Jewish parents in New York — switches the mood easily from the slight appreciation of classical guitar music to one of refreshing humour.

For an hour and a half this young musician entertained the audience with his repertoire he has songs and music from Mexico, Spain and Italy as well as the haunting Yiddish songs from his native land.

It all culminates with the Flamenco. Tzoref performs his graceful guitar favourite with the feeling necessary for this superb work moving from the laughing peasants in tiny Spanish villages to the rousing music of the bull ring in Madrid.

He admitted to me afterwards: "I have to feel in constant contact with my guitar. It is like a part of my body."

It is a tribute to both him and his audience that this contact is retained between them throughout a fine performance.

Safari film

Cinemas in Nairobi will have the opportunity to see the best of the African Safari colour film which will be screened by all Nairobi cinemas starting today.

The film appears at the talent of New Pictures.

The President Kenyatta writing the Safari film includes some of the toughest sections of the country. The film was directed by the distribution of Africafilm and was released in London for world-wide distribution.

Africafilm can claim a large share in advertising the Safari overseas. Their agency also commissioned short films for I.P.T. T.N. Television Agency which will be shown on the Safari to some 60 TV stations all over the world.

'only purpose' PROSECUTION CLAIM

The N.P.U. Liberation Front has issued a statement on the plans of attack in more detail.

"The Republic maintains that the purpose of the four notebooks was to bring about the total subversion of the Government and the economy of Kenya. It is the Republic's submission that these notebooks are valueless to any person other than to be used as a guide for the purpose of subversion and with sedition in mind."

"Section 56 of the Penal Code defines seditious intent as an intention to overthrow by unlawful means the lawful Government of Kenya, or to bring into hatred or contempt or to excite disaffection against the person of the President of the Government of Kenya, or to excite the inhabitants of Kenya to attempt to procure the alteration otherwise than by lawful means of the Government or to bring into hatred or contempt or to excite disaffection against the administration of justice in Kenya."

"The section also covers the raising of disaffection among the inhabitants of Kenya or the promotion of ill-feeling, ill-will or hostility between the different sections or classes of the population of Kenya."

A.S.P. K. Chepkwony of the Kaparadi Border Control Post told the court that, on January 29, 1967, he had conducted a search of the car belonging to Mr. Odinga Odinga, which had been brought into Kenya from Tanzania. Mr. Odinga had instructions to search the contents of the car and identify the individuals in the vehicle.

On the morning of January 30, at 4.30 a.m., a Toyota carrying Odinga and his wife and two children, and most now for the prospects for reducing the prison population by the use of extra-judicial means, but as an alternative to imprisonment, as a means of deterring other offenders from committing offences of the same nature, and to report the work camps for terms of 12 to 18 months where they work under supervision. The offenders normally live at a work camp in a number five in the camps.

The report shows that during 1967 the daily average prison population in the country was 12,745.78. The number of persons committed to prison on remand was 14,569, of whom 15,569 were convicted and 29,646 discharged by the courts, while the overall total of convicted people sent to prison was 38,027.

The racial breakdown shows that of the 38,027 convicted persons, 37,850 were Africans, 156 Asians, and 21 Europeans.

In majority, 12,202 were sentenced in terms of between three and six months, while 2,244 were sentenced to more than three years. Forty-five people, including three women, were committed to prison under sentence of death, of whom 14 — one of them a woman — were executed. In addition 34 under sentence of death were in custody at the beginning of the year.

Twelve of the total number had these sentences commuted to imprisonment. Five were discharged on appeal and 22 were still awaiting appeal at December 31, 1967.

Mr. Sakwa notes that 176 youthful offenders were sentenced to undergo Borstal training during the year, and points out that there was little doubt that such training was proving effective. The number of cases where it was necessary to recall discharged inmates for failing to comply with the terms of their licences to be at large represented less than one per cent.

The standard of security at prisons had been high, with only 113 escapes, nearly all of them from outside working parties. Of the 65 were recaptured.

Kenya's Minister for Education, Dr. Kiwiro, told the members of the Presbyterian Church of East Africa that the church should play a role in the guidance and welfare of the nation.

It was important that they should provide the necessary spiritual and moral guidance for the members of the church, not only in the present but also in the future. He said that the church should be a source of guidance and welfare for the nation.

He said that the church should be a source of guidance and welfare for the nation. He said that the church should be a source of guidance and welfare for the nation.

the spirit of crossing was not as evident "as we would like to see in our present church organizations."

"We would like to see this spirit of social and spiritual crossing, as well as being brought forth not only by our members but also by our general membership," he added.

It was social behavior that tended to disturb the conscience of church members. Church organizations together with all other church organizations should do this in a spirit of brotherhood. Where the spirit of brotherhood was dead, good work was dead also. It was the responsibility of church leaders for the promotion and benefits of honesty, integrity and devotion to the public service."

Earlier the Minister said there was no reason why together with the Government, local authorities, and the community, the church could not provide the inspiration necessary for expanding education in all areas of Kenya. The church still had the rare opportunity of playing the role of crusader by insisting on establishing general and special schools in areas where none existed.

Dr. Kiwiro enumerated a number of instances where church organizations had taken the initiative in this respect.

Churches would be expected to play directly the important role of education. The Education Act provided for this because the Government appreciated the importance of church influence in the development of individual character.

The Government appreciated that it would be most inadvisable to make the whole educational system purely secular as was the case in some other countries and the church, in addition to schools and play in the development of three aspects of a human being — the intellect, the heart and the hand.

Another area in which churches could play a direct role was in the teaching of religion, education, and moral values. Churches already come forward with an agreed syllabus for the K.E.E. Teaching of religion education required qualified people who were generally believed in what they taught. The Government was interested in the churches to assist directly in finding them.

As part of their Health Week programme, the Lions Club, Nairobi Central, is aiming at giving 100 bottles of blood in their club donation in the Blood Donor Service Centre in Nairobi. The chairman of the Health Welfare Committee of the club, Dr. S. P. Amin, reads after giving the pint of blood being shown to him by the club president, Mr. H. L. Bhabha.

Mr. Odinga and a man he identified as Odinga arrived at the border control post and he instructed them to accompany him to the border control office.

"Odinga told me that he was Odinga Odinga. I ordered the car to be searched and in the boot, police found four notebooks, papers and pamphlets."

"In the vehicle, I asked each person in the car to select his own property and Odinga claimed the four notebooks which he said he had brought from North Korea where he was studying."

Cross-examined by Mr. Odinga (for Odinga) he said Mr. Odinga, Kiwiro and Mr. Odinga's driver were given ample time to select their belongings and that at one stage he heard Mr. Odinga ask Odinga, "Where did you get those notebooks?"

In the afternoon Mr. Odinga strongly objected to a statement allegedly made by Odinga to A.S.P. Odinga at the I.D. Headquarters shortly after his arrest at Repal Kaparadi, Nairobi, on February 29, 1967. Mr. Odinga contended that the statement was inadmissible as it was not consistent with the charge of sedition which had been brought against Odinga.

He also said that when Odinga was taken to the station, he did not know the meaning of the word 'sedition'.

The objection was overruled by Mr. Hobbs, who said the defence did not dispute the fact that the statement was obtained voluntarily. Mr. Odinga had challenged only the relevance in the statement to sedition, but the prosecution had challenged with the charge of sedition which had been brought against Odinga.

The hearing continues.

Stock thieves lead in corporal punishment

Standard Staff Reporter

More people were ordered to receive corporal punishment for stock theft than for any other offence in 1967, it is stated in the annual report for that year on the treatment of offenders.

In 1967 a total of 24,971 offenders were sentenced to under an extra-judicial punishment. The total of 2,516 people were sentenced to corporal punishment. Of these, 1,321 were sentenced to 12 strokes and 1,195 were sentenced to 24 strokes.

Next highest number was 438 adults who were sentenced for robbery with violence, followed by 126 for carrying a dangerous weapon and 126 for burglary and theft.

In addition 15 people were given corporal punishment for breaches of prison discipline, including nine for mutiny or incitement to mutiny, and five for assaulting a prison officer.

In his review for the year, the Commissioner of Prisons, Mr. Andrew K. Sakwa, stressed the desirability of the courts sentencing petty offenders to terms of extra-judicial punishment.

of prison discipline, including nine for mutiny or incitement to mutiny, and five for assaulting a prison officer.

In his review for the year, the Commissioner of Prisons, Mr. Andrew K. Sakwa, stressed the desirability of the courts sentencing petty offenders to terms of extra-judicial punishment.

During 1967 a total of 24,971 offenders were sentenced to under an extra-judicial punishment. The total of 2,516 people were sentenced to corporal punishment. Of these, 1,321 were sentenced to 12 strokes and 1,195 were sentenced to 24 strokes.

Industrial Court queries cash claim

Standard Staff Reporter

Doubt whether the issue before the Industrial Court was a proper one for adjudication were expressed by the president, Mr. Saad Cochran, yesterday during the hearing of a dispute between the Kenya Inland Revenue Authority and the Kenya Inland Revenue Authority.

The union, through its general secretary, Mr. James Mwinga, was claiming payment of 172 lbs. for a member, Mr. W. Mwinga, in respect of terminal benefits.

Mr. Cochran asked why Mr. Mwinga had not sought damages in a court of law, pointing out that the Industrial Court was not intended to usurp the functions of the civil courts.

The court was told that on April 15, 1967, at Kiambu, Purshotham was found unlawfully in Kenya without a permit or a pass.

On the same date that was found in Kiambu without a valid entry permit or pass.

Minister inaugurates Y.M.C.A. crafts centre

Kenya's Minister for Finance, Mr. Gichuru, who is president of the Kenya Young Men's Christian Association, yesterday laid the foundation stone of a crafts training centre at the Y.M.C.A. Shauri Moyo, Nairobi, and praised the Y.M.C.A. for its "good example of self-help and hard work to the community during an exciting and progressive period."

The principle of the association was intentional brotherhood and the occasion demonstrated once again the close understanding and co-operation which the Y.M.C.A. has helped to generate between Kenya and other countries.

The centre was of great importance to the country because it provides like this to help alleviate unemployment, one of Kenya's greatest problems.

A goal in injury time by the left-back, Tommy Gemmill, on Monday night gave Celtic the Scottish League football championship for the fourth successive time. They drew 2-2 away at Kilmarnock and though their great rivals Rangers, can mathematically equal Celtic on points, their goal average is far inferior. So Celtic will again be Scotland's representatives in the European Cup for club champions next season.

The Glasgow club began badly on Monday and were trailing 0-2 at half time after Morrison and Queen had scored for Kilmarnock. In the home team they were on defense and after Beattie had turned a high ball into his own net, Gemmill clinched the equalizer in the closing seconds.

League plan to help England XI

The English Football League plan to complete next season's league programme by the middle of April in an effort to help England prepare for their defence of the World Cup in Mexico next June.

An order to stop play is not likely to be given, though it is likely to have to be imposed at times, according to the Football League's secretary, Mr. Lawrence.

The aim is to complete the league programme by the middle of April. The Football League's secretary, Mr. Lawrence, said: "It is likely to be necessary to stop play at times, but we are confident that we can complete the league programme by the middle of April."

World-class team may tour the Far East

A world-class cricket team may tour the Far East this winter if plans of the Cricketers' Association materialize, according to the Daily Mail.

The London paper reveals that the 200-strong Cricketers' Association wants to branch out with a touring side, with M.C.C. approval. If they can find a sponsor for the tour, they will ask the selectors to choose the party.

If they want to tour the Far East, which is included in a planned minor M.C.C. tour, writes Jack Bannister, cricket correspondent of the Daily Mail, adding that the M.C.C. are also looking for a sponsor.

Jack Bannister, chairman of the association, told the London daily that there was no question of conflicting interests with the M.C.C. When members, including Gary Sobers, the West Indies Test captain, who reckon we would field a world-class eleven, the association chairman told Bannister.

Graham Dowling, captain of the New Zealand cricket team to tour Britain, India and Pakistan later this year, has supported the controversial selection of five fast bowlers in the Indian touring party.

He said that the pacemen were exactly what he wanted, particularly for England, where there was a need for a battery of seam bowlers. "We are going to depend on them to bowl out the county sides," he added.

The 25-year-old opening bat has also promised a lively tour. "Our aim will be to play attacking cricket. We must ensure that our play is more attractive than previous sides because crowds in England are given plenty of cricket," he said.

Dowling also has faith in the fielding ability of the side. "We should be able to outfield most sides we play," he said.

Dick Britton, sports editor of The Press, Christchurch, who will tour with the team, wrote that the attack was weak. "Never before had a New Zealand side gone away without a specialist off-spinner or a right-hand leg-spinner."

"Attack will be the side's only salvation on this tour," he said. But Britton conceded that the side was otherwise strong.

"As an aggressive batting and fielding side, the New Zealanders could carve a niche for themselves and be welcomed as attractive cricketers."

"Whatever happens, it is certain to do better than the 1965 tourists, who beat only Gloucester, Ireland and Scotland," he said. — Agencies to you, your Government and the people of Israel on my own behalf and on behalf of the Government and people of Kenya our warmest wishes for your continued success and prosperity.

I note with satisfaction the warm relations existing between our two countries. I am confident that these friendly relations will continue to be strengthened for the mutual benefit of our two countries.

May the coming year see the fulfillment of our mutual desire for peace and security throughout the world.

Message from the Israeli Ambassador, Mr. Zev Levin

Twenty years ago today men and women gathered in the hall of Tel Aviv to perform a historic act - the founding of Israel's Declaration of Independence.

Two months previously the United Nations General Assembly adopted the Resolution for the establishment of an independent State.

The regular armies of the Arab States - Egypt, Syria, Lebanon and Iraq had the infant State, and its young members circled over the State of Israel in hostility. The ancient land of Israel had received their national home ancestral land.

In 1948, the neighbouring Arab States have committed a war on Israel. In the ensuing acts of violence and economic blockade, Israel has demonstrated that its nation of five is far stronger than the dozens of its neighbours to destroy it. Israel celebrates its 21st anniversary, its independence, its unity, its peace, its progress, its economic development, its industry, education, science, and social work. In the past year, Israel's growth rate reached a high of 15 per cent - a record still continues.

As a young developing country, Israel is dedicated to the principle of sharing knowledge and technology with other developing nations. In the past ten years, more than 10,000 students from Africa, Asia, Latin America and the Mediterranean Basin received their training in Israel, and thousands of Israeli experts went abroad to share their knowledge and experience.

It is with great satisfaction that Israel greets the friendly relations and close co-operation with Kenya. More than 700 Kenyan students studied in Israel and received their living stipend from the International Harambee.

On this day we hope that the call of His Excellency Mzee Jomo Kenyatta, President of the Republic of Kenya, for peace and co-operation between the Middle East may be heard and that peace co-operation between nations, progress and democracy will reign in the Middle East and in the world.

"Our pioneers want to profit from your experience, but know that you can beat local know-how; so listen to what they have to say to you, so that you can help them better to solve our problems. We do not want to copy your methods, we want to adapt our own to yours!"

It was with these words that the leader of a young African pioneer youth movement, recently welcomed a new Israeli expert. He was summarising an approach which is being accepted by an ever-increasing number of young people in Africa, Asia and Latin America. They are being helped by the experts in technical assistance and the countries benefiting by it, the idea that progress must take traditional social structures into account, and cannot have any permanent effect unless it involves the active and willing participation of the people who are supposed to be benefiting by it.

In 1969 the Israeli co-operation programme started in a small country, still being developed and facing extremely complex social and economic problems - to say nothing of the threat posed by its existence ever since its creation in 1948 and it was one of the first to train students and apprentices from the developing countries in the late 1950s and early 1960s.

It is also certainly the first small country to have launched such a large-scale assistance programme and, by its example, is demonstrating the importance of mutual aid between developing countries.

Between 1958 and 1968, in the second decade of its existence as the State and the first decade of its programme of aid to developing countries, Israel sent over 2,500 experts to about 60 countries.

Two-thirds of the experts worked in Africa, and the others were divided almost equally between countries of the Mediterranean basin, South-East Asia and Latin America. They endeavoured to share their experience mainly in the fields of agriculture and rural planning, the organisation of youth movements and education, community development, medicine and public health, as well as in science and technology. They trained direct enterprises and projects together, in the shortest possible time.

Israel is putting more and more emphasis on the coordination of its various activities in the field of international cooperation, in order to make the most of its resources. This means that, apart from sending teams of experts in various fields, study programmes must be initiated in Israel itself, to train students and apprentices from the developing countries in the needs of the projects on whose improvement they are working with Israeli experts.

Israel is, in fact, organising fairly short courses for students, either in institutions of higher education or vocational training, or on an ad hoc basis. The aim is at furthering their knowledge and experience in their specialities, as well as to do research work.

There are also courses of a lower level, which are, of course, longer. These have the advantage of being able to accept a larger number of participants, as a result of which the cost of the courses can be more directly related to local conditions.

Over 10,000 students and apprentices from the developing countries, the rest in almost equal numbers from the Mediterranean basin, Asia and Latin America, have attended courses especially prepared for them in Israel since 1958.

Several dozen have taken degree courses at university level, particularly in medicine and studies relating to rural life. However, the majority have taken shorter courses in a wide range of other fields. During this period, 10,000 students in civil service, agriculture, and other fields, and another 5,000 apprentices attended locally organised courses given by travelling teams of specialists from Israel.

All these activities are aimed at making the country generating a productive element in its own development, aware of its problems and of making an original contribution to their solution. In fact, young people in the developing countries must be prepared, more than anyone else, not only to be the audience, but also to play their part in the tasks of today.

It is precisely because Israel, an ancient nation but a modern State, is itself a real laboratory on a nationwide scale that its experience can be utilised by other developing countries, who are trying to find practical solutions to problems which no longer exist in more advanced and industrialised countries.

Naturally, there are no formulas that can be translated in toto from one country to another. However, it has been established that many leaders in the new nations have found that apart from the pioneering spirit and the complete involvement of the population in the concept of national reconstruction, Israel has a pragmatic attitude which has proved effective where other methods have failed. It has proved that scientific studies have not been enough, since they were unable to grasp the situation, because they made no effort to popularise their efforts in traditional society.

Israel is conscious of the modest scope of the aid it is now bringing to other countries. Since it lacks natural resources and is itself in need of capital, Israel has been forced to concentrate all its attempts at aid into fields in which it can make a specific contribution to make, and deal with the particularly troublesome problems.

The action taken thus has a decisive influence on the development of each country facing problems similar to its own, especially when it is a matter of changing the attitude of the traditional element in the population to modern methods of work and organisation, and to the task of national development in general. Needless to say, it is by putting emphasis on the human factor that similarities are discovered between problems that are in other respects completely unrelated.

For example, for Israeli planners agriculture is not to be considered in simple terms of harvest, head of cattle and machinery. The traditional methods of cultivation and management depends to a large extent on the socio-economic, social and educational structure of the region under consideration.

This concept was "exported" for the first time about 12 years ago, as part of the Israel-Burmese co-operation plan for the development of the Namang region, and was later used again in Latin America, when a team of Israeli experts were invited to help plan and develop an area of 90,000 hectares in the Matagorda region of Venezuela.

It was later copied in other countries, with such success that Israeli experts are often jokingly referred to as the members of the "development Mafia".

Although Burma was the first newly-independent country to co-operate with Israel in the development of the Third World, and although such co-operation has now been extended to cover the distant countries of Latin America, it is mainly Africa that comes to the mind, when discussing Israeli technical assistance programmes.

Israel was ten years old when gained independence, and it was able to provide them with experience that was still fresh, with solutions that were within their grasp - and with boundless enthusiasm.

Israel had to combine technological and scientific knowledge with the cultural traditions of a nation reformed from elements that had been scattered to the four corners of the earth.

This vocation is well symbolised by the "Revohov Movement" under whose aegis regular international conferences are held, attended by scholars and politicians from the most advanced countries and from the Third World. There have been four of these reunions devoted to science, rural planning, matters of finance and economics, and public health in the developing countries. The fifth Revohov conference is to be held in August 1969, and will deal with the problems of education in the Third World.

The parallel visit by the President of the Ivory Coast, summarising ultimately the mutual enrichment that can be derived from the co-operation of developing countries. When a few years ago he was asked about his vision of the future of his own country, he replied: "I hope that my country will resemble the Sea of Galilee and not the Dead Sea. The former is full of fish, its waters are fresh and its shores covered with vegetation; in the latter no life exists, its coastline is desert and its waters bitter and acid."

"And do you know why? It is because the Sea of Galilee receives the waters of the Jordan River and sends them on again downstream, whereas the Dead Sea, which receives this same water further south, keeps it for itself and passes nothing on to anyone. I hope that the Ivory Coast, having benefited from co-operation with Israel, will one day be in a position to help all the other less-favoured nations."

Israel itself is trying to live on this beautiful image. Not only because the imagery is borrowed from its geography, but also because by returning some of the assistance it has itself received, it hopes to pass on to others the most valuable results of its pioneering experience, of the task undertaken through the help of men.

International co-operation and aid to developing countries have nowadays become an indispensable part of the programme of each nation desirous of its own advancement, without such co-operation no country can aspire to playing an active role in the family of nations.

Gift from Rome is heard in Nazareth

Seven bells, a gift from Rome, now add their majestic chimes to the multitude of intermingling bell-sounds, high-pitched and urgent or grave and solemn, that call Nazareth's Christians of all denominations to their churches, convents, monasteries and hospices.

The seven bells announce to the Christians of Nazareth the consecration of the Annunciation site in sheer stoniness and imposing height, in a square of gold on Israel's holiest city, Nazareth, where Gabriel built the site where, according to Christian tradition, the Angel Gabriel brought the Virgin Mary conceive a son (Luke 1:26-38). The special holiness of the Church is derived, therefore, from the Christian principle of Incarnation.

The new Basilica, consecrated in a colourful ceremony conducted by Cardinal Gabriel Garone, head of the Vatican Congregation for Religious Education, is the fifth to be built over the Franciscan cave of the Annunciation, the fourth under the Byzantine period, the second during the Ottoman period, the first completed in 1873 plus its administrative non-Christian restrictions.

The first was built in the pre-Christian times and to replace it the Franciscans, who are the custodians of the place, decided to build a new church in the same site and to replace it with a more consecrated new monumental Basilica.

Built around the grotto of the Annunciation, the Basilica consists in fact of an upper and lower church. Twenty-four artists from the new countries of Israel contributed to the Church's impressive decorations and stained-glass windows.

Every other Israeli Jew was born elsewhere and has come to the country in the past 21 years — about 1,300,000 in all. Proportionately this is far and away the biggest army of immigrants the modern world has known.

Nevertheless, every Israeli will tell you that the future well-being of his country continues to depend on a steady flow of newcomers willing to share the burden of nation-building. Significantly, the past year has seen the creation of a Ministry of Immigrant Absorption — a task until now handled solely by the Jewish Agency, a voluntary body financed by World Jewry.

On May 14, 1948, when David Ben Gurion declared the independence of the State of Israel, he became Prime Minister of a nation of 650,000, which immediately found itself at war, beset from all sides by hostile and well-equipped neighbours.

The proclamation of independence unfolded that afternoon by Ben Gurion declared: "The State of Israel shall be open to Jewish immigration and the ingathering of exiles."

It was no empty phrase. By the year's end 100,000 newcomers had streamed in as fast as ships and planes could be found to carry them. The scarred survivors of Hitler's holocaust, they came from the displaced persons' camps in Germany, Austria and Italy.

But this was only the beginning of mass immigration. As Israel's War of Independence subsided and it became physically easier to get the newcomers to the country, the human flood gathered momentum. If in 1948 it took seven and a half months for 100,000 immigrants to arrive, a similar number reached newcomers in the next few months over their heads. Food, clothing, schools, housing, and above all, work. For the first time was not easy and cheap. The arrivals soon found themselves in a slump again, living on bare subsistence — and still waiting for a better future.

By August 1949, 100,000 immigrants were accommodated in such camps. The numbers grew, so it became clear that this was no longer a temporary situation. The absorption of immigrants must be made permanent.

The answer was a different kind of camp — the "absorption camp". This was an unattractive strip of canvas and tin, throbbing with the population and employment centres, where the immigrants lived on their roofs, but urged to start a career.

The planners had a goal. In 1951, 123 of these men and women found a quarter of a million people. It was the beginning of the remarkable adventure — the planned absorption of mass immigration.

Avraham M. came after all the initial excitement had died down. In his native Morocco he had been a small trader, but on the boat picking his way across the placid Mediterranean in the summer of 1955 he was told that in Israel his best bet would be to become a farmer.

The absorption officials on the ship, who interviewed each immigrant and prepared his individual settlement blueprint, worked hard to persuade Avraham M. Finally, they succeeded.

And so he became a smallholder in the Lachish Development Region — a formerly unattractive belt of scrub linking the fertile, old-established orange belt of southern Israel with the Negev desert.

It was here, incidentally, that Colonel Nasser had held up during Israel's War of Independence War.

Newly arrived immigrants overcome by emotion meeting their Israeli relatives at Lydda Airport.

Lachish is the best example of regional settlement and has been copied by developing countries in Africa, Asia and Latin America. Briefly it consists of clusters of villages grouped around rural centres, which themselves fan around a central town — in this case Kiyat Gat, which was founded in 1954 and today has a population of 20,000.

Avraham M. says the first years were hard, far harder than he had anticipated — the change from peddling to farming was drastic for a man in his 40s — but today he can conceive no other life.

That same drastic change was made by 150,000 of the immigrants. They settled on the land in more than 400 new villages, which literally changed the face of Israel. The hitherto hostile hills linking Jerusalem with the Coastal Plain sprouted a network of settlements.

Housing of a suitable standard had to be provided too, and, of course, the ugly mass of shacks of the Galilee, the empty spaces left until today Israel is virtually self-sufficient in agricultural produce and has developed a new breed of farmer.

The aftermath of Israel's 1956 Campaign, of the Suez Crisis and of the brutal repression of the Hungarian uprising. In Warsaw, an economist, Henryk P., and his physician wife Clara were informed, free to leave for Israel. The same thing was happening throughout Poland and Rumania to thousands of university-trained professionals.

Israel was not consulted — merely told to provide the visas and transportation. This academically-trained immigration posed vast new problems. In the 1930s, when German Jews had come, many had abandoned their sophisticated professions to become farmers, but now Israel was determined to use the skills of Henryk P. and his fellow newcomers.

The first problem was language. Almost all the members of this immigration were Poles, through Yiddish — six-month-long full-time intensive Hebrew courses. To date these courses have close to 100,000 graduates.

Not all the members of this immigration were Poles, through Yiddish — six-month-long full-time intensive Hebrew courses. To date these courses have close to 100,000 graduates.

Had it arrived earlier in the first days of Israel's existence, and adopted itself to the free countries of the world, but an intention to do so was never made. The number of such immigrants settled in Israel since 1948 has been 75,000,000,000. But it is not only the immigrants who have been integrated into the life of the young State. The immigrants from the East and the West have brought with them from their countries — the mechanical arts, the medical arts, the sciences and academics, the arts and letters.

But more all that is particularly true of the immigrants so few of the USSR, and about 200,000 Russians in the immigration.

Had it been possible to have had a similar immigration from the East and the West, the young State would have been a different place. I were made for each one of them.

tion planners were determined to receive them. Had it been possible to have had a similar immigration from the East and the West, the young State would have been a different place. I were made for each one of them.

After they had been absorbed in a Jerusalem school, Henryk P. and his wife Clara were allocated a new 20-acre plot of land. Henryk discovered that the land was not yet ready for the large number of immigrants who had now arrived.

After a few desultory attempts, work was arranged for the immigrants. Henryk P. and his wife Clara were allocated a new 20-acre plot of land. Henryk discovered that the land was not yet ready for the large number of immigrants who had now arrived.

Factories were established and the immigrants were given housing, sports and all the necessities. There was a large forward in building and in social services.

Soon the newcomers began to improve their status as they were integrated into the life of the young State. The immigrants from the East and the West have brought with them from their countries — the mechanical arts, the medical arts, the sciences and academics, the arts and letters.

From the earth, realisation of a vision

By Dr. A. Biran
Director, Department of Antiquities and Museums.

To discover an archaeological site is a hard task. To the Bible, it is a source of information. To the man of the present, it is a realisation of a vision. In Israel, it has been a hard task. In much more than that, it has been a realisation of a vision. The realisation of the dream of building the State of Israel, the realisation of the dream of building the State of Israel, the realisation of the dream of building the State of Israel.

Further south the excavation at Hazor was resumed after a lapse of some ten years. The largest water tunnel ever discovered in the world was discovered. Also at Tel Dan massive Hyksos fortifications were discovered. The 18th-17th centuries were uncovered.

The Philistines are a little known people of this part of the world. Yet they left their imprint in the land. Excavated pottery dated to the end of the second millennium B.C. Samson set fire to the Philistine watchtowers. He had brought down the temple of Dagon in Ashdod.

And in Ashdod a joint Carianic Mission (from Phoenicia) by the Israel Department of Antiquities expedition uncovered archaeological remains which will shed more light on Philistine history. The origins of the Philistines, a Mycenaean culture are indicated by the Mycenaean motifs on the wall of Ashdod as well as by the female figures which their hands raised in the typical posture of the Aegean-Mycenaean world.

The modern city of Ashdod is located north of the early site but it is spreading south and fast becoming the most important city in the area even as ancient Ashdod was during the days of the Judean monarchy.

Another capital city of the Philistines was Gaza. Gaza has a long history and it is not the first time that it has been an Egyptian outpost. For that matter, it is the first time that it has been captured by Israel. Gaza boasts the earliest times but in its Great Mosque one of the main pillars comes from a synagogue as it depicts the menorah, shofar, Lullington House, P.O. Box 30229, Nairobi. Tel: 23179, Cables: 'SOLDA-NAIROBI' Telex: 22299

Gaza at one time had a large Jewish population with more than one synagogue but their sites are unknown. Among the unexpected results of the Six-Day War was the discovery of a synagogue from the beginning of the sixth century A.D., situated on the seashore. The mosaic floor shows a figure playing David whose name is spelled in Hebrew letters. The names of the donors, Menahem and Joshua, wood merchants, are given in Greek.

An unusual mosaic was discovered during construction of a modern market place in Beersheva. The mosaic is composed of relatively small tesserae forming scrolls. Medallions formed by clusters of grapes encircle figures. One of which include a serpent, wild boar, gazelle and a hare.

'Severe action' at Coast

The secretary of the Coast Province Sports Association, Mr. Shem Goga, has warned Coast sports associations and clubs that "severe action" will be taken against them if they do not assist their teams to other provinces, or before inviting teams from other provinces to play against them.

Mr. Goga, who is also the Coast Provincial Sports Officer, said that repeated warnings, but no associations or clubs should have the province of or invite teams from other provinces without consultation with the Coast Province Sports Association had been ignored. If this practice continues the bodies concerned will be dealt with severely," he said.

Mr. Goga added that his warning particularly applied to football clubs who were the main defaulters of this rule. But other sporting associations and clubs should also take notice of it.

Mr. Goga said that the practice of contacting national bodies direct for permission to leave the province should cease forthwith, and he warned that no application would be considered by his association if it was sent back by the national body for its recommendation.

The Association was formed to cater for all sporting bodies in the province and to encourage the smooth running of sporting activities in its centre. It was set up to the district and clubs to make full use of the facilities offered by the association and to abide by its rules.

Anti-Assassins touring team

Changes have had to be made in the Anti-Assassins rugby touring party, which is to leave Uganda on May 9 for an extensive 10-month tour of the East African continent over the next two weeks. Two of the stars who were due to take part, Philip Mike Weston and Simon Clarke, have had to drop out, with Clarke having been kept at home as expected by his employers in Japan. Others who have been added are Ransome and Lamb.

The selectors had approached John Young to replace Clarke but Young will be touring with the Barbarians at the time. Peter Stagg was also selected for the Barbarians tour but has preferred to visit East Africa.

The replacements for Weston, Clarke, Lamb and Ransome are A. A. Birwishes, a school cricketer, D. H. Morris, holder of four Lancashire caps, and P. K. Mason, another Yorkshire cricketer.

Another player, Peter Stagg, was also selected for the Barbarians tour but has preferred to visit East Africa. The team is expected to play against the British Lions side in 1959.

Other internationals in the team include John Currie, Peter Stagg, E. W. Purdy, one England cap; C. W. McFadyen, one England cap; S. Phillips, who has 25 caps for England.

The party includes 20 players, 20 first-team players, 20 second team players, 20 reserves, and 20 support players. The tour will be the first time they will play in many years. They then return to Kampala on May 10 and they then start their Kenya visit with a game against West Kenya at Kiria on May 13.

CHANCES OF SECOND VISIT APPEAR SLIM

Chances of a second rugby visit to Kenya by all outside teams this season appear slim. According to the chairman of the overseas tours committee of the Rugby Football Union of East Africa, Mr. Bernard Nicholls, Mr. Nicholls said yesterday that Strathmillis, the Edinburgh training college team from Northern Ireland, had not replied to correspondence on the proposal since February.

"I was just yesterday to Queen's University officials in Ireland asking them if they could come to Kampala to say yes or no to our offer for a game in Kampala," he said, "but it seems unlikely that they will come now."

"I am unable to make it there. It is a Fambian club team that is interested and we may suggest them to make a tour and play in Kenya."

Mr. Nicholls is already making plans for next year and is already making to Queen's University offering them another tour. Queen's will leave Africa last year. If this tour fails through Mr. Nicholls' ill health, a fresh approach to the English Police School team, a team from Western Australia, a team from making a tour of East Africa and play for each a visit may be made for 1970.

Twenty-two players have been selected by the Central Kenya Rugby Football Union from whom the teams will be chosen. The team will play in the first Inter-Provincial Championship match in Tanzania on May 19 and will play Anti-Assassins in Nairobi on May 17. The players are asked to report for training at Parklands S.C. today at 5.15 p.m.

not acceptable

Reasons given by the Amateur Athletics Union of Australia for declining invitations to three Australian athletes to run in Kenya were not acceptable to the Kenya Amateur Athletics Association yesterday. The reasons given were in a letter from the union secretary, Mr. Ash Jones, which was to be written back to try to bring the matter to a head.

The three athletes had been invited to take part in the Kenya Gold Coast Airways sponsored international meetings on September 13 and 14 in Nairobi and on September 13 in Nairobi.

In the letter the A.A.U.A. stated that the invitation was not acceptable because the two Kenya fixtures were being held on dates close to the first Pacific Games, to be held in Tokyo, Japan.

The Australians said they were sending the team to Tokyo including Clarke, Doubell and O'Brien. They were told it was "impracticable" to send the athletes to Kenya and then to Tokyo.

The interpretation put in Nairobi on the word "impracticable" that offences of their athletes, which performance by running at Nairobi, might have been in the past.

There are two weeks separating the Nairobi meeting on September 13 and the start of the Pacific Games.

on September 27. The Tokyo meeting was held on September 27 and 28 and the Australian athletics authorities said that their team leaves on September 20, competing in a meeting on the way to Tokyo.

Another reason stated in the letter was that the Australian athletes may find it difficult to obtain visas from Kenya because of the numerous meetings they will be attending around the world.

Mr. Jones said: "We are very disappointed at the attitude shown by the Australians. We have invited their country twice before and they have never come back with a reciprocal tour. We are just fed up about the way we are treated. This is a good example of non-co-operation."

"We have taken our athletes away from the Kenya public so that we can send them to all parts of the world just to please places like Australia and the United States. But they just have no intention of planning us for a change and just will not accept tours of Kenya."

There is plenty of time for the Australians to run in Kenya if they are ready to do so. We are just trying to get at least one of the Australians here but if wish they would accept our invitation.

Teams from Japan, Canada, the United States, New Zealand and Australia will be competing in the Pacific Games and it is feared that the Australian team will be busy for the season in Australia for declining the Kenya A.A.A.'s invitation to Jim Kenya and Lee Evans to run in Kenya.

Mr. Jones added: "All this is very unfair to the Kenya athletes who are suffering at the hands of the world stars competing against them. It is very unfair to the Kenya athletes who are suffering at the hands of the world stars competing against them. It is very unfair to the Kenya athletes who are suffering at the hands of the world stars competing against them."

It is very unfair to the Kenya athletes who are suffering at the hands of the world stars competing against them."

Mr. Jones added that his warning particularly applied to football clubs who were the main defaulters of this rule. But other sporting associations and clubs should also take notice of it.

Mr. Goga said that the practice of contacting national bodies direct for permission to leave the province should cease forthwith, and he warned that no application would be considered by his association if it was sent back by the national body for its recommendation.

The Association was formed to cater for all sporting bodies in the province and to encourage the smooth running of sporting activities in its centre. It was set up to the district and clubs to make full use of the facilities offered by the association and to abide by its rules.

The team will play in the first Inter-Provincial Championship match in Tanzania on May 19 and will play Anti-Assassins in Nairobi on May 17. The players are asked to report for training at Parklands S.C. today at 5.15 p.m.

on September 27. The Tokyo meeting was held on September 27 and 28 and the Australian athletics authorities said that their team leaves on September 20, competing in a meeting on the way to Tokyo.

Another reason stated in the letter was that the Australian athletes may find it difficult to obtain visas from Kenya because of the numerous meetings they will be attending around the world.

Mr. Jones said: "We are very disappointed at the attitude shown by the Australians. We have invited their country twice before and they have never come back with a reciprocal tour. We are just fed up about the way we are treated. This is a good example of non-co-operation."

"We have taken our athletes away from the Kenya public so that we can send them to all parts of the world just to please places like Australia and the United States. But they just have no intention of planning us for a change and just will not accept tours of Kenya."

scare hits Pound and Franc

The Bank of England was compelled to intervene energetically on the money market yesterday to support the Pound sterling, which dropped for the second straight day. The British currency fell at the opening of bidding yesterday to 2388 1/2 in the Dollar, as compared to 2391 1/2 closing on Tuesday and 2395 1/2 on Monday.

A sharp upswing in demand for the Deutsche Mark caused the feverish activity in the London Foreign Exchange and brought the currency against Sterling, the French Franc and the Dollar after a six-month period of calm.

Operators attributed the sudden revival of the Deutsche Mark to a new wave of speculation buying to a revaluation of the West German currency accompanied by a devaluation of the Pound and the French Franc.

London financial circles expressed the view that the revaluation of the Mark was inevitable. Said one broker: "It is only a question of when, not whether, we are going to have these severe changes of things happen."

Earlier in the year speculators were more or less of the view that there would be no revaluation before the autumn West German elections, but recently they seem to have changed their tune.

Yesterday's operations in the life of the opposing French Minister and the quarterly meeting of the Comite Inter-Allie Franois on Tuesday have increased speculators' activities.

Sterling hit one of its worst days for several years, partly because of the news from Northern Ireland crisis. An hour before close the Pound had fallen to a rate of 1188.25 against Tuesday's closing rate of 2395 1/2 dollars, a drop of half a cent.

The Franc was also weak, although it strengthened slightly in relation to the Pound, showing a rate of 1185.2 against Tuesday's 1189.35.

Gold, which opened at 413.75 dollars, rose to 410 dollars.

Cheap lodge planned for Arusha

Standard Staff Reporter

The expansion of Arusha, both as the headquarters of the East African Community and the centre of a growing tourist area, is prompting financiers and local businessmen alike to closely study accommodation needs in the town.

While the two main hotels offer higher-priced accommodation with a third, about to be built 13 miles from town, the town of Arusha is a single rooming house, Mr. Saidi Kassam, has conceived what used to be the town's central practice as a medium-priced lodge. Called 'The Lodge' on the corner of Church Street, the large bungalow had been converted into five double rooms and a new block, also with five double rooms each with its own shower and toilet facilities, is to be built in the town.

The plans are being prepared by Mr. Saidi Kassam, who has put up this year's hotel here, and is a member of the town's housing committee. He has a good knowledge of the town and its needs. He has a good knowledge of the town and its needs.

Mr. Kassam, a buyer, thinks that the lodge will be popular from outlying areas, such as missionaries and farmers who come to Arusha for a few days at a time.

But he also sees the lodge as an alternative for tourists who do not want to stay in plush surroundings and for independent-minded families.

MORE TRUCKS FOR KENATO

Standard Staff Reporter

Kenato Transport Co. Ltd. which is partly owned by the Government, has added to its transport vehicles 36 trucks and trailers purchased from the Zambian firm of Andrew P. Spynn and Sons (Zambia) Ltd.

The trucks, which were formerly used on the 'Hell run' Dar es Salaam and Nairobi, are being modified by a Nairobi firm of mechanical engineers and will be used to transport goods between Nairobi, Mombasa and Ndole.

BARCLAYS TAKE C.M.C. SHARES

Barclays Bank D.C.O. announced in Nairobi yesterday that they were more than happy to take up the 425,000 shares of the East African recent Cooper Motor Corporation Rights issue.

The 5% ordinary shares, available at 9s, were quoted at 725 1/2 in Nairobi Stock Exchange up to Thursday and now, at 5/6 1/2, are at an equivalent price to the balance and dividend to be distributed next month.

The bank undertakes the issue, made on the basis of one-for-one, with the first 15% of the shares guaranteed in East Africa.

"We feel it has been a success," said a Barclays spokesman here. "We are more than happy to take up the 425,000 shares of the East African recent Cooper Motor Corporation Rights issue."

HOW'S YOUR LUCK?

TAURUS, Jan. 21-Feb. 19 - Your suspicion concerning a change on the work front, probably the start of a new project, but keep cool and you are not too hasty to adapt yourself to new methods.

PISCES, Feb. 20-Mar. 20 - Things keep cropping up to delay the start of a new project, but keep pushing. ARIES, Mar. 21-Apr. 20 - An interesting plan concerning a friend or colleague will be spoiled. Double check arrangements particularly where meetings are involved.

TAURUS, Apr. 21-May 21 - Don't discard an old idea purely because of its age. Give it a little extra thought; you may be surprised at the results. GEMINI, May 22-June 21 - Don't allow the sharp tongue of a friend or colleague to spoil your day. Several cheerful plans are in the offing.

CANCER, June 22-July 23 - In the on your plans against the weather. Evening hours could turn out to be very bright. LEO, July 24-Aug. 23 - Your enthusiasm for an almost forgotten plan is still very much in evidence. You may have some important dates.

BIRTHDAY WISDOM

Virgo, Oct. 24-Nov. 23 - A Virgo is a practical person, but necessary if you are to be taken seriously. LIBRA, Nov. 24-Dec. 23 - Home affairs demand all your attention, but take care not to neglect anything important on the day.

SCORPIO, Dec. 24-Jan. 23 - A seemingly routine matter will turn out to be a very important one. SAGITTARIUS, Jan. 24-Feb. 23 - You may feel temporarily ill at ease in a new situation, but with a companion's help, you will take time to write down your thoughts.

CAPRICORN, Feb. 24-March 23 - You may have a great busy day, but it is well worth the effort. AQUARIUS, March 24-April 23 - A surprising plan concerning a friend or colleague will be spoiled.

League championship

Leeds United moved another step nearer to winning the English Football League Championship on Tuesday night when they drew 0-2 away to Everton. Their nearest rivals, Liverpool, fought out a goalless draw away against local Coventry City.

So Leeds need to win only one of their remaining two matches to take the title for the first time in the Yorkshire club's history.

The position at the top after Tuesday night read: Leeds United 64 points, Liverpool 61, Everton 59, 50 points from 35 games.

Liverpool and Coventry played a proposal to the M.C.C. Council for the last 10 minutes with only ten men. The Coventry centre-half Maurice Evans and the Liverpool centre-forward Alan Evans were both sent off for clashing in mid-field. Punishes appeared to be drawn by both players.

Results of matches played on Tuesday night were:

CRICKET

Move to restrict excessive pad play

The English Test and County Cricket Board is putting forward a proposal to the M.C.C. Council meeting on May 1 that all cricketers should be restricted to a maximum of 100 square inches of pad from the start of the 1967-70 overseas season with a new experimental pad to be used to eliminate excessive pad play.

The experimental law proposal states that the cricketer is to allow, if with any part of his person except his hand, he wears a half which has not been touched by his bat or hand - which in the opinion of the umpire would be particularly dangerous.

The proposed experimental law adds in its entirety the recommendations of the cricket sub-committee which took into account the views of umpires, captains and a number of distinguished fielders.

Among advantages envisaged by the M.C.C. are (a) the elimination of excessive pad play, (b) the restriction of the ball being pitched outside the stump and (c) the restriction of the ball being pitched outside the stump.

The proposal also states that the umpire would have the right to restrict the ball being pitched outside the stump and (c) the restriction of the ball being pitched outside the stump.

JAPS KEEP SWAYTHLING

Japan retained the Swaythling Cup men's team trophy in the final of the 13th Swaythling Cup tournament in Munich on Tuesday night. The finalists were West Germany 5-2 to 3-1 and Japan 5-2 to 3-1. The match was much closer than had been expected, with Japan leading 2-0 after three sets.

THE EAST AFRICAN POWER & LIGHTING CO. LTD.

CHAIRMAN'S REVIEW FOR THE YEAR ENDED DECEMBER 31, 1968.

The Company had a most successful year in 1968. Sales of electricity rose to a new high level of 530 million units, an increase of 9.1 per cent over the previous year — compared with 1967 sales of 486 million units. Electricity revenue rose by 11.8 per cent to K16,762,275. The net operating surplus was up 11.2 per cent to K1,762,275. The net profit attributable to Ordinary Stockholders increased from K745,628 to K1,029,354.

Management's very good results, for which considerable credit is due to the staff of the Company, must, however, be evaluated in the context of the need to achieve a high degree of self-reliance. It is essential to substantially the undistributed Profit and Reserves from the previous year. Within the limits imposed by the Government's present sound investment status, on policy must be to act, wherever practicable, as a catalyst for an imaginative but nevertheless realistic approach if all economic and profitable expansion of the distribution system is to be achieved.

proved that the pressures to provide electricity have been intensified more by the desirability of this undeveloped amenity than by the realistic assessment of an area's ability to pay for it at the rates. The success of either new development areas, however, potential, the need for development, and your Board is conscious of the vital importance of that the Electricity Industry has to play. Power and Communications and the operation of the Ministries of Economic Planning and Development. We look for further Government electricity supplies with the object of co-ordinating the extension of the Bureau and demand for electricity.

Out of total capital expenditure during the year of 684,215, capital expenditure on extensions and improvements to generation plants and the distribution network amounted to 660,785.

Work on our new 625,000 headquarters building in Nairobi, due for completion in March 1970, is proceeding on schedule.

EXPLORATION OF GEOTHERMAL STEAM RESOURCES

Exploration in the Lake Naivasha area was undertaken without success in the 1950's. New techniques now available appear to Consultants, Balfour Beatty & Co. Limited, where our a promising survey. Its application is to be made through the Government for international aid to meet part of the cost of further to generate substantial supplies of electricity could result in great benefit to your Company and the potential expenditure involved (of the order of 500,000) is considered to be amply justified.

and to this reason and because of the effect on future costs a conservative view of present earnings at least until our present tax commitments can be met.

THE KENYA POWER COMPANY LIMITED

On the commissioning of the first 20 MW at Kiandara in the under the terms of the Kenya Uganda Electricity Agreement.

TANA RIVER DEVELOPMENT COMPANY LIMITED

The outstanding event of the year under review was the formal opening of the Company's Kinross scheme by the President. His encouragement in its inauguration to this project by His Excellency in a unique way the recognition by the broader, Aarded development in the importance of the scheme and the Government of the most of which is to be met by the Government. The Station is managed by your Company, and has operated satisfactorily.

The engineering studies of the next stages of the Seven Forks Project at Kapuru and Gitaru are in progress. The timing of the project will depend to some extent on the result of the negotiations with the Uganda Electricity Board, but the additional investment in the project is 140 MW.

ACCOUNTS

The net operating surplus was K1,762,275 compared with K1,131,325 in 1967. Operating and Administration expenses rose from K1,246,819 to K2,166,020 and the cost of the bulk supply increased to K446,819 representing the purchase of 416.9 million units compared with 353.3 million units in 1967. The Provision for Depreciation increased by 404,582 to K1,974,834. Reserves increased by K1,400,000 after allocating an amount of K250,000 to the Development Reserve and the Future Taxation Reserve has been increased by K36,827. After payment of Preference Dividending K324,247, and bringing in the carry forward of 474,399, a recommendation of Final Dividend of 6 per cent of Profit compared with the previous year.

The sterling devaluation in November 1967 resulted in savings of approximately K118,000 mainly in the form of interest and redemption payments on sterling loans.

FUTURE PROSPECTS

While there remain grounds for viewing the short-term position with some caution in view of the major social and occupational adjustments which I referred in my last Review, I would emphasize our continuing confidence in Kenya's overall economic progress, of which we are confident that the present rate of growth will be maintained.

The country's rate of future economic development will depend not only on the maintenance of political stability and strong government but also on the capacity of the new agricultural industry to increase in production combined with high quality. The agricultural industry will continue to provide the main source of wealth and the source of economic development. The development of primary and secondary industries must, however, assume a progressively more important role if Kenya is to be achieved. It is encouraging that 1968 has witnessed a significant increase in industrial output.

The next few years will call for tremendous effort on the part of everybody to learn new skills and disciplines and to achieve the increase in productivity, growth national product and living standards which is one of the declared policy aims of the Government. In this context, expansion and profitability of the same time dependent industry will continue to provide the main source of wealth and the source of economic development. The development of primary and secondary industries must, however, assume a progressively more important role if Kenya is to be achieved. It is encouraging that 1968 has witnessed a significant increase in industrial output.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Your Board was happy to accept a proposal, made in the course of negotiating the latest Loan Agreement with Commonwealth Corporation, that the Corporation should be represented on your Board. Mr. P. M. W. W. was appointed to the Board on December 20, 1968. To create the necessary vacancy, Mr. W. D. M. Brown, Board on November 25, 1968.

TRAINING AND KENYANISATION

We further intensified our training programme in 1968. The number of personnel under training rose from 194 in 1967 to 270 in 1968. The marked rise in the number of School Certificate holders leaving Secondary Schools resulted in a further reduction in the wage rate that has in the past frustrated much of our training effort. It is a generally higher standard of recruitment in the technician field, but the first two African graduate engineers, trained by our policy of Kenyanisation to be accelerated in the technician field, but the first two African graduate engineers, trained by our policy of Kenyanisation to be accelerated in the technician field, but the first two African graduate engineers, trained by our policy of Kenyanisation to be accelerated in the technician field.

INDUSTRIAL RELATIONS

Industrial disputes with the Kenya Electrical Trades Workers Union in the early part of the year were satisfactorily settled. The result of our negotiations with the Union in force until 1971 and it is confidently expected that the good relations which previously existed between Management and the Union will be fully restored. The majority of staff remained loyal throughout the year and continue to give excellent service.

EXECUTIVE AND STAFF

I would express our appreciation of the loyal services rendered during the year by our Senior Executives and all our Staff, to whom it is due in large measure by the very satisfactory results achieved during the year.

ing countries can expand trade with each other well beyond present limits.

There was reason to believe on the evidence available that, over the progress although a little slowing down became evident towards the end of 1968.

In the non-farming sector the index of sales in the fourth quarter remained at the same high level as in the third but at a higher level and well above that of the corresponding quarter in 1967.

In the first quarter of the current year there was some evidence to suggest that stocks of some commodities were moving rather slowly but this was expected to be a temporary consequence of overstocking.

Farmers' incomes in 1968 went up primarily because of an increase of almost one-third in the output of cereals. Because deliveries of maize and wheat were well in excess of domestic requirements, substantial quantities were exported.

The best available trade figures suggest that, during January, November, 1968, over 250,000 metric tons of maize had been exported as well as a smaller quantity of wheat and wheat flour.

There was every indication that a maize surplus would be in excess rather than the exception in future years.

This was the result of impressive technological advances in the development of high-yielding seed varieties and improved agronomy.

The Government was planning actively to promote maize exports and to increase in fact, the maize output of the most important cash crops in the agricultural sector.

To achieve this, a system of bulk handling for export maize was almost one-third in the output of cereals. Because deliveries of maize and wheat were well in excess of domestic requirements, substantial quantities were exported.

apparent in sales from the manufacturing sector outstanding in the first quarter of 1968. For the last three months before the end of 1968 were 12 per cent above those of the corresponding quarter of 1967.

From limited information now available it appeared that many industries which were particularly severely affected by the quantity restrictions on exports to the other E.A.C. countries before the implementation of the E.A.C. treaty and the restrictions on imports, were being more adversely affected by the transfer tax provisions of the treaty.

Receipts of the building and construction industries during the quarter of 1968 which followed the end of the corresponding quarter of 1967 but remained their upward trend in the last quarter rising by 12 per cent over the two previous quarters.

For 1968 as a whole, in Nairobi, the value of building plant approved by the City Council was lower than the corresponding quarter of 1967 but in the first three months of the current year approval had leapt up to a level well in excess of any single quarter during 1967 or 1968 and nearly equal to that of the corresponding quarter of 1967.

Clearly, building activity was expected to remain at a high level.

Costs in the building industry had eased their previously rapid rise and were now stabilised and leading to further improvements in the actual decline in the building industry.

In tourism, in terms of visits, there appeared, from evidence available to be little or no change although the number of bednights spent by tourists in hotels had risen by three months of 1968 were more than five per cent higher than the same period of 1967 for the year as a whole totalled 196,700.

Overseas trading for the first 11 months of 1968 showed an increase of 25 per cent over the corresponding quarter of 1967. Imports from Western Europe increased slightly but, it was the fair in this matter. This I feel, is in wrong way of looking at it. As far as the Government is concerned, in its first quarter of 1968, in particular case it was quite a matter of preventing a serious destruction.

"Our roads are in a great expense and it is to be torn up would be the matter of the Government's responsibilities."

"That the Government's unmindful of the interests of its citizens who are in the road transport."

"I have been impressed by the statistics by road transports on the Government's success in raising a large part of licensed road capacity to African ownership."

The announcement by the Government last Tuesday of reduction in the duty on diesel oil would also benefit road transport to some extent in less farmers," he said.

The Minister referred to the living which, was regarded as a considerable achievement of the Government.

However, there were indications that a significant upward movement was going to appear in the April figures. The primary cause was a sharp increase in meat prices.

Referring to the higher prices of beef to producers, he said: "The likely consequences of the changes in wholesale prices were assessed before the new prices were announced."

"But the actual change in prices at retail level has been a good deal higher. Some butchers have tried to take the opportunity of the change to inflate their profit margins."

"However, consumers have shown a degree of unwillingness to cooperate and reduced their purchases of meat. I have no sympathy with the butchers who are now trying to blame the Government for 'loss of business' if their trade has fallen the fault is their own."

"If what I can only describe as blatant profiteering attempts of this nature continue, the Government will not hesitate to take positive measures to curb them."

RISE IN BANK DEPOSITS BY £10m.

The report states that commercial bank deposits have continued to rise and, at the end of the year, were £100,000,000 higher than at the end of 1967.

More than half of this growth had taken place in the last quarter of the year. Though the rate of growth was in demand deposits, the high level prevailing in the last quarter. After remaining virtually stable for some months, deposits in the bank rose towards the end of 1967. Credit facilities generally were easy.

Office production declined because of C.B.D. and other metric tons below 1967 and, despite higher revenue to farmers from crop was £500,000 lower.

Deliveries to the Kenyan Commission fell during the year especially in the last quarter but this did not mean that cattle were still on the hoof, it meant they were being slaughtered elsewhere.

However, production prices had been increased and a higher throughput level should be attained by the A.M.C. in the coming quarter.

The report indicates that the visible balance of external trade deteriorated by £4,500,000. At £100,200,000, several imports were nine per cent higher during the first eleven months of 1968 and external exports rose by £3,900,000 or eight per cent.

Increase in East African taxpayers

The total number of taxpayers in East Africa, excluding the P.A.Y.E. system, increased by four per cent. This is shown in the East African Income Tax Department annual report for 1968.

The total payable tax rose by 23.5 per cent to £37,319,348. More of the increase is accounted for by company payments through the increase of Corporation Tax by 50 per cent, and also by the increase in higher taxable income.

Although the total tax collected exceeded the total for the previous year, the increase in mainland Tanzania was relatively smaller than that which has been seen by the Commissioner-General of Inland Tax, Mr. Sam Sobagereka. Collections in Tanzania suffered particularly because of the depressed economic state of the steel industry and other events affecting steel growth.

Among the breakdown of income from various trade groups, agriculture did not show the severe fall of the previous year, but income was down by more than eight per cent in Kenya and over six per cent in Tanzania. Uganda showed a 13 per cent increase attributed to the slightly better world prices.

Nigerians judge civil war 'virtually over'

The independent Nigerian newspaper, the Daily Times, said yesterday that Wednesday's Federal announcement of the fall of the Biafran stronghold of Umuahia meant Nigeria's 15-month-old civil war was virtually ended.

The newspaper said in an editorial: "With the fall of Umuahia, the war against the rebel clique is virtually over."

It went on: "The rebel leader, Lt-Col. Odumegwu Ojukwu, has boasted in the past of his plans to start a guerrilla phase of the civil war. This is an idle dream. We are confident that the Federal troops will wipe out all traces of rebellion from the federation."

The Federal Government-owned Morning Post said in an editorial: "The news of the final liberation of Umuahia will be received with mixed feelings by the 250,000,000 people of this federation."

"On the one hand, the threat of secession has at last been permanently removed, and the territorial integrity of the Nigerian federation has been guaranteed for ever."

"On the other hand, the fate of millions of innocent civilians scattered into the very jungles and still in rebel hands will naturally excite the minds of fellow Nigerians in other parts of the country. But this fact is inseparably bound with the fortunes of rebellion and the tragedy of military confrontation."

Officials in Lagos stressed, however, that the seizure of the Biafran stronghold did not automatically mean the end of the war.

The Government said the city fell on Tuesday after a five-day bombardment by Federal artillery.

The administration of Col. Ojukwu believed to have moved to the small town of Orlu, about 45 miles north-west of Umuahia.

Chief Anthony Enahoro, the Nigerian Information Commissioner, told a press conference Wednesday: "If we have to take the week by week, it is inevitable that by inch, we will, in time, bring Biafra's remaining area of about 250 square miles, including the vital airstrip of Uli-Ihaha, which gives the Biafrans access to fresh arms supplies."

It also contains one of Africa's densest road networks, allowing considerable army mobility, although the roads are liable to be clogged by refugees moving inwards.

Many of Biafra's arms supplies are reported to be of French manufacture and in Paris on Wednesday the Biafran Interior Minister, Mr. Christopher Mokuwu, appealed for French backing on the diplomatic front.

"We hope ardently that following the impossibility of arriving at a solution in an African framework, France will do its best to bring about a solution in the international plane," he said.

Thanking the French Government formally for its support for the fall of the Biafran people to self-determination.

was a major psychological victory for the Lagos Government.

They cautioned against expectations of an early end to the civil war, saying that the Biafrans still held a fairly large territory in the heart of the rebel land.

"We have demonstrated that a military victory was possible," the Nigerian Foreign Affairs Commissioner, Dr. Okunribido, said in London in a B.B.C. television interview.

Dr. Arifayo was referring to the situation in Umuahia. He said that his Government still wanted to "talk" to the Biafran leaders, but that they would stick to the principle of "one Nigeria."

Asked whether he thought that Col. Ojukwu's authority was really questioned, he added: "I am representative in Biafra. Dr. Arifayo pressed the point that there was evidence that there are divisions within Biafra."

He was not, however, able to say whether Col. Ojukwu's authority was really questioned, he added.

The Biafran representative in Biafra, Ignatius Kogbana, also appeared on the programme afterwards. He said that in Monrovia non-reasonableness came from the Nigerians.

Ulster saboteurs blow up pipeline and bomb school

Saboteurs blew up a major water pipeline and bombed a Roman Catholic school early yesterday in Northern Ireland's latest round of Catholic-Protestant feuding.

There were no injuries in either incident, but 500,000 people in the Belfast area face strict water rationing for several days and factories are exposed to the possibility of being exposed to the possibility.

The Prime Minister, Capt. Terence O'Neill, was called out of bed as reports came in of the blast at Dunadry, 20 miles from Belfast.

First reports gave no indication of crucial political developments in the British province, where Capt. O'Neill pushed through agreement to bring in the long-contested principle of one-man, one-vote in local elections.

Another water main blast last Sunday night has kept Belfast short of water ever since.

There had been widespread fears that announcement of the one-man, one-vote decision would lead to rioting in Belfast and other towns, but this failed to materialise.

The decision dealt with by Deputy Premier, Mr. James Dillane, in an address to the Irish people in the ball in recent months with clashing between the Protestant majority and minority Catholics who claim the electoral system deprives them of civil rights.

The decision to change the law was pushed through by Capt. O'Neill at a meeting of the members of the ruling Unionist Party in Parliament.

The Deputy Premier of the Irish Republic, Mr. Frank Aiken, said that he hoped the United Nations Secretary-General, U Thant, would use his influence to help restore calm to Northern Ireland.

Mr. Aiken was speaking after a meeting with U Thant to discuss the Ulster situation.

U Thant's help in solving the violence sweeping their northern neighbour.

CZECH UNIONS GAUTIOUS SUPPORT

The Czech Trade Union Council expressed its support to the resolution of the Communist Central Committee plenum on the new trade union laws, announced a First Secretary of the Council.

In a resolution, the council declared: "The Czech revolutionary trade union movement has no intention of departing by one inch from the principles defined by the Czech Trade Union Congress."

The basis of union activity would continue to be resolutions adopted by the union and by the seventh Czech Trade Union Congress.

Czech trade unions were determined to apply the policies approved at the congress and on the spot, welcomed the Central Committee plenum's appeal inviting workers to apply the necessary conditions for the energetic pursuit of post-January policies.

The Czech Trade Union Council will do everything to safeguard the opinions of the unions and interests directly and indirectly affected in all measures taken in our country which touch workers' interests directly and indirectly.

The council approved the opinion expressed by the Central Committee that the first task to facilitate the application of the policies of economic reforms and the organization of elections.

Workers must be kept fully informed of all decisions, and resolutions adopted at the plenum which will be brought to fruition with the direct participation of all the workers said the council.

Another National Liberation Council member, Mr. Frank Aiken, said that he did not intend to raise the Ulster crisis with any United Nations body.

Major dates in the conflict with Biafra

- The following is a chronology of Nigeria's civil war and the events that preceded it:
- January 15, 1966: Five army officers of the Eastern Ibo tribe staged a coup which overthrew the Nigerian Federal Prime Minister, Aburi Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa, and the northern leaders Sir Ahmadu Bello, were arrested.
- May: Two led riots in Northern Nigeria and many deaths.
- July: Northern-led Army revolt overthrew the military government of Maj-Gen Iyob, who was assassinated. Lt-Gen (now Maj-Gen) Yakubu Gowon took office as Head of State.
- Sept.-Oct.: Anti-Ibo riots erupted in the North with heavy losses.
- January 29, 1967: Conference at Aburi, Ghana, between Col. Gowon and Lt-Gen (now Lt-Gen) Yakubu Gowon and Lt-Gen (now Lt-Gen) Yakubu Gowon, Governor of the Eastern Region, announced a State of Emergency, split Nigeria's four regions into 12 states including three in the Eastern Region, and withdrew concessions to the East made at Aburi in Oct.
- May 27: Economic sanctions imposed against the East.
- May 30: Col. Ojukwu declared the secession of the Eastern Region and the establishment of the independent republic of Biafra, named after the coastal Ibo of Biafra.
- July: Fighting began between federal and secessionist forces.
- Aug. 9: Biafran forces capture Mid-West State's Federal police action was now 'total war'.
- Aug. 10: Gen. Gowon declared Biafra as a Federal force captured Mid-Western capital, Calabar, shortly after secessionist elements declared it the "Republic of Benin".
- Oct. 5: The Federal Government announced capture of the Biafran capital, Enugu.
- Oct. 18: Federal forces captured Calabar Port.
- March 21, 1968: Federal forces captured Niger River city of Onitsha.
- May 19: Federal Marine Commando Division captured Port Harcourt, Biafra's oil city.
- July: Federal and Biafran officials in Niamey, Niger, for an abortive peace talks arranged by the Consultative Committees of the Organisation for African Unity.
- Sept. 30: Federal led Division troops captured Ibadan.
- Feb. 20: Biafran killed 500 people killed in one of a series of Federal air attacks with the aid of the British Prime Minister, Mr. Wilson, visited Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, on the war.

Sudanese Premier hands in resignation

The Sudanese Prime Minister, Mr. Mohammed Ahmad Mahgoub, tendered his resignation amid reports of a military coup.

The Prime Minister was questioned by the Government on the day of his resignation and a statement was issued by the Government stating that the resignation was accepted.

Since the resignation of Mahgoub, the Government has been in a state of confusion. The military has taken control of the country and is reported to be in the process of organizing new elections.

Ever driven a hard bargain?

First drive, you know it's a bargain. The most practical pick-up ever invented. Take the single cabin log, payed one ton, 46.3 boards, car comfort cabin. Below the platform there's a lockable compartment with 22.6 sq. ft. of load space.

Out of sight. Safe. And a capacity of 25 cu. ft. In the back, there's that powerful, but miserly.

With-the-petrol VW 1600 c.c. engine that goes and goes and goes. The same goes for the VW Double Cabin Pick-Up with line load space, but in the cabin for two rows of passengers or staff or whoever you wish to carry. In comfort.

Bonn Cabinet to ban N.P.D. UP TO VOTERS

The West German Cabinet has decided not to ban the extreme Right-Wing N.P.D. party to decide the fate of the controversial party at the September elections.

Informed sources said after the Cabinet meeting that the Ministers had agreed to leave it to the voters to decide the fate of the controversial party at the September elections.

An official communiqué said, however, that the Cabinet considered that the dossier assembled by Interior Minister Herr Ernst Benda on the unconstitutional character of the N.P.D. was of "considerable importance."

If the Ministers had come out in favour of banning the right-wing party the case would have been submitted to the constitutional court at Karlsruhe.

The communiqué said that the Federal Government had also decided to keep a close watch on the newly formed D.K.P. Communist Party.

N.P.D. officials welcomed the Cabinet decision.

Herr Thaanen said that the Karlsruhe Constitutional Court was not entitled to consider the fate of a party "which has done nothing illegal."

Mr. Karl L. Polak, chief of Bonn's N.P.D. bureau, said the decision which he described as democratic.

He added that certain circles in the Nazi and Communist N.P.D. of Government which had been put on long a "red line" by the public had not been "ridiculous" but had been "justified" by the actions of the Government.

The Cabinet also considered the possibility of the abolition of the party's right to stand for election in the Federal Parliament.

However, the Ministers adopted the proposal of Interior Minister Herr Ernst Benda that the party should be allowed to stand for election in the Federal Parliament.

Lawyers fighting Sirhan from death

Arabic and Arab lawyers have filed a motion for a retrial would be heard on May 14. On that day the jury would be asked to decide whether Sirhan should be sentenced to life imprisonment or the death penalty. The verdict comes at a time of intense political debate in the state on whether capital punishment is by cyanide fumes in the execution chamber of San Quentin Prison.

Seventy-nine prisoners are awaiting execution in Death Row. But there have been no death sentences carried out for the past two years.

The penalty also comes at the close of a Right-wing swing in California politics. The state is headed by a conservative Governor, Mr. Ronald Reagan, who has more firmly attributed blame for the student violence and the violence of 100 people gathered outside the Baltimore Hotel, where Sirhan was being stayed for three months, applauding as the jury deliberated over giving their death verdict.

The prosecution had asked for an "appropriate penalty" for political assassination.

The chief prosecutor, Mr. Lynn Compton, said at a Press conference after the trial that he hoped the jury's recommendation would be adhered to, not only to discourage political assassination but other forms of politically motivated violence.

Despite the jury's recommendation, Judge Walker can still commute the death sentence to life imprisonment.

Out of 19 trials at which he has recommended the death penalty, Judge Walker has only once commuted the sentence.

The trial almost frail, 25-year-old Sirhan chewed on a wad of gum as the jury's recommendation was read. He seemed to register no emotion.

The 26-year-old mother, who attended many of the sessions of the trial, which lasted three months and during which 300 witnesses were heard, was absent on Wednesday. She is the 30-year-old Abdel, wife of Sirhan's brother, a public health nurse.

The jury of seven men and five women took two and a half days to decide on the death penalty.

Regardless of Judge Walker's decision, Sirhan will probably be sent to the State Prison in Vacaville, where he will have to work, sharing a cell with his own severed hand.

He will be allowed to receive his lawyers and friends.

French poll shows a swing against D. Gaulle

A poll published in Paris yesterday showed that most of Frenchmen who have made up their minds will vote against President Charles de Gaulle in the referendum on May 27.

A third of the population was still undecided as to how it would vote in the referendum on Sunday.

The poll was conducted by the Institut d'Opinion Publique, a Paris-based opinion poll organization.

The poll showed that 59 per cent of Frenchmen who had made up their minds would vote against de Gaulle, while 37 per cent would vote for him.

The poll also showed that 33 per cent of Frenchmen were still undecided as to how they would vote.

Students and police in Addis clash

Students on strike from churches and schools in Addis Ababa yesterday and a fleeing youth led into a deep water shaft in the city.

Some 500 students were reported to have been arrested by police cordons.

The students were protesting against the government's policy of closing down schools and churches.

The police used force to disperse the students, leading to a clash.

One student was reported to have fallen into a deep water shaft.

Battleship 'not for N. Korea duty'

Official American sources have denied South Korean reports that the U.S. battleship USS New Jersey had been ordered to join an American task force in the Sea of Japan.

The reports, which quoted a high-ranking military source, said that the battleship had been diverted yesterday from its home-ported course after several days in port.

President Nixon ordered the New Jersey to turn round and join Task Force 71 after an eight-hour stopover at Yokosuka Base, Japan, the reports claimed.

The fleet was sent to the area after North Korea shot down an American EC-121 "spy plane" on April 15.

Washington sources recalled the remarks of Mr. Daniel Hendin, the Pentagon spokesman, on Tuesday. He said: "The New Jersey is expected to return home. We cannot give any further details. We will give the date of her return when we can because of personal problems for the families involved. She is part of the task force today, today's part of the task force today, today's part of the task force today."

The South Korean reports said that Seoul had asked America to station the 23-ship task force off North Korea as long as possible, if not permanently, in order to check further North Korean military provocations.

South Korea reportedly asked for a buildup of its own air and naval units.

Task Force 71 is believed to include the nuclear aircraft carrier Enterprise, the 78,000-ton cruiser USS Zumwalt, and 10 destroyers.

The American press has reported that the Japanese papers of all political parties have criticized the American move of moving a policy of "deterrence" to the North Sea.

Greece, despite the experience of Vietnam, has been accused of trying to take over from the U.S. with the aid of the U.S. by accepting the U.S. point of view, and emphasized that proposals for a nuclear arms race and space flights would only make them more dangerous.

Vietnam bombing stepped up

Irregular troops and wounded five killed in the course of a clash between the towns of Ban Me Thuot and Pleiku.

American and South Vietnamese Special Forces fighting for the second straight day with North Vietnamese fighters left 31 enemy dead for 30 allied losses, the Pentagon said.

Vietnam attacked a South Vietnamese outpost in a Saigon suburb last week, killing 10 American and 11 South Vietnamese defenders, police sources said.

The guerrillas opened fire with machine guns and mortar shells on the capital's Chinese district of Cholon.

There was no report on casualties from the Vietcong and their guerrillas threw two Vietcong tanks and a plastic bomb into the city.

The Vietcong could return to South Vietnam before the end of this year, President Nguyen Van Thieu told Saigon teachers in the Delta town of Vinh Long. He added that "1969 will be a decisive year for the future of Vietnam."

Somalia issue 'unresolved'

The Somali Ambassador in London said yesterday that lack of permanent water was not the substantive issue in Somalia's dispute with Ethiopia and Kenya.

In a letter to The Times, the Ambassador, Mr. Ahmed Jama Abdi, said that article which appeared in the newspaper on April 11 "proposes that all Somalia is habitually Kenya's north-eastern district."

He said that the article "assumes that the substantive problem on the frontiers of the Somali Republic is due to the absence of permanent water in these regions."

"I cannot leave uncorrected the inference in this article that the lack of permanent water is the substantive issue in Somalia's dispute with Ethiopia and Kenya, now happily the subject of peaceful talks between the Governments concerned."

"The issue, which remains unresolved, concerns the political future of the Somali people permanently inhabiting these regions, and has nothing whatever to do with the limited trans-frontier migration nor with the laudable development of water supplies."

Singing the song of the 4- shirt

By EDWARD RODWELL

What is to be the fate of Asians holding U.K. passports who want to go to Kenya but have no authority to enter Britain? They may not stay on indefinitely in Kenya after their permits expire, but the majority cannot obtain a passport to enter Britain because of the voucher system.

The Kenya Government, whose obligation is first to its own nationals, is well within its rights in refusing entry permits or trade licences to non-citizens. This was accepted during all the acrimony caused by the subject at the London conference of Commonwealth leaders. Legally, responsibility lies squarely with the British Government, though the Indian and Pakistani Governments cannot sit back smugly, evading moral responsibility, and should do their share towards finding a solution.

Two Asians in this predicament have been sentenced at Kisumu to ten days imprisonment during the week. They were unfortunately in Kenya, in my judgment, the magistrate said both had applied for vouchers to enter Britain, but had been refused. He recommended that, after serving the sentences, they should be deported.

In the event of deportation, the presumption is that a British passport holder will return to Britain. Or, if he would the British immigration authorities refuse to allow the deportee to enter, possibly accompanied by his family, on the grounds that permission had not been granted? Under international law and usage would such a refusal be just or legal? Bitterly, an Asian has remarked "It seems the only way for British Asians to leave Kenya is first to serve a prison sentence and then be deported to Britain". This is not exactly true, but what has happened this week is a test case which brings their dilemma to a head.

The British Home Secretary, Mr. Callaghan, has been quoted as saying, in effect, that in the last resort if British Asians are forced to leave Kenya, Britain will take them. His assurance was restated by the Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, Mr. Foley, who told a Commons questioner that if Asian holders of British passports are compelled to leave Kenya "and everything else has been exhausted, they will be given their entry vouchers".

In that case, why introduce a quota system? What are they meant to do during the delay while their applications are being processed? Those who want to go should apply for vouchers in good time, not leave it to the eleventh hour, but there are complaints that delays for several months while consideration is being given to applications.

In total, the British Government has allowed for only 1,500 immigration permits a year for Commonwealth holders of U.K. passports. The majority, it is believed, have already this year, more than the permitted 1,500, been applied in Kenya alone, where there are possibly between 70,000-80,000 Asians, having British citizenship. Not all will want to go or have to go, but the maximum of 1,500 does not touch the fringe of the problem.

This weekend and in subsequent days several more permits to stay in Kenya will expire. Can these people leave to go to their own destination, without having vouchers to enter Britain or their passports endorsed with the guarantee that the British Government will accept ultimate responsibility as required by the Immigration Act? If they are put aboard a plane or ship without authority to enter at the place of destination, they would be returned back.

The Governments of India and Pakistan, coming possibly accept a situation where British Asians are shut out and, virtually Stateless persons. There is the financial aspect. If British citizens of Asian origin are deported to Britain, who will pay their fares? There must be many who will presently have to leave, perhaps having to support large families, who cannot afford to pay their own passages.

Apart from the voucher system and the half-hearted reception by India and Pakistan, nothing firm has been worked out to deal with the reception of these displaced immigrants in the three countries. Their Governments cannot continue shirking what is a distressing question, putting things off and looking at one another hoping somebody will give way.

Never mind the legal niceties. Once again, it is repeated that this is a refugee problem requiring a Commonwealth solution without further delay.

I think most of us were born far too late. Last week I walked into Chinaman's, the old established store in Mombasa. To the salesman I said that I wanted some shirts to be made and the last time his tailor made them to measure was in 1932. "It was four, shillings! That, I said, was in 1932."

Without having an eyelid the salesman said the price would now come up to £5. How many would I require?

What days were. While suits to measure, 12s. socks were on sale at 1/6 a dozen pairs and vests were 2/6 for three. I used to buy German steel razor blades for 2/- a gross, whisky cost 8/6 a bottle.

In those days a newsagent arrived in town a B.A.T. salesman bought nearly half a hundred cigarettes in the hope that when the samples were finished the customer would continue with the brand.

As Kenies Roy offered half a dozen tins of another make a new tin was pretty well stocked up. For his savings the cold had bought nearly half a hundred tins of beef and mutton which cost 1/6 a tin, 10 cent per pound.

But there was a golden era when whisky was 3/- a bottle. That was in the late 1920s. I bought nearly half a hundred tins of an old catalogue. You could buy a 1/2 lb. tin of 50 Claret for 8/-, a pig for 30/-, butter was 2/- a pound, and 40 cents for 40 cents of milk, coffee 2/- and tea 1/6. Salt rates returned to 45 cents and sugar 40 cents. Imported beef was 1/- a pound, 50 cents each and 40 cents a dozen. Potatoes 1/6 a bushel.

One of the cheapest items in East Africa in 1948 was fresh fish. In the B.L. file was 35/- a pound. I bought nearly half a dozen tins of 50 Claret for 8/-, a pig for 30/-, butter was 2/- a pound, and 40 cents for 40 cents of milk, coffee 2/- and tea 1/6. Salt rates returned to 45 cents and sugar 40 cents. Imported beef was 1/- a pound, 50 cents each and 40 cents a dozen. Potatoes 1/6 a bushel.

It is not surprising that the Shipping Lines are serving East Africa looking at the inter-Island traffic. The tariff of a penny less than one penny for each ton of freight raised it to only about a fifth of what the regular lines were charging. The passengers soon began to be moved by rail and road on any route which would save time, and also had also developed the

Licences have been granted by the T.L.B. along any relation to the amount of traffic available to be moved by rail and road on any route which would save time, and also had also developed the

The Board has also, in my opinion, virtually disregarded Regulation 18 of the Transport Licensing Ordinance which basically obliges it to consider the interests of the railway as far as possible, and support and endorse this regulation, not because it grants a monopoly, but because it is in the interests of the public and the economy of the country.

The General Manager of the East African Transport Board should be congratulated for the remarks he is reported to have made at the Nairobi recently.

East African Conference eventually was formed an organisation of shipowners who charge similar rates and give an all-year-round guarantee that cargoes can be shipped at any time to any destination, whether over or under 5,000 tons of goods is involved.

But I began by writing of costs of living 50 years ago. In those days the price of a third-class passage from Mombasa to London was £18 19s. The return fare was £28 12s.

Passengers could disembark at Mombasa and continue the journey by rail at no extra charge. Electric fans were supplied by the shipping company for a whole voyage, at "for a day and night circuit" or "12" might only.

If you wished to take your own horse, carriage or dog these were carried on deck at rates to be agreed, horse boxes and forage to be supplied by the owner. Dogs were chained on deck forward. Passengers were allowed 100/- of personal baggage free. Parrots and cats cost 13 13s. each, food 5/6 a tin.

I suppose the grace of the 28 days of travel. The journey from a British port to Mombasa took five days with calls at Marseilles and Naples. At the end of the 1920s the number of ports of call increased. On my passage out to the vessel called at Lisbon, Ceylon, Gibraltar, Mauritius, Madagasc, Port Said, Port Suez, Port Sudan, Aden, Bombay, Calcutta, and full month's travelling round the world and kept: drinks and smokes duty.

The world has hardened since. The night from Nairobi to London, without a stop, is now a 48-hour journey. The world has hardened since. The night from Nairobi to London, without a stop, is now a 48-hour journey. The world has hardened since. The night from Nairobi to London, without a stop, is now a 48-hour journey.

It is doubtful if these days these rates have been reduced. The tendency has been for merchants rates return to 45 cents and sugar 40 cents. Imported beef was 1/- a pound, 50 cents each and 40 cents a dozen. Potatoes 1/6 a bushel.

PINK STRING AND SEALING WAX

Victorian drama fails to thrill

Roland Pertwee's old faithful Pink String and Sealing Wax, which opened at the Donovan Maule Theatre, Nairobi, on Wednesday night, has been advertised as a thriller but in being as Mrs. Dale's diary.

The action is in the Brighton home of a bright young man, a play open, some aimless chatter among young members of the family, the son's father is a doctor, the son's mother is a chemist's daughter, the son's mother is a chemist's daughter, the son's mother is a chemist's daughter.

I want my fellow British Christians to denounce any African leadership, like a politician, which is not based on the Christian faith. The Church in Kenya, and our present Archbishop are doing their work excellently. They should not be criticised because a black man was elected to the presidency.

THOMAS G. AWOKO, Mombasa, April 22, 1969.

In my corruption and I am sure to the majority of Kenyans, Mr. Maingi Shikuku is quite the most outspoken politician in Shikuku, African politics were many a year ago, when the late President Kenyatta was the President of the Church in a young country, when the late President Kenyatta was the President of the Church in a young country.

Viruses are responsible for a transmission of such diseases as yellow fever, smallpox, poliomyelitis, measles, mumps, influenza. The East African Virus Research Institute at Entebbe conducts research on a wide range of viruses, and has a large collection of animals on which to study the effects of these diseases.

The study at the Institute has led to the discovery of the virus which causes yellow fever. It is necessary before a virus can be transmitted by a carrier animal or insect.

When the Institute was established in 1926 as a Yellow Fever Research Institute by the Rockefeller Foundation, the main objective was to ascertain whether or not yellow fever virus was present in East Africa and to determine whether it was introduced from outside the continent.

Between 1926 and 1950 the Institute carried out a wide range of extensive studies on the biology of the virus, and on the potential mechanism of its transmission. In 1950 the Institute was transferred to the Government of Uganda, and in 1961 it was moved to its present site at Entebbe.

Today the Institute is headed by the late Professor Sir David Hoare, who was the first Director of the Institute. He was succeeded by Professor Sir Ronald Ross, who was the first African Director of the Institute. He was succeeded by Professor Sir David Hoare, who was the first Director of the Institute.

He told reporters in Kenya that the Government is not prepared to extend the right of a closed shop system but we are at present discussing with the Government the introduction of a closed shop system in Kenya.

"The Government will not give respect to Ministers and Members of Parliament. Such attitudes are highly conducive to increased productivity, harmony and the spirit of harambee.

"On the question of Africanisation we are waiting of the Minister for Home Affairs through the West African system, the Minister for Commerce and Industries through the Minister of Labour through the work of the Kenyanisation Bureau."

He disclosed that this year Cotsu had turned down invitations from East and West to attend Labour Day celebrations and that it had instructed its three delegates who would be attending conferences in West Germany and the United Republic to adhere strictly to the Government's policy of non-alignment.

Mr. Akumu announced plans to deal with redundant employees through the Government's policy of Kenyanisation.

There were still employers in the country who did not respect trade union leaders, and one who gave Africans positions with important titles but without responsibility.

Cotsu intended to press for collective bargaining. The Government so that unions could expose employees who told the Government they had no African to occupy top positions.

There were still employers, despite five years of independence, still do not respect trade union leaders, and one who gave Africans positions with important titles but without responsibility.

Such attitudes are highly conducive to increased productivity, harmony and the spirit of harambee.

Better telephone system due next year

Stagger' system for Show crowd

ZOO'ING SUGGEST

Standard Staff Reporter

Efforts are to be made to "stagger" the flood of people, particularly those with special conducted party passes, at the Nairobi Show, the chief executive of the Agricultural Society of Kenya, Maj. Hugh Collins, said yesterday.

He had asked the Minister for Education, Dr. Kiavo, if he could work out a system of zoning, possibly by provinces, so that parties, including school-children, could spread over the whole period of the Show instead of arriving there thousands on Friday and Saturday.

The special party tickets system had been instituted originally to help farmers to get their labourers to the show in parties of ten or more at reduced rates. It has since been used together at the gates and then for the "party" tickets at a reduced price. This had resulted in long queues and congestion at entrances.

The society had decided that in future special parties would not be available, but that they must be available for the Show.

Maj. Collins said one of the Nairobi Show, to be held on June 7 and 8, would be a day of reduced prices. This had resulted in long queues and congestion at entrances.

NEWS FROM THE PROVINCES

Nairobi-Addis road to reach border by 1973

The Minister for Works, Mr. Mwanjumba, who has been on a tour of the Nairobi-Addis Ababa road project, said that it was expected to reach Sololo on the Ethiopian border some time in 1973. The all-weather road was expected to cost £5,000,000 of which £2,900,000 would come in a loan from the Italian Government.

Mr. Mwanjumba, who was speaking to construction workers and National Youth Service volunteers at Archer's Post, said the road would pass through Marsabit town and would shorten the time from Isiolo to Marsabit from 13 hours to about 7 hours. The road was being built on the personal initiative of President Kenyatta who took a great deal of interest in their work.

The Minister assured the workers, assembled at a point 30 miles beyond Archer's Post, where the road has now reached, that the road was important as it will link the two countries and will open trade and communication between Kenya and Ethiopia.

He brought them personal greetings from the President whom he said knew that they were working under difficult conditions because there was much dust, heat and little water in the area.

Mr. Mwanjumba boarded one of the tractors at work and inspected earthmoving equipment and other road-making equipments. He thanked the administration and police units in Isiolo for the assistance they were giving to the construction units.

Earlier the Minister accompanied by his Permanent Secretary, Mr. J. Ouko, the Chief Engineer (Roads), Mr. N. P. Radler, the Provincial Engineer for Nairobi, Eastern Province, Mr. J. K. Kirika, the Provincial Engineer for Central Province, Mr. G. K. Caterand, and an Assistant Secretary, Mr. A. Kibaki, arrived by air at Marsabit and met with representatives of Meru county and urban councils.

He told the meeting that the Timau-Lawa-Isiolo-Lawa-Meru road was being built in six billion standard and was estimated to cost £1,300,000 of which 56 per cent was a loan from the World Bank.

Mr. Mwanjumba said a loan was due to be negotiated with the World Bank to build to bitumen standard the old Meru-Embu road. Work would be done in two phases and the first phase costing £650,000 would include construction of the most urgent sections. Meru/Nakubu would be the first phase while Emu/Thui would be phase two.

In reply to the Deputy Clerk to Council, Mr. R. K. Njose, who had asked for a bigger Government grant to maintain 1,500 miles of road under the Council's care, the Minister said the Government gave a grant of £10,000 and spent another £28,000 on roads in Meru National Park.

Roads must be given top priority. The area was most productive and farmers to reach outside market places as possible, he emphasised.

BANANA OUTPUT MAY BE DOUBLED

Studies were being carried out in Western Province particularly in Vihiga division to investigate the possibility of developing horticultural marketing. Mr. A. Bott-rall, of University College, stated after a tour of the area.

The division last year handled 1,251 tons of bananas to the value of K113,700. The figures were obtained at Sereni, Luanda, Mbale and Kisumu markets and they were expected to double, the Western Provincial Agricultural Officer, Mr. M. Makulole, said.

Giving a primary report after a tour to acquaint himself with problems of the area, Mr. Bott-rall suggested that markets like Luanda, Mbale, Eldoret, Kisumu and Maseu should be upgraded to cater for the marketing of crops produced in the area.

He appealed to the people to start co-operative societies which should be geared to finding markets for the farmers and stressed the importance of diversification.

The farmers expressed great concern at the lack of transport services from the interior parts of the country where such crops are grown and of preservation facilities to handle surplus crops.

The question of waste bark being developed as a cash crop in the Kakamega district was discussed at the District Agricultural Committee meeting under the chairmanship of Mr. C. N. Chacha, a development manager of the East African Training Centre, Nairobi, who was invited from Eldoret to address the meeting.

Mr. Kennedy said that waste bark, a promising cash crop in the country, was increasingly in demand.

The industry had already forecast a shortage by 1970, and the Ministry of Agriculture was trying to stimulate growers to grow. They crop took a long time to mature. Referring to the financial aspect of the crop, he said that an acre of the waste bark trees could produce about four and half tons of sticky bark at a present price of £15 a ton.

On loan defaulter, the District Commissioner strongly condemned the poor response to training loans, and said that stern measures would be taken against defaulters. He dispelled as unfounded the reports of 'self-willed' producers that if such loans were not repaid, the Government would ultimately waive them.

Mr. Moi warns agitators against 'playing with fire'

The Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs, Mr. Moi, warned leaders who whipped up tribal hatred that they were playing with fire when he addressed a rally at Lumba on the second leg of his Kericho tour.

He said that he would like to see the country continuing as a peaceful and stable country and advised people to heed the policy of co-existence preached by President Kenyatta since the attainment of independence.

Mr. Moi was entertained to dinner by the Kisumu County Council in Kericho where he met and held discussions with the members of the council and Kericho Urban Council.

Later he opened the Kericho Urban Council's high rental housing scheme which will be named after him. The scheme consists of 15 houses, and is adjacent to the Main Kenya Housing Estate.

The chairman of the Kisumu County Council, Mr. John Kerich,

The Kenya Vice-President, Mr. Moi, who has completed a two-day tour of Kericho district in which he inspected self-help projects, is pictured addressing one of a series of meetings in the area.

The chairman of the Kisumu County Council, Mr. John Kerich, had been made possible through funds advanced to the Government by the World Bank, who gave K14,000.

Mr. Kerich said that the Government had provided a loan of £13,000 to the construction of the main road in Kericho.

Answering points raised by the public, the Vice-President said that he would talk to the Minister for Commerce and Industry on the question of gazeteting the Kericho township as a general market area.

Mr. Kerich had stated that the area was not a general trading area and the situation tended to create several meetings at Kericho's Harambee, Uthmaniyah and Lumba.

Opening a cattle dip at Kongeren in Kericho, the Vice-President commended the local people for maintaining friendly relations with their Luo neighbours and advised them to keep the spirit up.

The development projects, he called on leaders to get as co-ordinators, and work in conjunction with the committees and sold them on the high priority to be given to the development of backward areas.

In his meetings Mr. Moi emphasised the need for peace and maintaining peace and unity in the country.

He also thanked the foundation of a new dormitory at St. Andrew's Primary School, Mr.

Moi promised to supply iron sheets for the roofing of the dormitory.

During his tour, the Vice-President was accompanied by the Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry, Mr. Kericho, the Member for Kisumu East, Mr. C. K. Kiripochi, the Member for Chaptungwa, Mr. K. C. Mwangi and many Kani leaders including ex-Chief Arap Telescha.

Farmers advised to form companies

The Provincial Commissioner for Central Province, Mr. C. K. Koinange, has appealed to District Agricultural Committee members to organise themselves into a company to send produce from their farms to Nairobi and Mombasa collectively in order to get good profits.

Mr. Koinange said that some traders went from Nairobi to the reserve to buy produce at low prices and then sold them in Nairobi at high profits. This, he stressed, was a loss to the rural farmer, and appealed to them to form a company.

Addressing a bazaar at Mwingi, Mr. Koinange told the public that they were very fortunate because they were the first to see in Nyandarua district to occupy farms previously owned by settlers.

Mr. Koinange also toured the Siliago settlement scheme where he toured various plots and urged the settlers to work hard so that they could help to raise the standard of the country.

This P.C. also toured Sirihani where he was met by Mr. N. M. Njiru, who addressed the gathering and discussed the settlement scheme with Mr. Koinange. He also visited the Sirihani settlement scheme where he toured various plots and urged the settlers to work hard so that they could help to raise the standard of the country.

EDUCATION COSTS UP 22 PC

The expenditure for primary school education in Western Province rose last year by 22 per cent, an increase of £2,737 per cent on the 1967 figures.

In the annual report for 1968 of the Western Provincial Education Officer, Mr. J. C. Kibuka, it was stated that the total expenditure for primary education rose from £2,737,888 in 1967 to £3,345,825 in 1968, an increase of 22 per cent.

The report states the rise in cost of education was brought about by the increase in teachers' salaries and the employment of new teachers to run new classes.

In the year there were 2,816 classes in the province with a total enrolment of 136,115 pupils while there were 4,321 teachers in the province.

Standard Staff Reporter

Selega's top 400 metres runner and Africa's top man over the distance, A. Gakou, having finished fourth in the event at the Mexico Olympic Games last year, has accepted the Kenya Amateur Athletics Association's invitation to compete in the Kenya-Ost-East African Airways international meetings in Mombasa on September 6 and in Nairobi on September 13. Gakou wants to be accompanied by a manager. Amno Omolo, of Uganda, was the first to accept the invitation.

There may be a move in the near future for the Kenya A.A.A. to postpone the meetings in Mombasa and Nairobi to a later date in October because the dates already clash with numerous top meetings in other parts of the world. The dates for the meeting have caused concern in Kenya since the September 6 and September 13 coincide with the Pacific Games in Tokyo, and the European championships in Athens, Greece.

Biwott may miss European tour

Standard Staff Reporter
James Biwott, Kenya's young 3,000 metres specialist Olympic gold medalist, feels that chances of making a top acceptance to the Kenya team for the June-July tour of Europe will be extremely slim. Biwott, who arrived in Nairobi yesterday to prepare for his trip with Ken Hirsch and Nafali Temu to Abilajon, Ivory Coast, for a meeting on May 3.

Biwott told the East African Standard: "I do not think I will be able to go on the European tour. I have a lot of studying to do and I am away from work for five weeks. I soon have to go to the school to prepare for the term. I think this is the problem with the school. I have not been to school since last year. I cannot see my employers leaving members of their staff to go for five weeks."

Biwott is not even sure he can make the trip to Abilajon for four days. He said: "I travelled to Nairobi expecting to leave for the Ivory Coast on Saturday. I did not know that the meeting had been postponed until May 2. I have been on holiday and the letter from the Kenya Amateur Athletics Association must be lying at my doorstep."

The Kenya champion returned to school yesterday for the first of five weeks. He said: "I am not sure whether my headmaster has given me permission to travel to Abilajon."

Biwott said yesterday that he will be unable to compete in all the meetings which start on May 3 in Mombasa and continue throughout the month of May and run into the first two weeks of June. He said: "The only meeting I would like to be able to run at is the one at Kampat on June 7. The others I will have to give up."

When told that these meetings are for the European tour, he said: "I do not think I will go on the tour of Europe. The problem is that I have to study every member of the team and already my team-mate, Kipchoge Keino, would be able to be able to study at the school except for the World Cup in Helsinki. I would like to compete in one meeting, but this will confuse the officials. I have been to the city at the end of last October with the Olympic Gold Medal. He has been running ten miles a day over cross-country distances, but he has not been running since then. He said: "In the few days before I would have to leave for Abilajon, I will be practicing the 3,000 metres race. My main aim this season is to run against the world and I am running against the world. I want to run against the world. I want to run against the world. I want to run against the world."

Biwott said yesterday that he will be unable to compete in all the meetings which start on May 3 in Mombasa and continue throughout the month of May and run into the first two weeks of June.

Rubia Cup replay at Kisumu

Standard Staff Reporter
The replay of the Rubia Cup football final has not yet been played on May 4, but it will be played on May 5, at Kisumu, instead of Nairobi. This is because the Football Federation of Kenya (FFK) has decided to play the match in Kisumu. The match will be played between the Kenya National Football League champions, and Kisumu Stars, who fought out a 2-2 draw in the first match at the Nairobi City Stadium on March 31.

However, the secretary of G.M.A. Mr. Mahlon Danga, has said that his club is not prepared to travel to Kisumu. The match will be played on May 5, at Kisumu, instead of Nairobi. Valery Brumel, the Soviet Union high jumper and former world record holder, seen making a comeback after breaking a leg in a motor accident. Brumel cleared two metres at the beginning of last month and is confident of jumping even higher this year.

BRUMEL THE CONQUEROR

By a special correspondent
Valery Brumel, a 27-year-old Soviet athlete holding the world high jump record, has cleared two metres. This modest showing, according to today's yardsticks, has made a sensation: Brumel has staged a comeback three years after suffering a road accident. The doctors found it difficult to save his right leg and declared that he could not even dream of sports, let alone return jumping.

Brumel has gone through six operations. Only as a result of the last one, performed by Genral Illarionov, did he regain the use of a complete leg.

Brumel began training in 1957, and then met the expert, theoretical coach, Myshle Brumel, a master runner, who lifted weights to be impenetrable. All over the world, he used to say, but he jumped.

The doubling trouble, however, now seems to have faded. His courage has conquered his affliction just as it prevailed on the day of the doctor's verdict.

Pope Paul VI, who has described himself as an "apostle of the modern world", will arrive in Uganda for a three-day visit on his eighth trip outside Italy in his six-year reign, this will be the first visit of a Pope to Africa. It comes about, strange to say, because of an unsuccessful hippopotamus hunt in Uganda 83 years ago.

Because a weak and petulant king returned unexpectedly from a disappointing hunting expedition, men — and boys — died horribly. As the Pope said nearly 80 years ago in the canonisation in Rome of 22 Ugandan martyrs, it is asking a story the physical torture and the arbitrary nature of authority are so unbridled and so barbarous as to be almost unbelievable.

The "arbitrary tyranny of authority" was exercised by the late Kabaka of Buganda who had succeeded his father, the statesmanlike Muteesa I, in 1884. One missionary called him an "arrogant, suspicious, fickle, passionate". Another said he is "vain and unscrupulous, and that he is cruel and unfeeling".

For Mwanga, insecurity and suspicion, it was less than his own personal and most trusted attendant, Joseph Mukasa Balikuddembe, a Catholic convert, displayed his disapproval of the Bishop's attitude and therefore held Mwanga over every one of his subjects as a king, and executed and ordered him to take Balikuddembe away and burn him.

Joseph took his martyrdom calmly. "I am going to die for my religion," he said. "I will be with God."

The whole court, including Makajunga, was certain that Joseph was going to die. But no reprisals came. On Sunday, November 15, 1885, Joseph was beheaded and his body placed on a pile. Today, a cross stands where he died — in the heart of Kampala a few feet from the walls of Nakivubo.

Joseph Mukasa Balikuddembe was the first of the Ugandan martyrs. He was to be followed by many more — and on May 25, 1886, came the fateful hippo hunt that was to spark the holocaust that followed.

Mwanga left his palace at Mumboko, by the lake, at about 3 p.m. on Sunday. He was accompanied by a hippo was sighted. After showing a few birds, the royal party returned to the palace. The arrival, the Kabaka, hot and dispirited at the failure of his hunt, found that none of his pages had been there to greet him, was in sight. Even his favourite, Mwafu, the son of the Katikiro, was absent. When the boy appeared, after some minutes, the Kabaka's fury was at its peak, and when he learned that Mwafu had been learning religion from 16-year-old Denis Sebuhigwaya, another page at the court, his anger exploded. Snatching a spear, Mwanga smashed the shaft across Sebuhigwaya's chest and commanded that he be killed. The boy was dragged away, handed to the executioners and hacked to death.

That night, his fury unabated, the Kabaka ordered the palace gates to be closed. In the morning, he pointed to the central courtyard and commanded that he be killed. If anyone hides himself, he will be killed immediately.

Without hesitation, thirty young men, Catholic and Protestant, walked to the fence. Among them was Charles Lwanga, the Kabaka's head page and popular in the court for his prowess at wrestling.

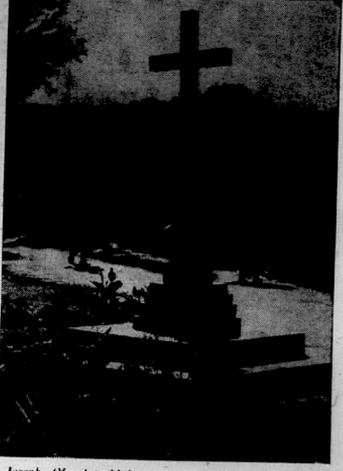

With him, to the shock of every one present, went 15-year-old Kizito, the adopted son of Nyikingo, who held the position of Guardian of the Umbilical Cord and was second only in rank to the Chancellor.

Nor was the family of the chief executioner, Makajunga, exempt. In the group of restless Christians stood his adopted son, 17-year-old Mbagu Turidde. And from the side of the Kabaka himself came Brums Serunkuma, a soldier and the Kabaka's personal guard.

Surviving the courageous youths were led away on their long, last march. Two men, however, were to die that day. Andrew Kagwa, a band-

three Christians were spared

Catholic Church at Namungongo is now being pulled down to be replaced by a new one. The Pope will consecrate a shrine to the martyrs. The picture above shows the church before the burning. They are being stored at a small house in the village and will be returned to the church for the ceremony.

many more who were tortured, castrated or had their arms or ears or legs lopped off.

The first missionaries, unable to stop the merciless killing, lived to see the faith take root and grow. Now there are nearly 3,000,000 Christians in Uganda, about a third of the total population.

Twenty-two of those first brave Christians are saints, but canonisation is a long and complex process. Not until 1920 were the martyrs declared "blessed" — meaning that Catholics could pray to them. In 1941 two White Sisters who had contracted pneumonic plague while treating an African fever, recovered completely — at the intercession, Catholics believed, of the martyrs.

In November, 1963, nine members of the Medical Commission invoked by the Congregation of Rites, examined the cures and pronounced them a miracle. On October 18, 1964, the 22 martyrs were canonised. The ceremony was attended by the Rev. Sister Aloysie Cibilet, one of the two Sisters who had made the miraculous recovery from plague.

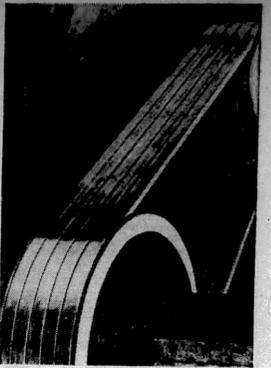

Now Pope Paul is to visit Kampala, an event which the authorities anticipate will add more than 500,000 people to the city's 48,000 inhabitants. Already a Government Committee and a specially created Catholic office for Pope Paul's pilgrimage (cable address: Papalists) are working on arrangements — and engaging in genteel squabbles over hotel accommodation.

ASIAN FILMS by S. I. CLERK

This 'James Bond' is a one-girl man

The Odessa, Embassy and Belle-Vue Drive-ins will premiere the colour film FARZ this week. It is a South Indian version of the James Bond thriller with Margaret as the invincible super spy. The film's only originality is in the one-woman-only morality of the Indian screen hero and, under the James Bond girls, this one is a girl and dances.

The story, thin as it is, is about gangsters attempting to blast a dam. The first sergeant gets killed while attempting to foil their plans. In steps the hero. He discovers the father of his beloved is bent on to be behind the plot and he, in turn, is only a lieutenant to another villain. This unfolds the struggle between 'Farz' (day) and 'Shan' (night).

The story merely serves as a string together of various chase scenes, killings, killing of a woman. The director, Ravee Nagaich, is also the photographer and hence the striking visual impact and achievement of tempo. The film was originally produced in Telugu.

The release of 'Farz' highlights the fact that Germany has produced some outstanding films over the past few years. The German Embassy has organised a Festival of Modern German Films which will be shown at the Kenya National Theatre from Sunday until the following Saturday.

'Kirikiri' is reviving the Congolese style

At one time, the musical scene in Kenya could be summed up as a balance of power between the Congolese and the closely-related Kenya sound, and the orthodox Western popular music, with the inexplicably popular Jim Reeves as a strong sidetracker.

But then along came soul, and everything else was pushed into the background, until the point was reached recently that bands in most nightclubs were playing as much as 80 per cent of this American Negro music.

The reasons for this popularity are not hard to discover—Africans in Kenya found it easy to identify themselves with its emphatic rhythms and emotional singing. Singers all over Kenya worked out their own style, based on the example of such idols as Otis Redding, Wilson Pickett and Tom Jones, who, it is claimed, is the essential feeling of soul.

The main casualty to be swamped in this wave of popularity was Congolese music, and although it still had its place in the record repertoire of local bands who still enjoyed playing Congolese, the style was definitely in eclipse.

Congolese musicians started a long search for a new sound that would bring their style back into popularity, and now many of them believe they have found it in a musical adaptation called Kirikiri.

Appropriately enough, Kirikiri owes its rising popularity to jumping on the soul bandwagon, and also appropriately it was one of Congolese's main exponents, 'Doctor' Nico Kasanda and his famous African Fiesta Band of Kinshasa, who 'discovered' Kirikiri.

The development of Kirikiri is a story of one of those happy accidents that occur often in show business.

While Nico Kasanda was playing on a guest tour in Cairo, where people do not know how to dance to Congolese music, he suddenly noticed that the dancers were trying to fit soul movements to the music.

Watching carefully, he realised that the positions could be reversed, and he tried to make his music fit the movements of soul. In one night, Kirikiri was born.

Of course, there have been other improvements since. Although to the uninitiated, the music may sound the same, there are now subtle changes of rhythm that were not there before, and the whole style is more sophisticated.

It borrows freely from Latin American music, particularly in rhythmic changes.

An important part of the musical form is that members of the band periodically call out Kirikiri during the course of the music.

Kirikiri is a word from the tribal language of Nico Kasanda of complex meaning, which is best translated as 'sup-plate' or 'the latest thing'.

The form undoubtedly has its exponents in the local nightclubs, and dancers certainly appreciate being able to do their favourite dancing style in indigenous African music.

by MIKE WILLIAMS

Kirikiri may be a new fashion for Congolese style, but it is showing long promise that it will put it back into its original position, and as one local dancer put it: 'It gives us something to work on which we enjoy'.

Would you like to see a record of Ibrahim playing Kirikiri? Or of Lord Temmy playing 'The Charge of the Light Brigade' Royal Shakespeare Company? Or of recitals by Tetrazzini, 'The Two of Matia'?

So — and you are in London — then the place to go is the British Institute of Recorded Sound.

Situated in a magnificent Victorian house in South Kensington, it is Britain's first complete national record collection. It aims to preserve recordings of all kinds of music, literature and drama; speeches and historical events; music 'hall and dialect; bird song; and everyday sounds — doomed to disappear with changing times.

The Institute, founded in 1948, has since grown considerably in scale and has won for itself official recognition; it has now acquired some 140,000 discs, 5,000 tapes and 1,500 cylinders. Some of these are given by the record companies; some gained through bequests; and some are given by individuals, and by individual members of the public, and some are bought abroad or by purchase.

CHILDREN'S STORY by CYNTHIA HUNTER

Long-legged Marian wins a Gold Medal

When Marian was born people said they had never seen a baby with such long legs. When she stretched them out they were almost twice the size of her body. Even her mother, who thought all her babies were very beautiful, especially to see him, I've managed to get three baskets for this school, he said. As Marian's good at sports as well as being clever, I've chosen her for tug-of-war. You won't have to pay any fees or even buy her books or clothes. Everything will be provided.

After a sleepless night, Marian's father told his wife he had decided to let their daughter go on to secondary school. Her mother was delighted. Now she could not consider finding a husband for her daughter for several years, because she was going on with her schooling.

When Marian arrived at her secondary school, both girls and teachers thought she must be a sixth former, and she was sent to the wrong classroom and the wrong dormitory. For the second time in her life, she felt miserable because she was so tall. She had to make friends and be accepted all over again.

It was the 'athletics term' and all the girls thought that Marian was too big and clumsy to be any good at sports. How wrong they were!

When the sports were held, the girls could not believe what she could do.

sped round the track; she won her fourth round as most of the other girls were waiting for their turn. But what she really enjoyed was the tug-of-war. She had everyone laugh when she stepped easily and gracefully over a bar that all the others were unable to do. She had a magnificent jump as she did this one. They looked at her until only Marian was left in the village. She had a magnificent jump as she did this one. They looked at her until only Marian was left in the village. She had a magnificent jump as she did this one. They looked at her until only Marian was left in the village.

...Red wine should, if possible, be served just a little cooler than normal room temperature as it is always warmed up in the glass with the hand. Warm wines are best when chilled. Dry wines like Champagne, Graves, White Burgundies, Hecks, Moscad and all Rieses should be slightly chilled, but sweet wines like Sauternes and the sweeter Hecks should be served really cold, by keeping the bottle in an ice bucket or in a refrigerator or over an ice pack.

...Use glasses that are clear and free from bubbles. They should be full or the bouquet will be lost. If you are at a loss — but not through lack of interest — it is worth remembering that champagne can be served with practically all dishes. In general, red wines are better with red meats and white wine with white meat, though there are many exceptions. The right wine for the right food is really a matter of personal taste, but there are wines which are generally considered as "right" with certain foods. The younger and cheaper wines are usually more suitable for serving with Hugs d'Oreave, and "lead up" to the better wine to taste along with the main course. If, however, cavare is served, it must be accompanied by Saka as the favour of any wine should not be served, but just a dry white wine or stout. With shell fish a Chablis or dry white Burgundy could be served. With poultry the choice of wine need not depend so much on the food as on its method of cooking. For instance white wine would be ...In this country entertaining is usually quite informal, and it is only necessary to have one wine served with the meal. Peter Medway has wine storage bins with wooden bars to hold the bottles in position. There are two shelves for 20 or 24 bottles and these make wonderful wedding gifts as they look so huge and empty a present.

...The same shop makes some very beautiful wine pumps made from wrought iron. The bottle can be stood up straight in the pourer or at an angle over 75 degrees. Plastic vine sprays and bunches of grapes can be bought for a few shillings to decorate the home bar; the grapes cost 5/4 a bunch and the leaf sprays 7/50.

...Corkscrew sets do all manner of clever things and make a wonderful gift for anyone with a taste in his cellar, cost about 110/- and are beautifully presented in an attractive box. The very best sort of glasses for wine are those that are fine and clear enough to show the colour and quality of the wine. Beautiful Austrian crystal glasses are one of the specialities of Peter Medway. They can be sold in sets or separately, and cost approximately 20/- a glass.

...I was very interested to see something that I don't think any other shop in Nairobi has and that is a wine cart. This is the correct container for wine that is not a particularly expensive variety, for serving at table. In plain glass it has a wide rim narrowing down at the neck and widening towards the bottom. It is not to have a stopper, as the wine is supposed to be "breathed" in order to give it its full taste and bouquet.

...GENERAL'S BRIDE A GOOD COOK

The bride of the Nigerian Head of State, General Gowon, 22-year-old Victoria Zakari, is a good cook and makes practically all her own dresses. She finished a three-year training course as a nurse at University College Hospital, Ibadan, last June and has not worked since. The families of Gen Gowon, who is 46, and Miss Zakari have long been friends back at home in Wosawa, where all Anticans. Her engagement to the general was announced last October. Victoria then went to London to take a course in grooming and public relations for diplomats wives. Friends say Victoria is neat, reserved, quiet and friendly. Staff at the hospital say she was a good average student, better in ward than in class. She gets on well with people at social gatherings.

An array of wine accessories at Peter Medway, Lillingstone House, Nairobi. A wine storage bin, a wine pourer made from wrought iron, a wine cante and wine glasses. The plastic grapes and vines are for decorating the home bar.

Secrets of the women who never grow old

At the height of her career, the inimitable Greta Garbo was already a "legendary star" who had transformed the international conception of beauty and fashion. In plain glass it has a wide rim narrowing down at the neck and widening towards the bottom. It is not to have a stopper, as the wine is supposed to be "breathed" in order to give it its full taste and bouquet.

How do they manage it? Simply by keeping busy. For like Gladys Cooper, Greta Garbo, or any of the others in this elite group, the way to grow old gracefully and beautifully is to possess the high-octane energy which lets you live your life to the full — and forget about the passing years! MARY KAYE reports...

...flight to paradise and...
...like the garden here...
...outside Rome...
...if seventy appears to...
...ever for Sophia Loren...
...to prefer a more...
...slightly contemptuous...
...the years.

...to keep beautiful, you mustn't be neurotic about it. I'm sure that's the secret."

Dame Gladys possesses high-octane energy. Last year at the 21st birthday party of her grandchild, Annabelle, daughter of the actor, Robert Monty, Dame Gladys finished off the party after dancing with a brook swimmer.

...It was for a one-woman show on Broadway that was a smash hit. The management tried to bill her as the "world's most glamorous grandmother". But she wouldn't allow it, insisting that there was something unusual about blunderous grandmothers.

...How does she do it? By keeping busy. "I think it's important to keep some of the vivacity of youth. You know what I mean — the dotty things we all used to do when we were young and foolish."

...At 57, Ginger Rogers is not only as beautiful as ever — but as popular as ever. She has just been announced that she is the dance partner of Fred Astaire to receive the $50,000 week salary — the lead in Mame at the Drury Lane.

...Subban hasn't beauty in the conventional sense — rather, an unusual attraction that makes her capable of a whole range of moods. She lives in seclusion in Galway and says she only goes out when there's work to do.

...If she's sensible about it, she will remain serene and happy. That's what beauty means. "You must come to terms with yourself. Age means a little to me. I'm prepared for it." When I die,

...How does she do it? She has given her own prescription for keeping in glamorous trim. "I believe in taking good care of myself. I look after my body and respect it. For one thing, I swim 12 lengths every day."

...The thing that ages you most are the knocks life gives you — the fortunes and misfortunes heaped on you and your friends," she claims. "If you want to become older painlessly and smoothly, take things easy. That's my advice."

...She has no secret health formula, either. But she likes sleeping out which is the right thing, it is something I certainly recommend. She also says a great deal of fruit as this subject and in her birthplace village at Mame, Rome, with its 12th-century Roman frescoes, she recently said: "Age is important — but not too important."

...It brings with it responsibilities to a woman. Having children, watching them grow up, then being a grandmother. It's a woman's way."

...But Siobhan McKenna is out to declare that you keep beautiful by keeping busy. And that doesn't simply mean in the beauty parlour or at hairdressers.

BOOK REVIEWS

Opening the door on Kenya's high places

By MICHAEL BOYDELL MOUNTAINS OF KENYA by Peter Robson, East African Publishing House, 10/-

Mountains of Kenya is an up-dated and extended version of a cyclostyled leaf-walkers guide issued previously by the Mountain Club of Kenya.

explosions of their imaginations as they made the ascent, Longway writes: "After a weary scramble for hours the trees were so close that the path lay in a narrow shade which was very slippery and slipped downward on either side for a distance of about 200 feet to the level of the Zambesi."

As the people of the villages inland did not recognise the value of silver coins it was necessary to obtain sufficient copper ones to finance his trip. The bank was too far away to visit before she left, so Miss Warner agreed to use the services of "Bispos Mamma," an orphaned and unmarried woman who earned her living as an unofficial banker and money lender taking her "interest" in blankets.

One danger which is probably peculiar to East Africa is game, as many of the mountains are covered in elephant, rhino, buffalo and leopard. But the compiler points out that only one member of the Mountain party has been killed by game by an elephant through an act of extreme folly.

Particularly interesting are the eyewitness accounts by the explorer of the impression as they made the ascent, Gregory wrote: "After a weary scramble for hours the trees were so close that the path lay in a narrow shade which was very slippery and slipped downward on either side for a distance of about 200 feet to the level of the Zambesi."

In his foreword, Mr. Humphrey writes: "I am sure that all who have read this book will find it a most interesting and profitable one."

Marriage under the microscope

DECEIT IN LIVING by Mary Milton. Published by the Mercury Press, 2/6

The author of this book lived for most of the 1930s in Bombay where her husband was the manager of a brewery. The couple met in 1927 and were married in 1929. The book is a series of chapters describing a fading shadow in an attempt normally considered as a far less interesting and more far-reaching than that of the author.

Feast of red herrings for detective story lovers

CHARITY ENDS AT HOME by Evelyn Waugh. Published by Eyre Spottiswoode, 2/6

These days different people expect different things of detective fiction. It is no longer enough for the mystery to be a tough one, it is also no longer enough for the investigator, or again the gentle old lady who is the brain of a crime.
