

Abstract

Two methods of obtaining high efficiency balanced asymmetrical factorial designs which are resolvable are discussed. The effect of confounded interactions of symmetrical factorial in context of correspondence between them and their corresponding asymmetrical factorials is discussed. Two methods of obtaining efficiency factors are discussed one of them using the Krawtchouk polynomial and the other method using Kronecker product matrices.