On 10th January 2014, the School co-organized a dissemination workshop, in collaboration with the Partnership for Economic Policy (PEP), and the Ministry of Education, Science and Technology (MOEST).

The event, entitled “Contract Teachers Research Dissemination Workshop”, was held at the Nairobi Safari Club. The contract Teachers Project evaluated several interventions including the impact of a contract teacher on performance in randomly selected public primary schools in Kenya. The project, partially funded by PEP employed a randomized controlled trial (RCT) design. It was successfully implemented by MoEST through KNEC and a Non-Governmental Organization (World Vision). The results varied between the two implementing agents implying the challenges of scaling up learning in Kenya.

The workshop involved panelists/participants from the Kenya National Examination Council, the MOEST, Brookings Institution, World Vision and UWEZO among others. The objective was to bring together key stakeholders to discuss the research project’s findings/outcomes and their implications for education policy in Kenya, and especially in relation to (and to inform) the implementation of contract teacher schemes. Mr. Paul Wasanga, CEO, KNEC delivered the keynote address.
