To increase web presence, impact and openness, the College of Biological and Physical Sciences held a meeting on May 25th, 2015 to assess the progress which has been made so far and to strategize on new ways of increasing its web visibility in terms of presence, impact and openness. During the meeting, chaired by the College of Biological and Physical Sciences Principal, Prof. Aduda, it was reported that despite the college showing some improvement in terms of impact compared to other colleges based on the latest statistics, the web champion team should also strive to work on ways of improving openness and presence of the college.

Others present during the meeting included Prof. William Okello, Director, School of Computing and Informatics, College Registrar among others.

During the meeting, the web team proposed a number of strategies which will count towards increasing the college web impact. The team agreed to increase the college openness by increasing the number of rich files on the college and school website and collaborate with web developers for increasing the college web impact.
