Location / Venue:

EDUCATION BUILDING ED 213 MAIN CAMPUS

The Africa Women's Studies Centre (AWSC) would like to invite all members of staff and students to attend a seminar on

ISLAMIC RADICALISATION, ARMED CONFLICT AND THEIR INTERCONNECTIONS WITH GENDER

Today one of the main focus for security studies is Islamic radicalisation. In the Kenya context the Westgate attack becomes a reminder of the tensions within the Islamic community and others. Which has contributed to the increase of instability within the state. Islamic radicalisation has also become a focus within the fields of International relations, conflict, Gender and Peace studies. Within the post-cold war context Islamic Radicalisation is associated to contribute towards the threat of global peace.

This seminar will look at both the causes and ideologies that Islamic radicalisation affects society. And by looking through the gender and conflict lens. We shall see how these interconnects within the society.

The Presenters, Nina Bjorkman, Albina Wambui are PhD students from Abo Akademi University.

Venue: ED 213

Time: Friday 28th March 2014
