

Abstract

Ten males, 6 of whom were azoospermic and 4 oligospermic were studied for their subfertility or infertility after the gynaecologist had proven wives normal and referred them to urology clinic for further tests. Study showed that the causes of subfertility or infertility are uncorrectable and in the few that can be corrected, the results of the improved fertility in so far as getting child is concerned has no workable formula.