Reliable

This new year is of true Dodge like in the high quality of its vital parts.

All for light, power, axle shafts and springs are of electric resistance or other costly alloy steel, giving great strength and long wear, with no maintenance expense.

Wearing is naturally very because of the great leverage exerted by the steering gear, and the reduced friction resulting from ball-bearing steering system.

The famous Dodge Brothers "134" motor lamp, quiet, reliable engine performance with exceptional speed, surplus power and quick response more than adequate for every need.

MEMORANDUM ON THE CONGO BASIN TREATIES.

Appointment of Committee of Enquiry Urged.

THE COMING REVISION

Problems Presented by British and Belgian Mandates.

Mr. J. Sandeman Allen, the Conservative Member of Parliament for the West Division of Liverpool and a member of the Joint East African Board has drawn up a memorandum on the Congo Basin Treaties for the Empire Parliamentary Association and other bodies.

In emphasising the urgency of an inquiry into the complex and far-reaching questions involved, Mr. Allen states that his own conviction is that the whole question should form the subject of a Government inquiry as by no other means can the facts and views of all interested be satisfactorily obtained and collated.

The Memorandum which reviews the position from the Treaty of Berlin, 1885, and through its various stages to the present, should prove of general interest to people in East Africa who are concerned in the question, and to public bodies, such as the Chamber of Commerce, which has appointed a committee to inquire and report on the matter.

THE POSITION REVIEWED.

In an introduction to the memorandum, Mr. Allen states that the question as to how far the various and of necessity, various, treaties and agreements entered into between the various powers in the Congo Basin since 1885, and the position of the Congo Basin as a result of these treaties and agreements, is one of the most important and complex in the history of the Congo Basin.

It is the object of the memorandum to review the position from the Treaty of Berlin, 1885, and through its various stages to the present, and to point out the various problems which are presented by the British and Belgian Mandates in the Congo Basin.

The memorandum is divided into two main parts. The first part deals with the general position of the Congo Basin, and the second part deals with the specific problems presented by the British and Belgian Mandates.

The first part of the memorandum deals with the general position of the Congo Basin, and the second part deals with the specific problems presented by the British and Belgian Mandates.

The second part of the memorandum deals with the specific problems presented by the British and Belgian Mandates, and the various questions which arise from these treaties and agreements.

The memorandum concludes by pointing out the need for a Government inquiry into the Congo Basin Treaties, and the various questions which arise from these treaties and agreements.

The memorandum is a valuable contribution to the understanding of the Congo Basin Treaties, and the various questions which arise from these treaties and agreements.

Where Life is in Peril

Kohlers are used

Where the safety of human life depends upon unflinching light Kohler automatic electric lighting plants are used.

The U.S. Government have chosen Kohlers to light air mail beacon towers at night that guide the night fliers safely over their routes.

Kohlers are used in lighthouses, lightships, in mines, war and navy departments, hospital operating rooms. Here are tasks where none but the most dependable plants could serve—for without light, lives would be in peril.

In Kenya too, where absolute dependability is essential and efficiency and economy necessary, Kohlers are being selected, replacing the old storage battery type of lighting outfit.

The highest electrical and engineering authorities where independent or auxiliary electric lighting plants are required.

HOUSE OF COMMONS REJECTS THE NEW PRAYER BOOK

Chancellor Praises it as a Fairly Good Book

INCREASED NEGATIVE VOTE

Result Cleared by Large Crowd Outside the Houses of Parliament

By WILLIAM...
The House of Commons today rejected the new prayer book by a vote of 137 to 103. The result was a surprise to many, as the Government had expected a larger margin of support. The Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Lloyd George, had praised the book as a "fairly good book" and had urged its passage. However, the opposition, led by Mr. Balfour, was more vocal than in previous years. A large crowd gathered outside the Houses of Parliament to witness the vote.

The new prayer book, which had been in preparation for some time, was presented to the House of Commons for its consideration. It contained several changes, including the removal of certain passages and the addition of new ones. The opposition argued that the changes were too radical and that the book was not in accordance with the traditions of the Church of England. The Government, on the other hand, maintained that the changes were necessary to bring the prayer book up to date and to make it more acceptable to the people.

The vote was taken after a long and heated debate. The Government's supporters argued that the book was a necessary step towards modernization and that it was in line with the views of the majority of the people. The opposition, however, argued that the book was a betrayal of the Church's traditions and that it would lead to a loss of faith. The result was a narrow victory for the Government, but it was clear that the opposition was still a powerful force in the House of Commons.

Where the safety of human life depends upon un failing light Kohler automatic electric lighting plants are used.

The U.S. Government have chosen Kohlers to light air mail beacon towers at night that guide the night fliers safely over their routes.

Kohlers are used in lighthouses, lightships, in mines, war and navy departments, hospital operating rooms. Here are tasks where none but the most dependable plants could survive for without light, lives would be in peril.

In Kenya too, where absolute dependability is essential and efficiency and economy necessary, Kohlers are being selected, replacing the old storage battery type of lighting outfit.

The highest electrical and engineering authorities in Kenya are now recommending Kohlers where independent or auxiliary electric lighting plants are required.
