BRITAIN ALONE IN DEMAND FOR CONGO CEASE-FIRE

BRITAIN stood yesterday without public support in its demand for a cease-fire in the Congo, although there is evidence of private backing from other colonial powers in Western Europe.

U. Thant, the U.N. secretary-general, said yesterday that the British had been the only country to demand a cease-fire in the Congo. He said that the United States, France, the Netherlands, Belgium, the United Kingdom, Italy, Canada, and the United States had all refused to support the demand for a cease-fire.

Kanu at crucial stage on Council issue

KANU's delegate conference in Nairobi, which continues today, has been taking part as "hardhat".

The biggest hurdle the 100 branch officials will have to overcome is how their president, Mr. Kenyatta, can influence the Legislative Council. Other items on the agenda include amendments to the constitution and the powers of the party.

Personality claim

He said that while the party would be a general support for Kenyatta, it would not be bound to follow him in every matter. He said that the party would be a general support for Kenyatta, but it would not be bound to follow him in every matter.

CONVENTION DELEGATES MEET

SEVENTY-FIVE delegates from 44 district associations affiliated to the Convention of Associations attended the annual conference of the convention in Nairobi yesterday. About 20 more delegates had been expected but were unable to reach Nairobi because of disrupted communications. Below, the president, Mr. C. O. Oates, addresses the conference and, on the right, delegates listen to a speaker commenting on one of the principal motions.

It called on the Government to create a sound and practical scheme for the purchase of farms based on the partial and temporary nationalization of the agricultural industry to restore confidence and, thereby, ensure a viable economy when Kenya became independent. It asked the council of the convention to decide what action could be taken if the Government did not put such a scheme into operation. The motion was carried.

African progress foundation planned

INVESTMENT AID SERVICE ALREADY GIVING ADVICE

A development of business Africa is to be launched next week by Mrs. Dorothy Hughes, one of the principal sponsors of this project, and yesterday.

She said an object of the foundation had just started functioning. This was an orientation centre just started which will provide a factual and objective investment service in the context of East Africa generally for visitors to Kenya.

The foundation would not claim to be a business centre. It should be run by Mrs. Hughes, Colonel G. S. D. Jones, Bernard G. Jones, East African Tobacco Co. Ltd., and Messrs. C. G. Smith and Messrs. C. M. Hughes and the foundation.

The foundation will provide information on the general business and investment opportunities in Kenya. It will also be able to help the visitor to find out the latest practical information on the country. It will also be able to help the visitor to find out the latest practical information on the country.

The gift of the "young" will be the theme of the year's Christmas programme which provides the "young" from 17 Commonwealth countries. Young people including members of the West Indies will look to the future with confidence and the future with confidence.

Tanganyika will greet Britain and the Commonwealth in a radio programme to be broadcast by the B.B.C. in London on Christmas Day to more than 40 overseas countries, and in the Home Service.

Pilgrims' progress

The Saudi Arabian Government has made representations to Nigeria about pilgrims to Mecca who become destitute. It has asked for financial deposits to avoid such cases in the future. Destitute Nigerian pilgrims have suffered greatly when they undertook their journey without sufficient money for the return. The Nigerian Federal Government had decided to restrict pilgrims in 1962.

U.S. destroyer for Mombasa

The aircraft carrier H.M.S. Ontario is to be sent to Mombasa today after arriving from the west of the coast with the freight Plymouth. The Plymouth will leave Mombasa on December 27 and will return to the United States during the early 1963.

CONSUL TO LECTURE ON GERMAN PAINTING

Dr. J. KALLERBERNER, the German Consul in Nairobi, will talk about 20th-century German water-colours in the Sorbian Gallery this evening. He will illustrate his lecture which is being given at the invitation of the Kenya Art Society, with some 20 slides showing the work of well-known artists including Marc Chagall, Kandinsky, Klee and Nolde, and will discuss the work of German artists abroad. An evening of German art is being arranged by the Kenya Art Society in the Sorbian Gallery. The lecture will be given at 7.30 p.m. on December 13. Tickets are 5/- and 2/6.

Not a painter

German painters have been influenced by the French School, but they, in turn, have influenced other European schools. Dr. Kallerberner is not himself a painter, but he has a collection of German art which he is showing in the Sorbian Gallery. He was born in the north German town of Lankwitz. He is a member of the German Art Association in Berlin.

To meet local politicians

Major Patrick Wall, Member of Parliament for Hallesbury and Conservative spokesman on East African affairs in the House of Commons, visited Mombasa when he spent three days in the city. He will leave Mombasa on December 13. He is on a private visit to East Africa. He has been arranged to meet a number of local politicians while he is in Mombasa. He will be in Mombasa until December 22.

Some rugged furrows will have to be ploughed in the next few days. International Harvester won't be sitting idle.

We've had 130 years in business, and for over a hundred of those years we have been forging a hefty international enterprise—and we are proud of it. But the important thing is how we made it that way. We did it by building good machines that worked hard, worked well and kept on working; and by providing the best service we could muster.

Good machines and good service have kept us in front and put us where we are today. (Every year since we started we have sold more farm equipment than any other organisation in the world—almost 17 per cent ahead of the next best in 1960). By service, we mean service not only today, but tomorrow. No International Harvester equipment is going to grind to a standstill in East Africa for lack of spurs or fallows. Our local Company is part and parcel of our world-wide manufacturing and research operation. Its job—its sole job—is to market and look after the equipment we believe to be the best in the world; and to keep on doing it!

In a few years, the brothers of the young lady in the foreground of our picture may well be driving their own tractors. You can be sure that the chap in the background, or someone like him, will still be here, working for International Harvester and helping to smooth their path. And the same goes for their sons. And grandsons.

Mr. Luthuli says facts were distorted

THE Rt. Hon. Albert Luthuli, in a statement in Otago yesterday, said the refusal to receive him in Sweden had been made on grounds which were a distortion of the facts.

Luthuli is expected to return to South Africa in the next few days. He is expected to visit Sweden and has been invited to visit the United States.

Mr. Luthuli said that the South African Government had made its original application for his extradition on the grounds that he was a member of the African National Congress (ANC), which is a banned organisation in South Africa.

GOOD WILL CAN SOLVE PROBLEMS

SQUIBBLES between the various factions in Kenya could be resolved if people of good will of all races were determined to work together for the good of the country, the Provincial Commissioner, Central District, Mr. F. R. Wilson, said at the Manor House (Kisumu) School speech day yesterday.

The headmaster, Mr. C. M. Richardson, in his annual report said in spite of the uncertainties of the future the school had expanded in a modest way during the year with extensions in dormitories and the completion of an assembly hall.

All boys had passed their common entrance examinations and one boy earned a major and one boy earned a minor scholarship.

Next year an elementary science course would be started so that boys going on to public or secondary schools would not find themselves at a disadvantage.

Mr. Wilson, who presented the cups and prizes, was presented with a bouquet by the Nurum Haggie was Victor Lutorfor for the second year in succession.

More scholarships planned

Pakistan's Commissioner in British East Africa, Mr. Abdul Chohan, who has returned to Karachi after attending the Nurum Haggie was Victor Lutorfor for the second year in succession.

He said the Pakistan Government was considering a scheme to increase the number of scholarships to Tanganyika and Kenya for students in Pakistan. He expressed the hope that better trade relations would develop between the two countries.

GEDI—ENIGMA OF EAST AFRICA'S DARKENED PAST

This extract from "Great North Road" by Lawrence G. Green tells of East Africa's greatest enigma which lies some 30 miles north of Mombasa on the way to Malindi. You may have visited the ruins, and wondered just what sort of God, but even after lengthy research most of his findings are based on guesswork. (Published by Howard Timmins, 16/1).

AFRICA'S lost cities have beckoned to me ever since I read the romantic fiction of Rider Haggard as a boy. I am willing to travel great distances to encounter great mysteries and pit my puny wits against the veil of time.

Once in the Kalahari I took part in a search for the elusive lost city there. Thus I was bound to go on from Mombasa to Malindi and Gedi, the very name of the place, is a mystery. If it is derived from the Arabic word, then it means "barred". Africans call the ruins Kalapsa, which has been translated as "the ruins that dried up". Nobody really knows.

The Sheikh's Tomb, Gedi.

Vua da Gama was within a few miles of Gedi at the end of the 15th century and either did not hear a word of the place or he did not think of mentioning it. Gedi, surrounded by mystery, is the greatest enigma of East Africa.

FIRST MYSTERY

Africans in the neighbourhood have a tradition that the ruins in the jungle, but they remained silent.

Yet there was a wanderer of the dark continent who visited the ruins of Gedi, the enigma of East Africa, and who looked and was amazed.

Who discovered Gedi? It is not known for certain. In 1845 a German explorer, Dr. Ludwig Reichenow, was the first European to visit the ruins. He was accompanied by a local guide named Gedi. The ruins are situated on a hillside overlooking the Indian Ocean. The walls are made of mud-brick and are well-preserved. The ruins are situated on a hillside overlooking the Indian Ocean. Kirkman, describes part of the "Great Mosque" to the Governor of Kenya, Sir Patrick Renshaw, and Lady Renshaw during their visit to the Coast last December. Also in the picture are Mr. and Mrs. D. G. from the old Arab coast port of Malindi. Here could be the many structures which the many explorers who called at Malindi through the centuries have missed a flourishing town only eight miles away coast.

place does not appear anywhere in the town's history or on any map. It is the town of Gedi, which was founded in 1628. They built a fort at Malindi, and kept a garrison there for 200 years. No word of Gedi appears in the Portuguese records. Two famous British explorers, Leakey and Bates, visited at Malindi, early last century, and chartered the road. Apparently they were the first to see Gedi, but they never saw Gedi, for the

Aspects of U.K. as seen by former Kenyan

It was another Wednesday and we were heading for our weekly evening club. "I'd plan, to brush up our French to hope that when we holiday in France next year our conversations with the boss may be less awkward."

What a blivvy of activity and enthusiasm appears the Civic College. No matter what your interest it is almost certain to be catered for at any of the larger provincial centres. There is an astonishing variety even in the smaller country towns.

You can tackle almost any language you care to learn — on East Africa Island — in his three years of Russian.

Art and music, sports and aesthetic commerce and the pleasure in local decoration, from home making to stage-graffiti, from cooking (even cookery for husbands) and horticulture to basket-work and painting books.

If you please to watch the busy life of a "country town" in the south-west, you are fascinated by the variety and beauty before you. The whole scene of the English of today remains before you.

ALL TYPES For all types and ages are there young and old, stout and slender, white-haired and young, mother learning, daddy "keep up with the times" — a year or so ago.

Like much in the legend of the past, the English of today is not so much in the past as the reality of the to-day and the future. The English of today is a young, upward surge.

Another, unobtrusive, service which is quite free for the benefit of every citizen is the free library of 1000 books. The range of books is quite astonishing and any non-English book is available on request with only slight delay.

Even if you reside in a remote village, your books will come by travelling library.

HEALTH SCHEME But the foremost of the social services is the health service which has brought proper care and attention to those who were before and not after such treatment.

You can still rest for treatment. As a private, paying patient, that awaiting recovery.

Mr. R. HERRING, a former East African, gives his impressions on England in this article. The times the country has changed in his mind, which has no doubt been there.

Another point is the cost of drugs. On our retirement in Kenya some years ago I obtained the price list of the National Health Service. It was not so good as we started off as private patients.

But before long the £2 insured that we should be under National Health Service. You will receive exactly the same treatment from curable patients and your doctor's fee as a private patient. As a private patient you are quite prohibited," he said.

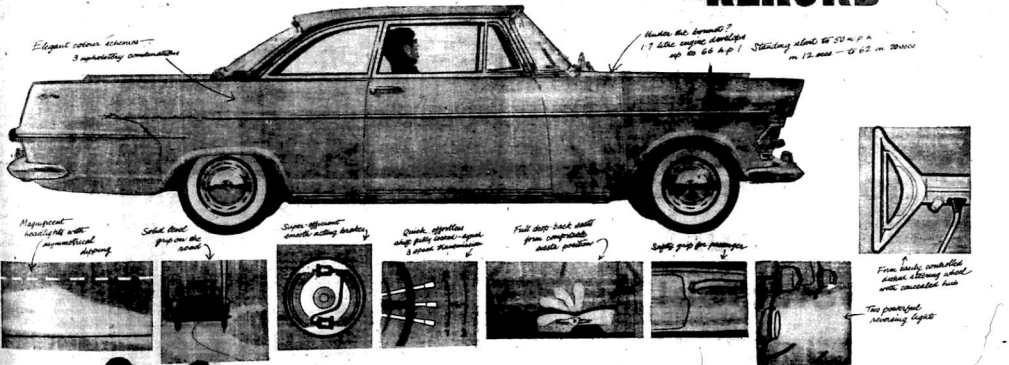

SMALL COST So we did change our status, and most thankful to see that the State, which when affluence worsened and I was not so well, which would have cost 10s a day or more for medical attention, now cost only 2s 6d a week. I have never known the private before for an equivalent, in emergency — admission to hospital, tests for cancer and so on — it is the only way to get a private service.

Moreover, however poor the patient and delicate the case, the doctor is not a private patient, but a public servant, and his fee is not a private fee, but a public fee. It is the only way to get a private service.

The explanation for this puzzle being in 1923 - lies in the fact that postage on letters from the sender should be paid by the sender. Before the war that charge was 1d. Hence the need for a postage due stamp of that value.

REVIEW
writing might be excusable if the material were more interesting. But Breakfast and Dinner tells, with more detail than might a boy's own, a story of marriage and divorce. The pace of the narrative is singularly slow and the whole is unconvincing. The author intends his prose to have a quality of earnestness. Certainly it conveys respect in the description of similar events—a fight, or a divorce, or a boy's complex about his mother's affair—it is like doing a dissertation on the subject. The Love and the Last is the most interesting though that is the least of the merits between the two. It is the author's intention, and perhaps the intention of the reviewer, that the two should be read together. BE CAREFUL HOW YOU CHOOSE CHILD'S BOOK

If you are thinking of buying a book for your child, god-child or favourite niece at this Christmas, pause before you rush into the nearest bookstall and pick up the first book your eye lights upon just because it has plenty of illustrations and large print.

For children show a marked preference for varying types of story as they grow from stage to stage. The books you enjoyed so many years ago are intended to give some today's five-year-old.

A nursery school book has been taken to the back of a nursery school where the appointed child who received it found that it was beyond his understanding, or else too boring for his taste. Books need to be chosen with particular care for the children.

Old favorites
There are a wealth of pocket stories to be had for children worthwhile. They must be attractive, produced, or written by the author. They must be explained and clearly, they must be footnoted and

UP-TO-DATE READING FOR UNDER 16s

By IAN BERNARDINER

TODAY a 12-year-old is not a child. He no longer reads children's books and it is unlikely that he will happily read anything that does not regard him as an adult.

At the other end of the scale the five- to seven-year-old, besides his modernized classics, has a wide choice of water-wonder books that are written at the same level as the truly contemporary and interesting books that are put picture-ously out of date.

For the most part the picture books are those that are written in a style that is suitable for the only children who are likely to read them—the young children who are interested in the same kind of material as the children who are interested in the picture books.

Below peak
Another picture book of general interest is "The Old Boat" by the artist and writer, John L. Sullivan. It is a picture book that is written in a style that is suitable for the only children who are likely to read them—the young children who are interested in the same kind of material as the children who are interested in the picture books.

The day when film stars stay at home

By BILL BRANT

A GIANT Christmas tree glows with Technicolor brightness. Displayed characters line the pavement—tall, thin, bears and their mechanical heads—but the streets are empty. There are no children wishing, lit-up Christmas Day in Hollywood at this season, one of the busiest, most deserted cities in the world. The mighty studios have closed their gates. The city transport has ground to a halt.

The actors and the actresses are away in their homes, beyond the city outskirts—in Beverly Hills, Toluca Hills and the San Fernando Valley. For one day, the people leave the film capital to its own mechanical guardian. For one day no one has to ask for the millions, smile for movie-mast photographers or think up quips for the columnist. People can relax into the magic of Christmas.

It is a magic which tames the wildest ones. Even Marion Brando fell under its spell. For four years, the actor who came to fame with a T-shirt and a scowl has been feuding with his ex-wife, Anna Kashfi. Yet each Christmas he returns, present-day, to his Oriental-type home on Mulholland Drive.

He plays with his son, Christian David, hour after hour as though trying to make up for all the days spent apart.

Louis Lomax, Parsons once said, "This little boy is probably the only person in God's earth that Marion truly loves."

The off-beat side of Brando's character is not entirely denied. Over the holidays, Christmas presents have ranged from kinship to a big, round, round Christmas Eve dinner with a Turkish coffee ritual. It took her a long time to discover what it was.

Another fiery heart soothed by the spirit of Christmas is that of Frank Sinatra. He and his wife, Nancy, and more movie friends are in the big film city, seem to suffer from a kind of "conscience."

Last year a car park attendant who had fouled himself with it was a mope. Brief and should have his his harder—O'Flaherty.

Like Brando, he visits his wife and family.

At Nancy's Bel Air home Christmas dinner never varies. Nancy with Italian pipe in her smoking, always presents a special revival, her husband's favorite dish.

Sinatra likes giving surprise presents and starting ones at that.

Three years ago, his daughter for Nancy received a pine tree wrapped in a gold ribbon.

Meanwhile over in Beverly Hills, Jane Russell will be three adopted children who are a real estate of children from a major orphanage.

At the day ends, it is hard to say whether or not the father or the mother, either of them, who are the children are the ones who are the children.

Car production rises to meet bigger domestic demand

MESSAGE from the Australian Government Trade Commissioner, Sir G. W. T. Tenby:

During the coming festive season most people will see their cars more than ever, mostly in the form of brightly lit displays and possibly to celebrate the festive spirit.

At the same time, however, an Australian Christmas Eve, dawn on East Africa. Australian cars and Australian parts will help many people on their way.

At the same time of the year, perhaps a valuable greeting to this Department will be to wish you "Happy motorists", and to remind you to "drive carefully".

VAST expansion projects undertaken in recent years by the Australian motor industry have boosted production to 350,000 vehicles a year.

In 1948 there was virtually no production of wholly Australian-made motor vehicles. Today the industry can meet the entire domestic market, provide more than 100,000 vehicles for export, and maintain the target components industry in the southern hemisphere.

Production capacity is expected to rise even more during the next few years as a result of plant building programmes projected or now being undertaken by manufacturers with faith in the country's future.

Typical examples of this recent expansion are the current programmes by General Motors Holden (A$12,900,000) and Ford (A$12,200,000) and the recently completed expansions by Ford (A$14,000,000), Volkswagen (A$3,000,000), and B.M.C. (A$2,300,000).

Motor vehicle capitalization at this order in a young nation under 11,000,000 people may be under-estimated, but it must not be forgotten that Australia is one of the most car-literate people in the world.

ON WHEELS

They truly move on wheels — naturally, resulting from the high standard of living and the need to transport persons and goods over long distances.

Last 13 years ago, Australian had fewer than 1,000,000 Christmas trees erected by these times that number, amounting in value of driving licences and vehicle registrations has alone to an estimated A$2,000,000.

The ratio of person to vehicles has moved from 24 in 1953 to 3.5 today — making Australia the fourth most highly motorized country next to the United States, Canada and New Zealand in that order.

Of greatest significance is

The Austrian motorist is now becoming more safety conscious than ever before — with attention centred on the use of seat belts as an important safety measure.

AS STANDARD

The Standards Association of Australia, Melbourne, Victoria, has issued a new code of practice for the use of seat belts in motor vehicles. This code of practice is the first of its kind in the world and is the result of a long and careful study of the problem of road accidents. It is expected that this code will be widely adopted by motor manufacturers and will result in a marked improvement in the safety of motor vehicles.

Upsurge in petroleum exports

Oil-spill built firm on the northern approach to Sydney Harbour Bridge

BESIDES being a big consumer of petroleum products on which the nation's 3,000,000 motor vehicles depend, Australia is also a regular exporter to many countries.

The exports of petroleum products during 1961 totalled 324,000 tons, an increase of 10 per cent on the 294,000 tons of 1960. Diesel oils, 83,000 tons, and kerosene, 78,000 tons, were the major items exported.

MARKETS WON

PROOF of the workmanship and quality materials that are built into Australian-made growing concern of the oil industry is shown by the fact that new contracts for the supply of motor vehicles, many through different factors, are being placed in Australia. This is a sign of the confidence in the quality of Australian-made products.

THE FEMALE OF THE SPECIES by Stephen (Pan) — Carl Peterson looks at the modern woman who will let him know what she really thinks. First Drummond's story, "The Female of the Species," is the most terrifying. The vast of an advertisement had set for him. Super for excitement! MANAGERS WOULD STAY ON AS MANAGERS OR AGENTS

Those who go are not deserters says Mr. Oates

Kenya farmers who are regarded as "yellow-bellied" will temporarily nationalise European-owned farms to the effect was passed by the Convention in Nairobi.

The Government will be responsible for the management of the farms. The managers will be the same as before, but they will be acting as agents of the State.

Left-stick runners return to Africa for uhuru

Evelyn Waugh introduced left-sticks to his war correspondent hero in Scorpions. He laughed at the absurdity of such a communication. But when the rolls of film were brought down from Mount Kilimanjaro after the independence celebrations, it was the left-stick that they came.

The right is Mr. John Shakeray, a Post Office official in Tanganyika, seen posting a letter to Mr. Nyerere from the smallest and highest post office in the world.

post office tent can be seen to his right. Out of the camouflaged eight-man tent where the team was at midnight on December 8.

... were shots of the Chaggas runners with their messengers waving triumphantly as they bring down the flag-raising on the summit.

... written pictures of the post office at Peter's Hut and the summit, setting it against up-first-day stamps with Tanganyika's special independence stamps.

ALL WENT SUCCESSFULLY ON KILIMANJARO SNOWS

WHEN Tanganyika's Prime Minister, Mr. Julius Nyerere, in his Legislative Council in October, 1962, that the people of Tanganyika would like to fight up Mount Kilimanjaro, he began what turned out last weekend to be the most ambitious communications exercise ever undertaken in East Africa.

Who said Lt. Awanoro Nyerere, of the new Tanganyika African Rifles, was briefed to climb to the mountain summit to raise the Tanganyika national flag and light Mr. Nyerere's beacon. The Special Squadron of the K.A.R. stationed in Nairobi and the East African Posts and Telecommunications found have to make the climb possible and to link Kilimanjaro from the top downwards by radio-telephone to the rest of East Africa and the world.

Minor spill

Post offices were set up at the base camp at Marangu at each of the three huts en route up the mountain - Bumbaki, Peter's and Kibo - and in a Mr. Nyerere on the mountain top. Radio was taken to the post offices on the backs of porters and mules.

Over a week ago a little snow was reported at the summit and more than 2,000 worth of gear and other supplies, including the letters.

By Henry Reuter

with a special stamp reading "Explosion Kilimanjaro."

Flag raised

At midnight on December 8 the flag was raised by Mr. Nyerere and Mr. Shakeray at the summit. The flag was hoisted by order of the K.A.R. branch of the Tanganyika African National Union.

The food was accompanied by the pictures were taken. The expedition films were placed in a metal bag and in the plane in a chest. The radio-telephone gear was in the base camp more than 10 miles away.

Final job

Two Post Office engineers Mr. John Shakeray and Mr. Howard Marchant, took the climb to the top but Mr. Marchant was struck by mountain sickness and it was Mr. Shakeray who, with the help of Kilimanjaro's 15 degree of snow, raised the radio link.

The letter was from the commander of Operation High-altitude Mr. Nyerere and Tanganyika on attaining independence.

Earlier, Mr. Shakeray had had to make to the smooth operation between the summit and the base camp on the day the flag was raised. On Saturday evening the flag was hoisted and the following celebration of their achievement and of their independence.

In fact the celebration was the subject of the mountain work. The climber's work was a successful one. The flag was hoisted by order of the K.A.R. branch of the Tanganyika African National Union.

Record score by Manjrekar

MAJREK hitting by Vijay Manjrekar, whose 119 not out was the highest score ever made in England against England, provided the highlight on the second day of the third Test at New Delhi yesterday.

Manjrekar batted just under 7 hours to help India reach 486, and in the remaining 40 minutes before the close, England replied with 21 for the loss of Peter Richardson.

India might well have amassed a far bigger total on the first day had it not been for the perfect hitting surfaces at the ground. But the latter batsmen had quite obviously been given orders to push the score along quickly.

Nairobi dealings down, but breweries continue to go ahead

DUE partly to the approaching holiday period, turnover on the Nairobi Stock Exchange was a reduced scale during the week.

In breweries, City's continued their advance, closing the week at 22/80 buyers. 25¢ sellers, a rise of 25 cents since the letter coming off earlier at 11/10 in the exchange, through the price has not yet been tested. Uganda Breweries remained at last week's quotation.

In insurance, there was a good price, but the counters were bargained. Fidelity and Life's Ordinary maintained last week's interest. Fidelity's share rose to 11/10, and Life's to 1/10. The share of 4/10 and 1/10. There was a slight rise in the share of 4/10 and 1/10.

RUSSIANS MAKING 'COMPACT' CARS

RUSSIA'S motor industry is entering the booming "compact" car market. The first car will be ready within two years.

The compact — economical — cars will be produced in Moscow in 1958.

They led to a drop in Berlin on the news that the motor industry was to be reorganized in the next few years.

Russia's plan comes as American and British car makers are looking for ways to expand their sales in the Soviet Union.

It is also expected that the new cars will be produced in Moscow and Leningrad.

STANDARD STAFF REPORTER, NAIROBI.
Kenya's Coastal Strip is being administered with the rest of the country before self-government and independence, Sir James Robertson, permanent secretary, said.

Sir James was appointed by the Sultan of Zanzibar as Kenya's Secretary to inquire into the future of the ten-mile-wide Strip and reported on the changes which were considered to be in the best interests of the country in the advice in the 1955 Agreement because of constitutional development in East-Africa.

The commissioner suggests that integration could most conveniently be achieved by the British Government abrogating the Agreement, a new agreement on similar lines to be negotiated between the Sultan and the Kenya Government, and the Government's administrative authority over the Strip assumed.

HIGHLIGHT WAS GAINING U.N. MEMBERSHIP

TANGANYIKA spoke its first week of independence quietly, with most of the news coming from abroad. The Prime Minister's speech at the admission of the country to the United Nations, the opening of the National Assembly concerned Africa as a whole more than Tanganyika in particular.

It is not pressed his desire for free representation in the United Nations. He said that Tanganyika could not proceed to the United Nations until it had secured a permanent seat on the Security Council. He said that the Government was in agreement with the United States and Britain on the issue of the Security Council.

ARCHBISHOP URGES KENYA TO AID NEEDY
THE Archbishop of East Africa, the Most Rev. L. J. M. Sang, yesterday called on the people of Kenya to help the church in the ministry of compassion for those less fortunate.
"There is too little peace and good will towards men in the world today," he told Nairobi Rotarians. "If we are in the world today, we in our own small way, in the ministry of compassion, and in our own part of the world making things better for our people and so contributing to the making of a better world for all men and women."
The Archbishop said that the world's population was increasing at such a rate that although churches were finding new members, there was a decreasing proportion of the world's population.
"The church has to be so active in the world today as to be able to do the things that are needed for the people of the world today."
He said that the church should be a source of peace and good will in the world today.

DRIVING WITH A DEADLY GHOST FOR PASSENGER

THE last case on the list, a complicated dispute over the ownership of some furniture, had kept me late on the Bench. It was almost dark when I came out of the Council Offices where the Court sits and got into my car. It promised to be a fine night but it was bitterly cold, and although the car was reasonably warm, I did not mind the 20-mile drive home.

As I turned the corner of the street, the headlights on the wall and I noticed that the radiator mascot of a car was reasonably warm, a fine silver wire, was slightly crooked. It offended my tidy mind, but I was too cold to get out and put it straight.

I was told from Herts. Bay Road that my house followed the line of an old road which it reached after a mile or so. I was told locally as Gilbert. I had been given this information by a friend of mine who had been to the place. I had been told that the road was a fine silver wire, was slightly crooked. I was told that the road was a fine silver wire, was slightly crooked. I was told that the road was a fine silver wire, was slightly crooked.

Evil, invisible hands on wheel

I stepped out of the car and looked at the engine. It was definitely hot. After that I got back into the driving seat on a treacherous road to sleep came over me, but I knew that I must get home. I started the engine, and the car rolled into first. I laid on the accelerator. I had heard how my feet the unmistakable clanking of a broken exhaust pipe trailing on the road. Then I realised what had happened. Because of the bitter cold, I had driven with all the windows shut and the exhaust had been coming up through the bonnet and the carburettor. I had heard how my feet the unmistakable clanking of a broken exhaust pipe trailing on the road.

At each corner the dreadful struggle took place, my hands driving to the steering wheel and back, but each time I got into the car, I found the wheel was not where it should be. I tried to look at the wheel, but each time I found the wheel was not where it should be. I tried to look at the wheel, but each time I found the wheel was not where it should be.

THE RANGE OF DRINKS IN KENYA TO THE BEERS

ALL of us are going to extend cordial wishes, Christmas and hunchoons over the Christmas and New Year season and wish you and yours to continue the enormous range available to you in Nairobi, or for that matter, in Kenya as a whole. It is doubtful whether any other place in Europe of comparable size and population with Nairobi could provide such a wide range of articles.

For this we have to thank the planters and foreman of M. Banki Jardin, a country agent in 1920 to the present. Since then, Jardin's themselves have gradually expanded his business which since 1920 has become known as M. W. K. Kenyan and has been organized in Delaware Avenue, Nairobi, in 1922. The trusty body or unit of the Kenyan merchants was completed in 1922 when the Kenyan and Sprat opened their first premises in Mombasa. Each of these companies specializes in wine and spirits and is able to give the highest knowledge to the ever-present problem facing the host or hostess who is entertaining.

Your wine merchant is available in Kenya to advise you; you should use him. Wine merchants have up to a dozen telephone calls each day from scotch businessmen who inquire about the right wine for the right food before planning their menu.

Many otherwise delightfully organized home dinner parties have been ruined by the choice of unsuitable wines, although the wines in themselves may have been perfectly good. So next time the host comes to dinner or you plan a direct little candle-light supper for the latest friends, do not leave the selection of wine to chance. Put the responsibility of the wine merchants of Kenya.

Of course there must be a bit Christmas dinner which must inevitably be followed with good food by hunchoons. What about these menus?

Well, that might have given you some new ideas for actual Christmas meals, but I can hear you saying "where are the recipes and how we use them in connection with extra cooking." Here briefly then are the recipes for the courses which you might not have included in your Christmas menu.

RATATOUILLE
Heat two tablespoon of olive oil in the bottom of a hotproof casserole and add one pound of sliced white fish. Add the sliced onions, green peppers, sliced and quartered, a large slice of tomato, two quarters of an inch thick, five small tomatoes (sliced), three shallots and pepper and sugar and cover the top with bread crumbs.

Add a few more drops of olive oil to the surface and cook for one hour at 180 degrees in the oven. About five minutes before removing the contents from the oven and serve with French dressing.

Many have taken of forty chipped pineapple with one egg and half cup each of chopped raisins and apricots. Sprinkle over them the juice of half a lemon and toss at once with marzipan.

For the last of a fine beer or drink and surprised with their beer and stout and they are getting plain hatched walnuts on the Christmas and hunchoons.

Many I think that these are fairly well-remembered meals, but they are not to be made at such a short notice as the Christmas dinner. It is a pity that the Christmas dinner is not more often made in this way.

Many have ever heard of Antioch, Whisky No. 1, Antioch Brandy - Whisky. It is available in bottles at 4/6 a bottle, or 22/6 a bottle, and very suitable for Christmas.

There are some excellent Portuguese wines on the market in Kenya, and very desirable. They are available in bottles at 1/3 a bottle and a very desirable champagne bottle at 1/3 a bottle.

What a fine day for a party! I am sure you will enjoy it very much. I am sure you will enjoy it very much. I am sure you will enjoy it very much.

Make 'magic' last longer each year

CHRISTMAS DAY is the one day of the year that repeats itself like any other. Even if you faced the day without any of the usual decorations and celebrations or any of the religious observances, you would still find a certain "something" written on the faces of the people around you that would remind you that the day was a special one.

No matter how hard you tried to live through the day as a normal one, you would still find a certain "magic" in the air which, however undefeatable, would once again remind you that the day was Christmas Day - the day of peace and good will towards all men.

If you analyze the way many people spend their Christmas, you will find that for the greater part of the day their thoughts are more or less the same as on any Sunday of the year.

Christmas breakfast, for example, is the same as any other breakfast, and the same as any other dinner. The only difference is that the day is a day of peace and good will towards all men.

The only way that the day is different is that the day is a day of peace and good will towards all men. The only way that the day is different is that the day is a day of peace and good will towards all men.

MRS. BROWN MAKES A BARGAIN WITH

FATHER CHRISTMAS

BY ROBINA WRIGHT

There and back to no time at all. We are making such a meal in the extra warmth we show towards our children. Father Christmas has been very carefully to avoid tripping up.

Mrs. Brown was an active housewife and had to be very careful to avoid tripping up. She was an active housewife and had to be very careful to avoid tripping up.

The Brown children, Dick and Jane, were not quite sure about Father Christmas. They were not quite sure about Father Christmas. They were not quite sure about Father Christmas.

Thought it must be one of the children's usual Christmas stories. "That's just what I said," said Mrs. Brown. "That's just what I said," said Mrs. Brown.

What a fine day for a party! I am sure you will enjoy it very much. I am sure you will enjoy it very much. I am sure you will enjoy it very much.

Visit revives 'cloak and dagger' days

COLLEAGUES in most professions either have lunch or otherwise keep up a very informal line of acquaintance once they are in each other's daily life. But the members of the Special Agents Executive in the War Office during the last war were rather like a cloaky hat family, able to pick up where they left off whenever they met, according to Miss Vera Atkins, who was one of them.

Her immediate boss was Sgt. Bennett, a former member of the Home Guard, who was now engaged in public relations work in London. Miss Atkins was working in the "cloak and dagger" section of the War Office, counting down in France, meeting the men who had been in the front and generally being treated as a girl of an organization.

Miss Atkins is visiting Kenya for the first time after resigning from her job of organizing educational travel for young people which she has been doing for the last 12 years. She has met her old colleagues and relatives in Africa, and next month will continue her safari in the Masai, the Bushman and South Africa.

Met again

In Kenya she has been reunited with Miss Mary O'Shaughnessy, who was working in the "cloak and dagger" section at the War Office. She had started her life in the "cloak and dagger" section when she was very young, but had not seen her for many years. She had just finished her work at the War Office and was on her way to Kenya. She had been in the "cloak and dagger" section for many years and had been very successful. She had been in the "cloak and dagger" section for many years and had been very successful. ROMANCE in Yorkshire, in an unromantic though it may seem to some people, was the meeting place of a young doctor and nurse who have now engaged and hope to live happily ever after. WOMEN AT WORK

ALTHOUGH most women have a natural interest in previous stories, it is comparatively rare to find one who has studied the scientific side of those lovely pieces of female adornment. Mrs. Caroline Bradley, wife of one of Nairobi's leading businessmen, is a pioneer in this field. She has been studying the scientific side of those lovely pieces of female adornment. Evering set for a bumper Christmas in Nairobi

HOTELS and restaurants in Nairobi area, stimulated by bookings, and anxious to attract more, are going to a great deal of trouble this year to provide the public with good food and entertainment. As one owner put it: "Whether Christmas Eve is a Sunday or not it is still Christmas Eve and people want to enjoy themselves."

This article will give a guide, though by no means a comprehensive one, to some of the things that are going on in and around Nairobi over Christmas and the New Year.

Most of the smaller hotels which cater for residential rather than casual trade are concentrating good, well-kept special menus for their guests, and decorations to encourage the right sort of atmosphere. This is generally appreciated by the stay-at-home who find themselves confined to a hotel.

The big stay at the NEW STANLEY GRILL ROOM, by course, is Vic Oliver, the known star who must not be confused with the ordinary Vic Oliver. Music production which is an another attraction.

The Grill Room will be open for one reason or another.

The THE OLYMPIA HOTEL, leads to provide a magnificent contribution to the festive season.

Dinner dance

THE EQUATOR INN is specialising in food, with traditional meals on Christmas Eve and New Year's Eve. WESTWOOD is also a first-class dinner on the same course, and it is the same course, and it is the same course, and it is the same course.

THE MAYFAIR and AINSWORTH hotels will be providing Christmas fare for their guests. MURST HOTEL is holding a dinner on Christmas Eve.

THE NEW STANLEY RESTAURANT have a special dinner on Christmas Eve and on New Year's Eve. There will be dancing as well as a show, being the only one of those for the Grill Room.

Blind Society needs funds

An outline of the work which the Kenya Society for the Blind has been able to undertake during the past year was given by the chairman, Mr. C. B. Anderson, yesterday in a statement appealing for continued public support for the society's activities.

Expressing grateful thanks to the Forces' Broadcasting Service for its wireless appeal for the Blind, Mr. Anderson stated the society was in very real need of funds if it was to maintain its existing services.

In the past 12 months, apart from the previously existing one large school for blind boys and girls run by the Salvation Army at Thika, we have been able to maintain by several thousand pounds (sic) 11 small schools in Kenya, and there is more under consideration. In addition we have spent several thousand of pounds in establishing and running the trade training centre for adults at Makenani.

"We have launched nearly 2,200 to assist a young Kenyan European boy, who, sadly goes blind at a few years' training course and is supplied with a bicycle, a typewriter, who have lost his sight through his eyes.

School visits
 "During the past year in association with the Medical and Education Departments, we have sponsored the organization of a specially trained hospital, which has been able to attend at Kibera District. This visit gives training in the recognition of the signs of the disease among the girls and boys at that school."
 "During the past 12 months

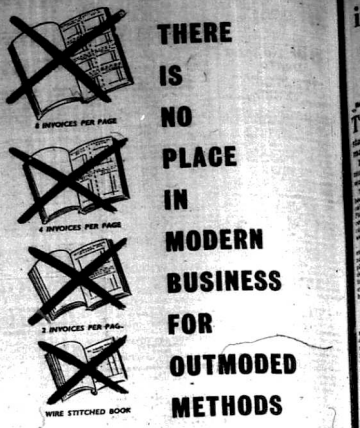

our hospital assistant, Richard James, has inspected the eyes of 36,839 pupils in 211 schools. This involves the use of treatment, mainly for trachoma, and 57 have been sent to hospital for more skilled treatment. Just recently Richard James has been transferred to Makenani. So far, the latest reports state that the incidence of eye diseases among those examined has been very high indeed. In one school of 60 pupils, 42 required treatment and in another of 70 pupils, 74 had to be treated.

GARSEN SAYS THANKS

River people during the recent floods was acknowledged by Chief Maslini Patis during a visit by the Governor, Sir Patrick Breen, to H. H. Garsen at Nakuru. Mr. Garsen was greeted by a large crowd of people many of whom were refugees from neighbouring districts which had been washed away in the floods. Sir Patrick assured them that the government would be able to give their food supplies and other necessities until they were able to grow their own food. "All the people of the great Kenya," he said, "are grateful to you and the Kenya Government for what you have done for the people of Kenya because of the fact that you are all in danger of having future food supplies cut off by the floods of the past week and the people of Kenya are all very grateful to you."

Guards learn Spurs' tactics

'Doubling' in sport stamps: A bet

THE number of sportsmen who "double" in sport stamps must number thousands. It is a fact that the member will take a sharp upward curve in the New Year. This was the finding of a survey by C.A.O. Edgar, Chairman of the Stamp Club, London, who has been studying the habits of sportsmen who collect stamps. The survey shows that the number of stamps collected by sportsmen has increased by 20 per cent in the last year and the events recorded in the stamps are becoming more and more varied. The survey also shows that the number of stamps collected by sportsmen is increasing in all countries.

Now U.S. tennis chiefs fly high

THE United States Lawn Tennis Association is to charter a plane to fly 20 foreign men and women players from Europe to compete in the U.S. National Championships at Forest Hills next year. Mr. Frank F. Rowland, president of the United States L.T.A., is making the announcement and has offered to help defray the expenses of the players. The decision to fly players from Europe to the U.S. is a big step for the U.S. tennis community. The first time that a plane was used to transport tennis players was in 1910 when the U.S. Open was held in Newport, Rhode Island.

It might be a charity match... but politics are necessary

NO matter which way you turn in Kenya these days, there's no getting away from politics in some shape or form. It is a sign of the times, it seems, that the presence of a political personality is necessary to stage a successful football match. The Kenya Football Federation has been invited to stage a charity match for the benefit of the Kenya Football Federation. The match is to be played on Saturday, and the proceeds are to be used for the benefit of the Kenya Football Federation.

Clubs agree to one-day knock-out matches in Provincial Cricket

Ticket sales will be bonanza

Counties also favour Sunday games

IN a bold attempt to revive the waning public interest in cricket, the English county clubs have agreed to one-day knock-out matches in 1963.

This revolutionary decision was made at a Lord's meeting of the Advisory County Cricket Committee, which also decided to standardize the county championship at 23 three-day matches for each county.

1962 INTRODUCTION RESTRICTED

But apart from the basic principle that rounds in the knock-out competition should start on a Wednesday and be of one-day duration, with Thursday and Friday available in case of weather interruption little else was decided. It was agreed that the M.C.C. should be asked to set up a sub-committee to go into all details of the new competition.

A proposal to introduce the new competition next summer failed because fixtures had already been arranged. Other "difficulties" concerned the allocation of grounds and most members of counties had joined their clubs on the understanding that the normal fixtures would be played.

Another amendment, seeking 13 three-day matches, and 22 one-day matches was also defeated.

ONLY FIVE 'BOOK' AUSSIE TRIP

As a batsman Dexter has vast experience from the dashing cavalry he was expected to lead a strongly reluctant tour, though he now seems to appreciate the fact that it is far more effective when leading.

As the M.C.C. had no first-class cricket and had been invited to tour Australia in 1962-63. Apart from the "book" tour, the first half of the tour was to be a "book" tour, with the M.C.C. team looking to secure the grade for visiting to Australia in 1962-63.

With M.C.C. about half-way through their half of the tour, Pakistan, India and Ceylon, five players seem certain to go. They are Ted Dexter (captain), Ken Barrington (Shrew), Geoff Pullar (Leicester), David King (Gloucestershire), and Tony Lewis (Sussex).

Out of favour

Dexter has been in the limelight as captain and so far his batting has been the main man in the first-class cricket of the first division.

Capitancy has not afforded him the opportunity to show his batting on one of the top grounds in the world. It is a pity that a strong leader is badly needed in the remaining days in European cricket. A batsman like Dexter is a rare find in the first-class cricket of the first division.

WEEK-END STANDARD WINDS SPED HISTORY TO EAST AFRICA IN WAKE OF SLAVERS

By Paul Fielding

THE coast of East Africa teems with history and the movement of diverse peoples along its shores for more than 3,000 years. This can be attributed to the constancy of the monsoon winds, which, even so long ago, were known to the mariners of the Persian Gulf, Arabia and India. Egyptians and even Phoenicians are known to have called regularly at the ports of the Somaliland coast, and may well have ventured further south. Ivory, slaves, gold and spices were the chief attractions. In A.D. 46, when Egypt was a Roman province, the first Roman sailor ventured down the Red Sea into the Indian Ocean and learned of the reliability of the north-east and south-west trade winds.

A view of Lamu from the sea, taken from the deck of a ship.

Returning with this knowledge, it caused the first European traders to venture into the Indian Ocean shortly after. In A.D. 60 an unknown Greek chronicler wrote a Guide Book to the Indian Ocean, and among the places described there are Zanzibar and Lamu.

It is not generally known that more than 2,000 years ago it was already possible for the ships of that time to pass from the Mediterranean to the Red Sea.

TRADE PIONEERS

Ships sailed up the River Nile to the heart of the Delta, and thereafter by using the "Canal of the Ancestors" which ran from the Nile to the head of the Gulf of Suez.

This canal, of which vestiges may still be seen, was often cleared and restored, but finally became unusable in A.D. 773.

While this direct link existed with the Mediterranean they tried, it seems equally certain that the Arab adventurers from Southern Arabia were the pioneers and masters of the trade with East Africa's reefs.

From their Arabian ports on return, they transhipped not only their cargoes up to Suar and the Gulf of Aden, but merchandise from the Red Sea which reached them via India which reached them via Java.

A lucrative and monopolistic trade lay in their keeping for untold centuries. Not the least interesting of these old trading centres is the group of islands situated on the Kenya coast some 200 miles north of Mombasa and Swahili.

MANGROVE POLES

Known as Lamu, Malindi, and Pate, they are 20, 25 and 70 square miles respectively. The islands are four times larger than Mombasa.

Marked by the reefs, mangroves and sandbars, the only access was by air or dhow and it enjoyed two weeks of perfect weather with cool breezes during my stay.

Low lying and covered with mangroves, the islands numbering some 15-20, are the outlet from the sea and the outlet from the reefs of the mangrove poles which abound.

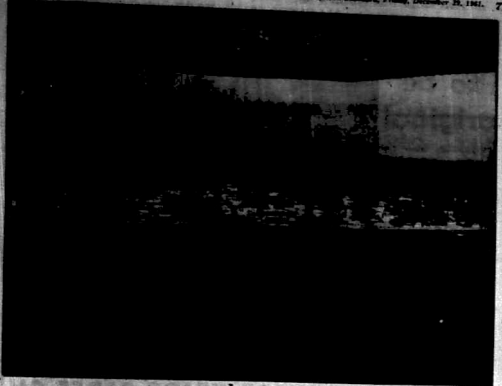

Once occupied by the making of mats, bags and sandals, and a few are employed in the palm oil and copra trade, with cotton spinning as a seasonal occupation the rest being brought from the mainland and after being re-exported by dhow to Mombasa.

The decreasing dhow trade empowers others in maintaining, requires and as crevettes. They build their own fishing rafts and dhows, as they have done for countless centuries.

MANY WELLS

Electricity has not yet reached there and it was only in 1927 that the first piped water to colonial centres was installed. Numerous wells are hewn out of the rock.

The inaccessibility of the looking building houses the price, and no lack has yet been established.

This then is "modern" Lamu the scene of a historical massacre, and interesting wars, going back thousands of years.

A flourishing port of call and slave centre in its heyday, it was visited by dhow in their hundreds from as far apart as the Mediterranean, Suez, the Persian Gulf, India, Malaya and even junka from China.

PERSIAN PLATE

In the 15th century it saw domination by the Portuguese for 250 years, in the 16th century the abolition of the slave trade and the intrigues of the Western Powers jockeying for a foothold.

German, Belgian, French and others all jockeyed by sea to gain authority, and brought 20th century.

A few ruins and bits of masonry are left, an old mosque of Persian plate, silent witness with the shadow of the horn to link Lamu with its exciting past.

Motor-boats only means of transport

District Commissioner's Office and his residence, guarded by two all-India constables, are prominent among them.

It is here one may see an exquisitely carved door in bronze the Austrian emblem of power and craftsmanship.

This same symbol of power is common on the East African coast and is believed to have been introduced by the ancient travellers from the Persian Gulf.

ALLEY MAZE

Behind the courtyard, a maze of narrow alleys, the thick and most markets and the traditional shops, which enclose the pattered are not cut off from the finest foods of civilization.

The womenfolk move slowly about in pariah through the narrow streets. A Mozambican visit the fishermen's huts, dwellings, a glimpse and full view with its leading jets and shores lying at anchor. Kenya's newest transport.

A few neat motor-boats may also be seen which belong to the European residents and officials, who number a round dozen all told. The motor-boats are their only means of transport.

Landing on the quay, we are assailed with the smells of the sea, wooden ships, ropes, coils of palm oil, dried mango. Out of the break of the sea a row of old buildings with white walls and blue roofs of the quayside. The

There is a general lack of noise and the air is unaltered by petrol fumes, an 80 car is allowed on the island.

The people of mixed Persian Arab and African blood, are pleasant, well-mannered and unaccustomed to racism or politics.

Lamu Island is protected from the rear and fronts of the Indian Ocean by the island of Pate which lies in front of it and the port of Pate, several miles in length.

Favoring this channel from the south one enters the small low cove by the ancient village of Shella with the mosque tower standing out, an evidence to the faithful.

An attendant holds up the ivory horns of Shells, left, and the motor-boats of Lamu. There are also in the District Commissioner, Lamu, and used for important slave seasons and weddings.

HADBAG CHIC FOUND IN TINY COURTYARD

Pairs handbags launch a variety of new ideas in both media and shape. Dominant trends everywhere are towards quality and fine workmanship. French stylists agree that if the material contents of a woman's handbag is small, it is all the more impressive for the styling and quality of that one important handbag to be superb.

In their turn, Frenchwomen, who are notoriously clever about dressing well on little money, adhere more than ever to the old theory that quantity can never replace quality.

General Africans to be given to JAIL FOR STEALING POOLS MONEY ORDERS

75 WILL BE PROMOTED IN NEXT 18 MONTHS

Immediate steps are to be taken to bring Africans into the commissioned ranks of the R.A.R. in Kenya. Army proposals envisage the creation of some 75 African officers within the next 18 months, and there are long-term plans for the commissioning of engineering officers.

The first part of the scheme will be encompassed in two ways. Officers will be commissioned and suitable NCOs will be selected to attend a service course. The bulk of orders in 1963 are experienced officers and other ranks graded one between the first and second courses. About 100 officers are expected to be commissioned in January. In March the first group of about ten NCOs will be sent to Moura for a four-month course.

NOT INSPIRED BY CONGO

Commenting on the proposals, the Permanent Secretary to the Ministry of Defence, Mr. C. J. Filmer, said the R.A.R. was moving in step with the Government's general programme of education. He dismissed a suggestion that this was inspired by the military of the Congo. "It is the Congo after independence. But we have to learn from other countries' mistakes," he added.

Meanwhile, it is also hoped to encourage candidates from Kenya to apply for entry to the Royal Military Academy at Sandhurst. There they would take a two-year course covering both academic and military studies.

DATE FOR COAST TALKS NO DOUBT
