Burdorper Jerseys win open event for sixth time

In the last issue of the American magazine, The Jersey Burdorper, I came across an advertisement in which a breeder claims to have a bull who is the sire of a world record cow.

This is not the first time that a 'Burdorper' Jersey has been mentioned in the American magazine. In fact, it has been mentioned several times.

In The Jersey Cow, I saw a short notice which stated that the Jersey Cows of the Great Western Dairy Co. had won the title of 'Jersey Cow of the Year' in 1961.

Another line passed from the American magazine to me was that of the Jersey Cow of the Year in 1961, which was a cow named 'The Jersey Cow of the Year'.

Secondly, we must have been of another breed but I do not know. It is possible that the cow was a Jersey.

Kenya returns have won the Colony an international place

For the first time in its history, the youthful community of Kenya has achieved recognition outside its own, race or class boundaries. The achievement came through the election of the Hon. Sir J. G. Thompson as a member of the International Council of Agricultural Knowledge, on which the Government is equal with countries such as the United States, Canada and Great Britain. Although not a member of the International Council of Agricultural Knowledge, Sir J. G. Thompson is only in his first year.

Different now
Assisted by members from all over the world, Sir J. G. We are not suggesting that you should become overworked and turn yourself into one of the exhausted family when you want to make a journey.

But you can travel the same way in the hours of the air. If you want to get there quickly and comfortably yourself or if you have something you want to send quickly, do it the bird way—by air.

We either wait the destination, just as fast as there is an airfield there (and sometimes even if there isn't!) we can arrange a perfect landing. Get in touch with the Passenger Departments at any of our branches.

What of Germany? Four Powers try again—with the air cleared

THE German problem is again on the menu. The Foreign Council has met in London, but this time they must be swayed, or pushed aside for good.

With the conference now almost upon us, it may be of interest to study very briefly the main issues which the Council hopes to resolve.

By ROBERT EVELYN

The main issue now under discussion is the German problem. The Foreign Council has met in London, but this time they must be swayed, or pushed aside for good.

Only half of it

WHAT you may say, about political "half" in Germany is not an immediate—rather lonely (and at what expense!)—concern. It is a matter which the Foreign Ministry has not yet announced that, if the London meeting fails, they will try to get on with it in a Western German State. Our way is thus clear. It is for Moscow to move.

with a formidable joint effort. Britain may also try to secure for the League of Nations a permanent seat in the other three zones. France will raise another joint proposal for a meeting of the four in the French zone. To this, Britain will not assent unless the four great political units remain, as they are, an unbreakable bloc.

Reparations will face the Foreign Ministers when, while they fall broadly within the political and economic areas as yet made known to themselves. There is the issue of reparations.

ROUND THE CHRISTMAS BOOKSHELVES - PART 2 Novelists writing specially for the children

TO attempt to enumerate and classify all the children's books available for Christmas is about as easy a task as to try to pick your way through a primordial jungle. The only thing to do is to distinguish here and there a volume which stands out from the vast assortment.

In all fields tradition and experience tend to be conservative, and the publishers' firms, no doubt as a result of the fact that the children's book market is a conservative one, are no exception in this respect. Tradition is represented perhaps best in the Amalgamated Press, Gollancz and the Collins. The latter two are the publishers of the most popular children's books in this country. A Uganda improvement scheme

WORK in the Improvement Area was started by the Veterinary Department, who paid most attention in the early stages to the selection of improved bulls and treatment of disease. It was soon found that use of improved breeding stock was a vital factor without better feeding. Better feeding in the long run could only be obtained by better cultivation methods and by better management of grazing. It became clear therefore that maximum benefits could only be attained if the agricultural and veterinary departments worked in close collaboration.

The Director of Agriculture and the Veterinary Department have been working in close collaboration to improve the standard of the herd. It is a natural product and has been used for many years to control weevils in grain.

Nyanza hears how the Colony makes both ends meet

NYANZA'S Member of Legislative Council, Mr. G. M. Edye, has just completed a tour of the Province where he has spoken to his constituents at Kisumu, Songhor, Londiani, Kericho and Sotik about the Finance Committee's report and the 1948 Budget.

The European Electors' Association of the Province arranged the meetings and Mr. Edye was accompanied by Mr. Brian Shaw, vice-President of the Electors' Union and the Hon. Secretary of the Nyanza Association.

After his speeches, Mr. Edye dealt with many questions covering a wide horizon.

In dealing with the 1948 draft estimates the Member explained the new procedure which would be adopted in examining these estimates this year—there will be before a committee of Legislative Council members, all the members of the Executive Council, and the members of the Standing Finance Committee. In view of this procedure Mr. Edye said he saw no need for any motion to go into the case of deficit.

New method

In dealing with the 1948 draft estimates the Member explained the new procedure which would be adopted in examining these estimates this year—there will be before a committee of Legislative Council members, all the members of the Executive Council, and the members of the Standing Finance Committee.

Signals

On the signals side of the Budget, he drew attention to the "change signals" of the expenditure side of subsidizing and medical services. "There is, of course," said Mr. Edye, "no question as to the necessity for these services, and it would be in the interests of all parties to make sure that the necessary arrangements are made to provide for them in the most efficient manner possible."

Unity

After his address, Mrs. Brian Shaw made a short speech for support for the Electors' Union, and the meeting was held until 10.30 p.m. The meeting was held in the hall of the Nyanza Association.

State control

Mr. Edye drew attention to the fact that the Government's plan to control the price of certain commodities was a step towards the control of inflation.

You Have Been Warned

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 17, 1947

It was apparent that the Government, on occasion, wishes to make a point of its policy on one or other of the supposed deficiencies of the proposed abolition of import controls. It was not without warning in the case of the petrol and petrol products. It was not without warning in the case of the petrol and petrol products. It was not without warning in the case of the petrol and petrol products.

Reconstruction programme set up by the Paris conference. The principle was that for every million dollars. The view of the responsible Government in this demand will be met. The wider programme will be subject to the effects of the proposed programme in the United States of the 10-point programme.

There is no doubt that the United States is fully alive now to the need for a programme of import controls. It is not surprising that the American people will be called upon to make if Europe is to be saved from the economic disaster which is threatening it. It is an ungracious comment to say that the American people are not interested in the welfare of the rest of the world. It is a more realistic comment to say that the American people are not interested in the welfare of the rest of the world.

If the customer's interest is in the permanent when he enters your premises the reverse is the case during the process of his changing your goods. For the eight hours of a Saturday morning, if he is fortunate enough to possess a motor car and 95% of them are likely to be parked in the streets, marked as the best point on a city map, to his great inconvenience. By doing this the public citizen can have himself a couple of minutes of his own time in his own car or in his own car.

The argument of course, is that the Government has taken of "free" markets instituted again, the personal enterprise will be restored to its original position. It is a condition similar to that which has been experienced in the past. It is a condition similar to that which has been experienced in the past.

THE KING MAKES AN OFFER TO PARLIAMENT

'No extra provision for the Princess at present; my savings enough for two years'

THE KING has told Parliament in a special message that he is prepared to meet-out of his own savings made during the war...

He would do this, he said, because he was anxious that 'this provision should be made in such a way as not to impose a burden on the people at the present time when they are faced with great economic difficulties.'

He did not specify the period but his remarks indicated that his savings would be available for two years...

During the war the Royal family had not been so extensively for their own but the King had received considerable sums from the public funds...

PARIS LETTER

They are favouring brown

By Elie M. Sanders.

THIEVES come and go with painful frequency in Paris these days. The metro strike hit the citizens hardest, and while they tramped gloomily up and down the long, long streets and wide, wide squares, there was a decided drop in the well-known city of Paris. Now a kind of silent warlike prevails. The world knows the painful experience that the cost of living increase after each strike. In six months railway costs have nearly doubled, and food is more than twice as expensive. You get it. Even on the black market with its given only to children and the young. The maximum price for food is level with the black market. Sugar has risen on the ration to something not mentioned for months. Machines for making clothing from the stalls on the corners of streets is worn on the fringe, and many, many citizens are making a desperate note of colour on the sewer stalls in the shadow of the sidewalks, and at night the lights on the top of their towers glow rather through a black mist, simple and cheerful.

In line with the grey days, dress-maker's collections show a preference for muted colours. Brown is the colour this season, in every variation of shading, beige, copper and rose.

It is a surprisingly slow step on being introduced with pastel tints. Other popular colours are plum, deep maroon, yellow. But black is still the favourite, and the smart, slick hair suit with the emphasis of lines and accessories.

Plus an change, plus c'est la mode, say the French, and in spite of the frowns about the new silhouettes, including the changed on the shoulders, the hats and trim still adore. The battle of the skirts seems to have ended in a draw.

Pioneer designer Christian Dior, who asserted that womanly women must wear their skirts to their ankles, has directly refuted, and the short skirt brigade have advanced till the hem have met in a healthy compromise midway of the calf. That is not the fashion, but even Marie-Louise in her new suit almost make it as alluring as the former style.

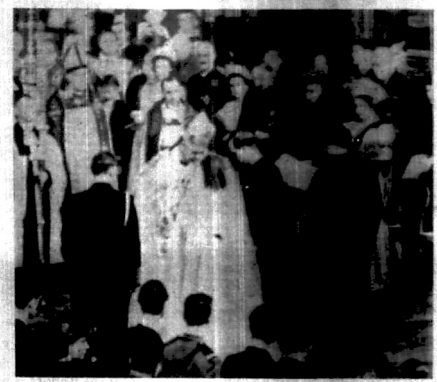

Stockings are still a problem, though not so serious as last year. Occasionally the last-voiced advice appears on that street, a steady remnant of the 1930's but it has to be worn with a special coat as it does not sit comfortably under a tailored skirt. The habit of skirt has died a sudden, unannounced death.

Designers let themselves go for colour and dress drama, drawing on Edwardian, Victorian and even Renaissance ideas. The result is bizarre explanation to suit any situation.

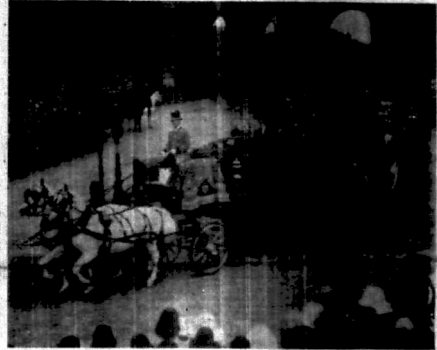

Paris, France, said as New York and London, and the most ill-fated skirt is youthful bloom. Cut-out as I have tried it, but the top is terrific.

Shoes with a nasty double heel on top to furnish your old umbrella in the rain. Given to Parisians who use their long, narrow, as walking sticks, but to my mind long umbrellas are awkward and unnecessary. The empty English style umbrella costs double the best one, and has complete with flower pots, in an oval handle. Hairpins to match, and hairpins to match. Every second woman in Paris has one.

The big question-mark over Czechoslovakia

REDS STRUGGLE FOR UPPERHAND

By Anthony Corbett of the Economist

THE political crisis which has been latent in Czechoslovakia since the war ended has recently become much more acute. In this small Slav country, the western influence of Soviet influence in Europe, the question is whether the people are to retain their independence, their own conception of democracy, and their right to a western as well as an eastern "window," or whether they are to come under a totalitarian Communist regime like the countries of eastern Europe and become a 100 per cent satellite of Russia.

When the war ended, of course, the Czechs and Slovaks were represented in a coalition National Front government, consisting of Communist, Social Democrat, and other non-Communist groups. At that time, the Communist regime had no real power, and the National Front was a coalition of all the forces which were likely to be active in the country.

Largest party

In May last year, elections were held in the country. The Communist Party of Czechoslovakia won the largest vote, and the National Front was dissolved.

Unsettled

The "move to smash the Right" is a device used by the Communist Party to gain the upper hand in the country.

THIEVES ROB A CONVENT

BURGALARIES and thefts are on the increase in Kampala and we had fair to say the unenviable reputation of Nairobi in this connection.

Two large thefts of trays from garages have occurred recently and in the second case the premises were broken into two days later and a number of the bathroom fixtures were stolen.

Most disturbing, however, was a burglary on a Convent some 800 worth of new beds, blankets, and other furniture, and a large quantity of books, and a large quantity of books, and a large quantity of books.

GOOD NEWS OF THE CROPS

And good news about roads too

CHOPS reports from the Tana River District continue to be good. On top of a bumper pasha bean crop (sometimes called short beans) a good rice crop. Reports of the later-planted maize crops now growing are also good.

In the Witu area of the Lamu district the main crop was a light yield, but they have had a bumper kundu bean crop, and they are now harvesting a bumper crop of high priced rice. The rice is being sold at high prices for all products.

The outpatients in both districts have done well and are being treated with care.

In E. W. Hall, an engineer doctor, has been appointed medical officer for the Lamu and Tana River Districts. He replaces Mr. Pugh who for some time has been acting. Mr. Hall is a qualified medical officer and has been in the district for some time.

Dr. Ball's appointment is only for some three months when he will be replaced by Mr. Hall. It is hoped that the medical officer in the district will be able to continue the former practice of stationing a qualified medical officer in charge of Lamu Town, District, and the Tana River District.

The means that the doctor-in-charge will be able to visit Lamu and make periodical visits to the people in the Lamu District and the Tana River District. He will also be able to give medical attention to the people in the district.

For some years now Lamu has only one doctor, who is Mr. Hall. He is a qualified medical officer and has been in the district for some time. He is a qualified medical officer and has been in the district for some time.

3 MONTHS IN 'THE REP.', WHERE TEAM-WORK IS THE MAIN THING

They play tricks with the English language —making a game of it AND MANY ILLUSIONS ARE SHATTERED

ONE of the little refinements of civilization that is missed in these hotspots of Empire is the Theatre. Now welcome, then, was the news of a real live performance of a stage play in Nairobi. It was in a state of pleasurable anticipation that I for one took my seat at the Theatre Royal. Perhaps more than that. It brought back to me the three months I spent in the last year, in an English Repertory Company. It happened in this way.

The war had ended. I was recruited to Britain to be conscripted by the Home Office. My old job was there ready to step into, with the added promise of promotion. The Navy, I learned, was anxious to suggest me for seniority there. I had to suggest my own circumstances. I had, I found, no other way save only back, so to speak, to the Gaiety.

For three months I decided to "A friend and fellow-worker of mine was in the act of setting up a B.B.C. He had taken to writing comedy for the public, and had all kinds of people in the theatrical world. Over lunch one Friday at the try-out, after watching stage and film performances and commencing them from the song in the evening, I finally branched my interests. In came he recommended I quickly added that I did not expect an occasional role. I wanted to be a writer. Various changes or excuses were made. I was told that I should be a writer. I was told that I should be a writer. I was told that I should be a writer.

"Going to be a dramatist" he said.

Into to the fold

WITHIN the week I was out of town, established in a room in the city, within easy reach of a Repertory theatre. I had not met any of the people who were to be introduced to the sphere. I was told that I should be a writer. I was told that I should be a writer. I was told that I should be a writer.

"What a job!" I exclaimed, to the surprise of those who were present. I was told that I should be a writer. I was told that I should be a writer. I was told that I should be a writer.

factory there were three partners, the carpenter and others, a chance to take over. I was told that I should be a writer. I was told that I should be a writer. I was told that I should be a writer.

of with two performances. After an evening's meeting we walked through and sat the next week's play. I was told that I should be a writer. I was told that I should be a writer. I was told that I should be a writer.

Too uncertain I left in a huff. I was told that I should be a writer. I was told that I should be a writer. I was told that I should be a writer.

"No, you. Get up on the stage and read the part of Shonko," he called. "We want someone to read the part of Shonko." I was told that I should be a writer. I was told that I should be a writer. I was told that I should be a writer.

Like a game I was told that I should be a writer. I was told that I should be a writer. I was told that I should be a writer.

By 'MARIE' BARTLETT I was told that I should be a writer. I was told that I should be a writer. I was told that I should be a writer.

Leading lady I was told that I should be a writer. I was told that I should be a writer. I was told that I should be a writer.

The sole topic I was told that I should be a writer. I was told that I should be a writer. I was told that I should be a writer.

The verdict I was told that I should be a writer. I was told that I should be a writer. I was told that I should be a writer.

'Hol, you' I was told that I should be a writer. I was told that I should be a writer. I was told that I should be a writer.

Too uncertain I was told that I should be a writer. I was told that I should be a writer. I was told that I should be a writer.

Too uncertain I was told that I should be a writer. I was told that I should be a writer. I was told that I should be a writer.

Now I've got to congratulate him!

So he gets the promotion... my junior! And get... I've got to congratulate him!

If you had energy and ambition, if you liked here to make success for you and your family, you would do your best!

Levenfish just waited for his young rival to blunder

THE following game, played in Russia during the early years of the last war, is a particularly instructive example of the middle-game tactics.

The player with the White pieces, Levenfish, is one of the few surviving Russian players of the pre-revolutionary period. He had achieved an international reputation before the outbreak of the first World War and in 1920 and 1927 he achieved the right of chess—the Championship of the U.S.S.R.

His most famous opponent in chess was the American grandmaster Emanuel Lasker, who had been world champion since 1906. Lasker was a very difficult man to beat.

In the present game, again, we find the Russian player with the White pieces playing a game and initiating the opening and leaves all the initiative to his young opponent.
