

Explaining Sexual Orientation: Some Conceptual

Karori Mbũgwa*

Department of Philosophy

University of Nairobi

Abstract

The past decade and a half has seen a resurgence of interest in the nature and causes of homosexual orientation. Most of the research on sexual orientation is an essential condition and is determined by biological partners. This paper raises and discusses a number of methodological issues that must be taken seriously by researchers in the etiology of human homosexual orientation.

Key words: Sexual orientation, Homosexuality, Theology
Mila (N.S.), Vol. 9 (2008), pp. 1 – 15, © 2008 Institute of Anthropology
