The Bank Manager struck gold

to many banks, and the gold was sold at a profit of 100 per cent. The bank manager, who had been in the market for some time, had a large quantity of gold on hand.

within a fortnight 24,000 gold was stored in the mine safe. Today the bank manager is as close as ever to an interest in gold, and he has made a fortune as a gold manager in the early days.

*When the flute is heard in Zanzibar
all Africa East of the Equator must dance.*

This old Arab saying neatly summed up Zanzibar's position in East African affairs in the 1800's, for Arab traders from Zanzibar had, for many years, pierced the "Dark Continent" in search of ivory—black—and were establishing as they went varying degrees of subservience to the Zanzibar Sultanate. It was therefore perhaps appropriate that the growth of the National Bank of India in East Africa should have started with the opening of a branch in Zanzibar in 1893. From this beginning grew the Bank's present system of branches covering Kenya, Uganda and Tanganyika, in the first two of which colonies the Bank is proud to hold the position of banker to the Government. All those interested in trade, travel or settlement in British East Africa are cordially invited to make use of the services provided by the Bank.

Mr. Blum on Issues	219

MATTERS OF MOMENT

STATE OF AFFAIRS in Kenya and Rhodesia has been made more complex by the fact that Mr. Blum would, as best things go, obtain a majority in the House of Representatives in the new Legislature, and that there is quite a chance that the latter would have the greater support. The Independent Group led by Mr. Blum has an overwhelming majority of the fourteen seats and Mr. Blum's claim to lead the European community has been unconvincing for many months, but has appeared entirely true in the outstanding case of the appeal to the electorate.

It confirms the judgment which East Africa and Rhodesia have repeatedly expressed during the past two or three years, namely to the annoyance of many people in London and some in the United Kingdom, including a few influential members of both Houses of Parliament, who declining to see the fact held to be in issue, that Mr. Blum's position had not been weakened by his vacillation and opportunism. He has, in his own words, been "confidently" and "now firmly" resolved that he will exercise the power which he has at his disposal in his election to the leadership of the European members of the Legislature, and in the nature of the party to which he has shown himself to have no doubts and momentary minister, but the success of the Independent Group may rest in part, especially as the Africans accept the Government only and Mr. Blum and his own to be considered that their agreement was for the last Legislature only, and that Mr. Blum is, regretfully, he was one of the most thoughtful and capable of the new Government, though he took office of the same terms and at the same time as Mr. Blum. It was, in fact, by no means an automatic wholehearted transfer of his (Kenya) of so much talent, public life that he can afford to lose his services, and it is to be hoped that there will be a final settling of the matter. Mr. Blum's task has also been a success as a minister.

Heavy responsibilities now rest upon Group as a man of high as a leader of authority in the European, not official benches. He has served in the Legislature for only four years. Problems facing the Independent Group: but he has been steady in his determination to deal with every problem according to the merits of the case. There was no surer or more careful critic of the Government in the old House of Members for Mount Kenya; his energy suffered severely from the Mount Kenya, and he was useless in representing the needs of the area. Indeed his attacks on the administration for its manifold shortcomings were among the best speeches of the year and his followers ought now to feel that the main aim of their political activities with which he is now faced. Some of the dates for the African constituencies will be their campaigns and the extremists among them will be on the alert for suggestions by European politicians which they can turn to their own advantage. Fortunately, all the Federal Independence Party nominees have been defeated, and it was from them that illiberal statements came most freely. The Independent Group, though with more members, has some members who are prone to ill-considered comment. They accept disciplined leadership as part of the price of their leadership, the polls the Government may quickly gain the measure of respect to be wished for the sake of Kenya.

...to compromise the independence and territoriality of the States. His view was confined to so far as it applies to the concerned States.

Orders, Judicial Service

The Committee's opinion is that the creation of an Appellate Court, which is a judicial function, would be a serious step towards the national subject matter of the Government. The power should not be exercised by the Government before and after the appointment of a Judicial Commission and then the Appellate Court.

The Committee is of the opinion that the Appellate Court should be a three-member body consisting of the Chief Justice and two other members to be appointed by the Government.

...character, the conduct of the case outside his jurisdiction. It is not clear that there are any considerations which would justify the Government in not allowing the Appellate Court to be a three-member body. Mr. Tom Mboya writes on 'The Kenya Question'

Was Man The Child of Political, Economic and Social Frustrations

MR. TOM MBOYA, the 35-year-old general secretary of the Kenya Federation of Labour, has written for the Fabian Colonial Bureau a pamphlet entitled 'The Kenya Question: An African Answer'. The author, a Luo from south Kenya, has recently done his MA at Roehamton College, Oxford, on a scholarship granted by the Workers' Kenya Association. He then went to Belgium to spend some weeks at the headquarters of the I.L.P.W. and is now in the United States. He visited India and Pakistan in 1957 and the following year he was a delegate to the Inter-African Labour Conference in Beira, the Portuguese East African Co-operation in Africa South of the Sahara. He will return to Kenya shortly, and is now in the United States as a candidate for the general election of the African members of the Legislative Council. Because of the influence which he already exercises in various circles, the probability that he will soon become a prominent African spokesman in the Legislative Council. The following passages are quoted from the pamphlet. It is claimable at a price of 10/- from the Fabian Colonial Bureau at 1, Darnley Street, London, S.W.1.

"I reject any concept of superiority of racial group rights or duties which is based on accepting only individual rights and duties."

"I accept the political philosophy of democracy in which each individual has an equal voice in the choice of his government and an equal opportunity to express his opinions in its actions. I accept the principle of the rule of law, the equality of all citizens before the law, and the necessity of the economic development of the country so as to enable everyone to live a full life without fear of hunger and without being forced by poverty to accept the domination of any other individual or group."

Pro-African and Anti-European

"My proposals are directed against no individual or group. They are not pro-African or anti-European. They seek to offer financial help to the present lack of individual freedom, political and economic, can be brought to an end without suffering of violence. Unfortunately, the present racial and political structure of Kenya is such that any amendment of the situation calls for proposals for its amendment force African and European alike. Thus, not for my seeking, and I look forward to the time when this is no longer necessary."

"A clear and definite policy must be adopted if Kenya is to be saved from chaos. Such a policy must be consistent and that constructive work in the field is not nullified by a constant reversion to a policy of chaos."

"Man has suffered from being the child of the failure of British Colonial policy in Kenya. It is the child of the political, economic and social frustrations experienced by the African people prior to the independence of the country. The Government, in its failure to increase the economic and social structure of the country, resulted in the creation of a social structure which is

White settlers and their families, a superior position with the African people. The British Government and the African people have both a moral and a political obligation to develop the African continent. The moral obligation is to develop the African continent for the benefit of the African people. The political obligation is to develop the African continent for the benefit of the African people.

Rehabilitation of the African people is a question of land. The Kikuyu tribes who were driven from their ancestral lands against the Government's policy of reserving the best of the most fertile land in the Highlands for European settlement and allocating other less fertile areas to particular African and European settlers have come to regard the White Highlands as a White man's power. The Government's policy of reserving the best of the most fertile land in the Highlands for European settlement and allocating other less fertile areas to particular African and European settlers has been a major factor in the development of the African people's feeling of inferiority. The Government's policy of reserving the best of the most fertile land in the Highlands for European settlement and allocating other less fertile areas to particular African and European settlers has been a major factor in the development of the African people's feeling of inferiority.

Discriminatory Practices

Discriminatory practices on the land have been a major factor in the development of the African people's feeling of inferiority. The Government's policy of reserving the best of the most fertile land in the Highlands for European settlement and allocating other less fertile areas to particular African and European settlers has been a major factor in the development of the African people's feeling of inferiority. The Government's policy of reserving the best of the most fertile land in the Highlands for European settlement and allocating other less fertile areas to particular African and European settlers has been a major factor in the development of the African people's feeling of inferiority.

Important changes are being encouraged. The new laws have been modified, a few Africans are now in the Government's service, and some homes in Nairobi have relaxed their colour bar practices. The Swire Report, published in 1955, aimed both at improving the standard and accelerating the pace of development of the African people. Changes in the structure of the minimum wage calculations aim to convert wages to an amount capable of supporting a family and housing projects will also be encouraged.

It is unfortunate that most of these changes were not introduced earlier, because it can now be seen that the Mau Mau movement was a result of the Government's failure to take the necessary steps to improve the African people's living conditions. The Government's failure to take the necessary steps to improve the African people's living conditions has been a major factor in the development of the African people's feeling of inferiority.

It is not possible to overlook the many advantages that Kenya and indeed the African community have gained through their contact with European settlers and the missionaries. It was possible to justify paternalistic government. Kenya Europeans could use the advantages they have brought the African people to cover for their failures in other fields. The paternalistic government is discredited in the Western world and there is no justification for the shortcoming of the paternalistic European in relation to the "civilization" of which he claims to be the representative.

Africanized Government

There can be no question but that the Mau Mau movement was a result of the Government's failure to take the necessary steps to improve the African people's living conditions. The Government's failure to take the necessary steps to improve the African people's living conditions has been a major factor in the development of the African people's feeling of inferiority.

The Mau Mau movement was a result of the Government's failure to take the necessary steps to improve the African people's living conditions.

These inevitable effects of the attitude of the African people towards the Government's irregularities committed by members of the security forces, in particular the Home Guard and the Kenya Police, will not quickly be forgotten.

Settler Obstinacy

Having failed to ensure the creation of a democracy, the British Government, neglecting the settler community under a supposedly democratic system, has now found itself in a position where law and order had to be restored. The British Government must now prove that they have learned the lesson of the Mau Mau movement. They must use their power and authority to bring about the trends which led to the present situation. They must show that their interests will not be used to the detriment of the African people's desire to pursue the policy of British domination.

Racial discrimination and the frustration of the African people must be eradicated. Active steps must be taken to encourage political, economic and attitudes. This will never be achieved while any community remains in a privileged position. This will need determined action. Half-measures or compromises on basic principles will aggravate the situation and make it impossible to produce a solution. Only a race against time.

The awakening of the African people is a result of the Mau Mau movement. The Mau Mau movement was a result of the Government's failure to take the necessary steps to improve the African people's living conditions. The Government's failure to take the necessary steps to improve the African people's living conditions has been a major factor in the development of the African people's feeling of inferiority.

For those who have pinned their hopes on the possible change in the attitude of European leaders and the settler community in general, there is yet another blow. An analysis of the proposals for constitutional change put forward by the European Elected Members Association in April 1956 shows that they seek to retain the status quo in the matter of European and non-European representation, that they seek to increase the influence of local Europeans in the Government, and to minimize direct Colonial Office interference.

Multiracial government is a result of the Government's failure to take the necessary steps to improve the African people's living conditions. Seretse Returns to Bechuanaland

Criticism of Government's Plan

CERETSE KHAMA will explain his new historic role to the Batswana when he returns to his native country. He will emphasize his views on the Government's own role in the post-independence period.

Mr. Khama, who has endorsed the constabularship of the Batswana to Mr. Mofokeng and his colleagues, returned to the country after spending several months in London. He has been joined by a number of other Batswana, including Mr. J. M. M. Mofokeng, who has estimated that 3,000 men, some of whom are Batswana, will be sent to the Batswana to settle in the Batswana. It is estimated that at least 10,000 Batswana will be sent to the Batswana.

The Batswana chief stayed at Francistown for a few days before returning to the Batswana. He was accompanied by his uncle, Tshekedi Khama, who is the Batswana chief.

Egyptian Arms for the Sudan Large Consignment Arrives in Khartoum

EXCEPT FOR THE AMMUNITION which was made in Egypt, all the items of a large consignment to the Sudan which arrived in Khartoum last week were of British manufacture. The consignment comprised 55 tons of ammunition, 100 tanks, 18 armoured cars, 18 gun carriers, 12 2½-pounder guns, 50 Bren guns, and 100 pistols of .38-calibre.

An official military parade, at which these arms were displayed, was attended by the Egyptian Brigadier Attaf, Ahmed Aly, who brooked the gift, and Sayed Ahmed Khalil, the Sudanese Prime Minister and Defence Minister.

When the Egyptian troops left the Sudan this country made a fair and equitable gift of arms and equipment to the public opinion which was in favour of that gesture.

Kilimanjaro Air Crash

A PARTY OF CLIMBERS who have just returned from a climb to the place of the new Kilimanjaro where the British Royal Air Force plane crashed in May 1955, have recovered the remains of the remains of the persons who lost their lives in the accident have become exposed as a result of rain in the weather. It will be recalled that the place where the bodies were interred was at a height of over 10,000 ft. amid cliffs of crumbling rock which made the search party that gave the remains their burial difficult and dangerous. The Government of Tanganyika is now arranging to have the remains reinterred or cremated.

Feeling of Uncertainty

THE MAIN PROBLEM remaining European staff in the territories of Nyasaland officials have not satisfied in the Federal Republic and have elected to remain in secondment. This has given them the right to terminate their secondment by giving notice of 100 days to the Government of another Colony. This situation creates a feeling of uncertainty, and if the majority accept a decision to terminate their secondment the position could easily become serious. — The Acting Regional Controller of Post and Telegraphs in Nyasaland.

Immediate Impact

MOVING FILMS properly used are probably the best means of obtaining immediate impact on people's minds and emotions, even though that impact may be passing. If the opportunity is given, the possibilities of putting even the most subtle very great. In the Uziwa district one of the chiefs bows his chieftdom with a full projector, and may be more effective in putting across ideas than any departmental representative. — Annual Report of the Social Development Department of Tanganyika.

Man-Man Casualties

DURING THE FIVE WEEKS ended September 29 six terrorists were killed in Kenya, and 27 surrendered. One European, a collector and one African man were also killed, and seven rifles, one Sten gun, and one revolver were recovered. Of the 72 terrorists accounted for in the period, 26 were taken to the custody of pseudo-guards in the Aberdeenshire Southern Province, the neighbouring British division of Kenya, and the other 46 were arrested. It is estimated that only 400 terrorists are still in the country.

Fighting the Tsetse Fly The Use of Anticyde Today

DR. D. G. DAVEY, who helped in the discovery of paludrine and anticyde, has given in the Journal of the Entomological Society of Africa an interesting account of the present use of drugs and chemical insecticides against the tsetse fly, and the prophylactic possibilities.

The present tsetse problem is a difficult one, and the first thing to do is to rank politics first and water supplies second.

In the course of his article Dr. Davey writes:

"In Uganda anticyde has done wonderful service by virtue of its curative properties, and some hundreds of thousands of cattle have been saved, and are now flourishing. These cattle had been infected, although they were not living in tsetse country. They had acquired it by what is called an 'harmless' mission. Some must have become infected in the first instance by stray tsetse flies, carried out of their normal haunts on cars, perhaps, moving objects attract them, and they seem to like riding on trains and cars."

Spread of Infection

"There is no doubt the disease was spread by ordinary flies, but the tsetse fly, being an infested animal and disturbed by the contact of a fly, would settle on a nearby animal, insert its proboscis with its infective blood, and so transmit the disease mechanically, as much could do with needles and syringes."

"Infection of the ordinary tsetse fly is of a transient nature, not seen by man, and the tsetse fly, and so these are no reservoirs of the disease, and they can be cleared by curative treatments of the animals."

"The only thing that has been done in Uganda and in many other parts of Africa has been to use Anticyde, which is used to the great advantage."

"Southern Rhodesia and the tsetse fly is extensive, and the tsetse fly of its kingdom, the eastern border with the tsetse fly in Rhodesia runs into the tsetse fly in East Africa, tsetse fly is increasing among the Natives, and the decision has been made to protect them with anticyde, given every two months. Meanwhile a direct attack on the tsetse fly will be attempted."

"Behind that simple statement of fact is a camp in which where Veterinary officers and their assistants get up at dawn and drive for an hour or more along tracks, take their vehicles and themselves to bits and that in the rain, 18 inches deep in mud. For the next seven hours they wrestle with cattle, excited Africans, flies, and heat, and then drive wearily back to camp, taking comfort in the thought that there are a thousand fewer cattle to be inoculated tomorrow."

Retreat from Tsetse Fly

"In Ankole, Uganda, tsetse has been spreading northwards from Tanganyika, and now it has extended its domain in a tongue of land stretching beyond Mbale. The depleted herds of cattle and their owners retreated from the tongue in 1952. The tsetse appeared to be following. Should the tsetse go on, and these could it end?"

"Nine months ago the decision was made to go back to the tsetse, and in 1952 and 1953 the cattle and the tsetse fly. Now, six months ago, I saw the tsetse fly, 7,500 of them, and they are to be taken back. Two very many officials are staying in a wide area, according to many of more, and a scattered tsetse fly has been brought to the tsetse fly, and the tsetse fly is being inspected. The tsetse fly, which were taken to the tsetse fly, and the herdman, and at a camp, a tsetse fly, which of tsetse fly was used, sometimes by a tsetse fly, in English, sometimes in the local language. The tsetse fly, a simple, more expressive of the tsetse fly, the medicine, that allows them to re-inhabit the land."

"Whatever may be said in the streets of Kampala, Nairobi, Lusaka, and Salisbury, the heart of Africa will hold gratitude for all that we have done to help in the battle against the tsetse fly."

rights, secondly, in present municipal form, Government securing a number of political based on several groups. Each group is to be represented by a group and subsequently the groups are to be elected to representatives prepared to sit between each of the three racial groups. It is not clear how this is to be done.

There are many who believe that democracy in Kenya is a mere slogan based on European standards and with only such people as possess certain youth educational and status qualifications being the only ones to vote. The Government has been accused of this. Society and draws support also from those who are equal rights for all men. But these qualifications leave no room for democracy which denotes the right to participate in their own government.

Some men hold that the political status regarding the four racial groups is not equitable because of the fact that the majority of the population are of African descent and a sense of inferiority and inferiority is the result. The question is who shall be the judge of this? The answer is to be based on the possession of certain academic education, or when elected status qualifications are to be applied. It is positively inconsistent that those who lack these qualifications are to be a part of the population.

European Standards

The qualifications for limited common roll made it clear that the qualifications for voting would be based on European standards of education and education. In fact, the British Government in Africa has been accused of making a distinction between the African and the European.

Some people think that the Government is trying to make the African franchise based on the existence of adult suffrage in European countries. As a result of this, the franchise can be withdrawn as limited to its exercise. The franchise can be applied only to the African as such.

Mr. G. K. O. has said that the franchise is based on the possession of certain qualifications. It is based on individual qualifications and not on racial qualifications. The franchise is based on the possession of certain qualifications and not on racial qualifications.

The reasons used to justify the franchise are based on the exercise of political responsibility. The franchise is based on the possession of certain qualifications and not on racial qualifications. The franchise is based on the possession of certain qualifications and not on racial qualifications.

Britain's Size Rhodesia's Needs

High Income is Not Enough in Itself

RHODESIA'S size is not sufficient in itself — and its defence needs must also be met — if Britain was to contract in the Commonweath countries, said Sir Kenneth Remond when he opened the Ninth London Conference of the Rhodesia-Africa Institute in London on the 14th. The Rhodesia-Africa Institute is a socio-economic research organization set up by the Rhodesia Development Trust.

Sir Remond said that the Federation, situated between the United Kingdom and important sea-ports, is a natural bridge between the economic and industrial systems of the two continents.

With a rapidly increasing population and a growing economy, the Federation provides a market for the products of the United Kingdom and a valuable source of raw materials. It is therefore essential that British manufacturers should maintain contact with their customers in Rhodesia. This can be done by sending a sales representative to the country and by sending to him the latest information on the economic and social conditions of the country. This information can be obtained from the Rhodesia Development Trust, which publishes a quarterly report on the country's economic and social conditions. The report is available to members of the Rhodesia Development Trust and to other interested parties.

Nairobi Climate

The climate of Nairobi is the subject of a small pamphlet issued by the East African Meteorological Department. It shows that the average temperature throughout 24 hours varies only from 62° to 72° in the city and 68° to 78° in the suburbs. The daily range of temperature varies from 17° to 19° in May in the city and 19° to 21° in the suburbs, at nearly seven hours of daylight and 10 or 11 hours of darkness per day. The humidity is high, but there is opportunity to go to the beach for a swim and to enjoy the sea breeze. The annual rainfall which averages 40 inches, varies from 20 inches to 60

7,000,000 Acres of Forestry Reserve

THE LEASE 7,000,000 ACRES of land in Southern Rhodesia should be reserved as a forestry reserve, says Professor J. H. M. Inyang, Director of the Imperial Forestry Institute, in a report submitted to the Southern Rhodesia Government. Professor Inyang says that some of the huge areas would be suitable for pine plantations, but that the main part could be planted with indigenous trees. He recommended that the bulk of the softwood plantations should be planted on about 1,000,000 acres, at least a third of which should be planted with the indigenous species. The remainder of the plantation of a population of 1,000,000 Europeans and 2,000,000 Africans. The report says that the present permanent allocation of land for forestry has made good progress, but is insufficient to meet the needs of the country. It is recommended that the Government should consider the possibility of increasing the land available for forestry.

1958 Report

THE PRESIDENT'S annual report, issued by the Economic Intelligence Unit, shows a sharp contrast with the first quarter of 1957. It is estimated that the revised estimate for the first quarter of 1958 is 1,000,000 tons, compared with 61,000 tons in the first quarter of 1957. The report says that the present permanent allocation of land for forestry has made good progress, but is insufficient to meet the needs of the country. It is recommended that the Government should consider the possibility of increasing the land available for forestry.

Palm Oil

THE NORTHERN ZIMBABWE Agricultural Experiment Station has a nursery of imported West African oil palm at the Mvuma Village in the Masvingo district of the Northern Province. The imported palms are being planted out to compare with the growth of local palms. The report says that the plants are doing well in the nursery and are being successfully transplanted to plots. Meanwhile selected owners of local oil palms are being urged to come to the Agricultural Station where oil is retained in order to assess the possibility of a local oil industry.

The approach has been made to the Government by the building of a railway link from Bulawayo to the Beitbridge. The link will connect the Union of South Africa with Rhodesia.
