

ABSTRACT

The paper discusses partnerships in the preparation and practices of teachers. Teachers' colleges in Kenya were empowered to develop successful networks within the educational system as well as with private entities and the wider public. The process of setting up and managing partnerships is detailed and lessons learned discussed.